ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A book of genealogy of this sort cannot be researched or written by one person. The "author," myself in this instance, is not so much a writer as he is an organizer of a complex array of materials supplied by many others. Even this book itself is not a final result, but rather an interim report on the present status in 1996 of knowledge about one family and its many allied families. The material assembled here includes "original" research performed by myself to attempt to document and corroborate as much as possible in the time available to me the details included in this book on approximately ten thousand people. However it would be impossible for one person to verify all of the connections presented in this book, even while taking full advantage of the many new tools available to genealogists such as faxes, computers, CDROM drives and so forth. Most readers, never having been involved in such an undertaking, would not suspect the degree of effort required by innumerable people besides myself to make a book such as this possible. Below I have mentioned fifty-four people who made major contributions, though in doing so I am sure to fail to mention many others who also contributed. Some of those whom I have simply mentioned below spent many years, sometimes many decades collecting information on one or more families related to the subjects of this book. One woman spent fifteen years searching for any document that would prove just one particular connection in this book and eventually found it. People have often asked me HOW one goes about discovering the answers to genealogical questions about ancestry. I usually respond by saying that there are literally hundreds of different methods commonly used by researchers, and these make up the subject matter of many books about how genealogy may be done. I state this now, because I feel the brief mention I am able to make here below of those who have been the major contributors to this effort cannot pay proper tribute to the extensive labors performed by many of them, often over many years, in tracking down innumerable hard-to-find details.

First I must thank my friend Jack. Dr. John Marks Templeton Jr. started this whole project, first by his extensive curiosity about and interest in family history, later by commissioning this research, and throughout by his enthusiastic support of this book.

Secondly, I wish to acknowledge my debt to Ruth Cohlmia, whose knowledge of early Templeton Families in the Carolinas exceeds all others, and whose knowledge about genealogy in general has often amazed me. Ruth provided an extraordinary amount of help on researching many family lines, without which this book would have been considerably less extensive and certainly far less accurate. Ruth's entirely voluntary hard work and unfailingly rigorous (and sometimes maddening) attention to detail has provided me with an exceptional example, from which I have learned immeasurably. Furthermore, over decades of research she has acquired an extensive library specialized for North Carolina research, among other things. Many NC sources were printed privately and are either out of print or otherwise hard to obtain. I have listed some of these sources used by Ruth in the bibliography of this book for the benefit of other future Templeton Researchers. Those books used by Ruth, which in some cases I have myself not researched, I have listed in the bibliography with an asterisk following the author's last name. In some cases I have worked extensively with the authors of these books, without having actually obtained their books myself. This was especially true in the case of Lois Schneider, a registered Genealogist associated with the Iredell Co., NC Genealogical Society.

Many of the rest of those who contributed to this project I have attempted to mention below in alphabetical order. This is only a small portion of all those family members who were kind enough to speak to me or write to me and provide details of their immediate families. Those named below generally provided information far beyond their own immediate families.

Alfred Sumner Winston III of Hilton Head, SC, author of Winston Genealogy, for help with Winston family research.

Art Rubeck of Irving, TX for research on Gambill family.

Barbara and Jasper Templeton of Belvidere, TN for sending a large collection of Templeton family documents.

Sandra Spear of Spear Graphics, Seattle, WA for her immense skill in restoring old photographs.

Sherry Simon of Manchester, TN, for extensive research on Carlisle, Keeling, & Jacobs families.

Sir John Marks Templeton Sr. for his support of this project, and access to his collection of Templeton documents.

The Duke of Abercorn, Baron's Court, Omagh, Co Tyrone, Ireland for help with Templeton research in Ireland.

Vivien Gore Allen, Professor at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, TX for help with Gore genealogy.

William Howard Jr. of Ft. Lauderdale, FL for help with Benton Bell Templeton descendants.

Introduction

Most people give little thought to the question of relatives beyond their immediate families, though most of us have more extensive families than we realize. In thinking about families in the abstract sense there are two distinctly different aspects to consider. The first is the question of ancestry to be covered in the next chapter. For the present let us just emphasize that only siblings have one hundred percent the same ancestry, whereas even first cousins have considerably different ancestries. Thus a book limited to ancestry would be of interest only to a rather small group of living people, plus their eventual descendants. The second question concerns kinship and asks who our living relatives are. When considering ancestry, one looks only backwards in time seeking to learn about ones forbears. If one is exploring ancestry for the first time one is struck by two salient facts. First we all have exactly the same number of ancestors, if we could only discover who they all were. Secondly, the number of ancestors we all have rapidly becomes truly mind-boggling, once we delve backwards in time beyond the first few generations.

On the other hand, we do not all have the same number of living relatives. Some people may have none or only one or two or a few, while others may have literally thousands. If you were the only child of two only children of four only children and so on back for several generations, then you will have few living relatives. Whereas if you were the tenth child of two parents who were themselves the tenth children of parents who also came from large families, then you are likely to have a very large number of living relatives. However, one is not guaranteed to have many relatives even then. Wars, disease, poor economic conditions, natural disasters or all combined may have caused unusually high mortality among your ancestral families, so that not many children grew to adulthood, or survived long enough after adulthood to have children of their own. These things seem fairly obvious when we think about them. However, it is remarkable how little people do think about them.

Though my friend Jack and his father Sir John Templeton had given quite a lot of thought to the subject of their family history over the course of their lives, I myself first became involved only a couple of years ago during the course of a dinner table conversation. Having learned of my interest in genealogy, Jack, whose full name is Dr. John Marks Templeton Jr., and whose profession until very recently was that of pediatric surgeon in Philadelphia, PA, told me that there was another surgeon in Philadelphia whose name was Dr. John Y Templeton, and Jack had always wondered whether they were related, and how he could find out. This was a good question, though not an especially easy one to answer. In order to answer it, we needed to know as much as possible about Jack's ancestry and about that of Dr. John Y Templeton as well. Once having learned enough about the two ancestries, we could start to look for a common ancestor. Most people do not know enough about their own ancestries to be able to answer such a question. Jack knew a great deal about his ancestry. For example, he knew that his own great great grandfather had been Obadiah Templeton, a cabinet maker and farmer in Coffee Co, TN. This is a lot more than most people know, and it is nearly as much as I myself know about my own ancestry, even after years of research. But it was not enough. We needed to know all about Obadiah, how many children he had, who the descendants of these other children were, if he had them, and so on, back down to the present. To make a long story short, it took about a year of part time effort to learn more about Obadiah and his family and his hundreds of descendants. At the end of that time we had found no connection to Dr. John Y Templeton. But could we be sure there was none? In fact in the course of learning about Obadiah, we had discovered that his father had been John Templeton of Iredell Co, North Carolina, and that this John had had at least six surviving children, of which Obadiah was but one. Perhaps the other five had had descendants, and perhaps Dr. John Y Templeton would be found among them. Again to make a long story short, we eventually learned a great deal about these very many other Templetons as well, and still we did not find Dr. John Y Templeton among them. The astute reader will readily grasp that if history could provide us with perfect records, and if we had the time to research further and further backwards in time, we would eventually be able to connect everyone on the planet one way or another. Unfortunately history is not so kind, and as the new mathematics theory of "Chaos" is starting to inform us, the real world is seldom very simple or "tidy." Suffice to say that eventually we did stumble upon the ancestry of Dr. John Young Templeton, whose father was also a physician of the same name, and whose ancestors we believe were not closely related to Jack's great great grandfather John, though they lived in the same general part of North Carolina.

Perhaps back in Scotland before the time of Columbus they might have been distantly related, but this we have so far been unable to discover.

In this book we try to deal with both aspects of genealogy: ancestors and descendants. First we explore the ancestry of Jack and his sister Anne and his brother Christopher. In the five chapters on ancestry we learn a very great deal about more than a thousand people, all of whom are related to these three individuals, and some of whom are related to Jack, Anne, and Christopher's relatives. In this search we have been lucky, because we were able to learn an unusually large amount, and have so far collected data on nearly ten thousand related people. In the process we discovered many prominent Americans among their ancestors, some of whom are known to American historians, including two governors, many veterans of all the wars fought since Colonial times, ministers, large land owners, doctors, lawyers, government officials, judges, and so on. Beyond that we were fortunate to discover three special ancestors who are not known to historians, but rather are well known to genealogists. This is because these three have well-documented lines of descent from the Kings and Queens of the European Middle Ages, and as a result we can trace part of Jack, Anne, Christopher, and some of their relatives' ancestry back to the Seventh Century.

Following the chapters on ancestry is a chapter about the Templeton family descended from John and Martha Templeton of Iredell Co, North Carolina. In this chapter we discuss the kinship of quite a few hundred living Templeton descendants, and try to answer the question: "If you are a Templeton not related to Dr. John Y Templeton, who might you be related to?" This chapter is probably of interest to a much larger number of living people, not to mention their future descendants. This chapter also includes a discussion of the Beall family, a descendant of which became the wife of Obadiah Templeton. Of course we all have four grand parents and eight great grand parents, and so on, so Jack, Anne, and Christopher have not only Templeton cousins, but Handly cousins, Folk cousins, Pilcher cousins, Marks cousins, and so on. Thus, there are several chapters on these families and their histories and descendants as well. A few of these families such as Winston, Cary, Estes, and Dudley have already been studied by others who have published genealogies about them, so those families are not covered in detail in this book. Here we have tried to assemble as much information as we could on related families, which to our knowledge have not been published before.

Following the chapter on descendants of John and Martha Templeton is a chapter researched and written by Ruth Cohlmia, a genealogist who has been researching the surname Templeton in the South for several decades. She is almost certainly the most knowledgeable about records prior to 1800 pertaining to the several Templeton families in the South not closely related to one another. The purpose of Ruth's chapter is to clarify the status of knowledge about all early Southern Templetons, not just those descended from John and Martha of Iredell Co, NC. There were quite a few Templeton families in the South about which quite a lot is known. These Templetons have often been confused with one another in the past, and have no known connection with John and Martha of Iredell Co. This chapter consolidates knowledge about the Templeton surname and should provide a clear foundation for future research. These two narrative chapters about the Templetons are followed by an extensive Genealogy of the Templeton Family descended from John and Martha Templeton of Iredell Co, NC, which includes an index. This genealogy contains nearly three thousand names of descendants, their spouses, and the parents of these spouses.

Following this Templeton section are narrative chapters on several of Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's major ancestral families, including Handly, Marks, Folk, Bate, Pilcher and others. Each of these narrative chapters is followed by a detailed genealogy with index of that family. None of these genealogies has ever been published before, and the Marks genealogy is so extensive it fills one hundred and sixteen pages, including its index. These genealogies provide the necessary tools for any member of one of these families to find out whether or how he or she is related to anyone in another of these families, and to which specific individuals within them.

Sources of Genealogical Records

Genealogists and others who have studied American families are often struck by the great range of available records of all kinds. What we can learn about more distant ancestors depends to a great extent on the original existence, as well as on the preservation of many different sorts of documents. There are a multitude of possible documents, which can aid us in the study of family history, but a detailed discussion of them is not the main focus here. However, it is worth noting that without documentary evidence of some sort, we could neither learn very much nor prove very much about our ancestors. Therefore it is worth considering briefly the possible sources of information about our ancestors, as well as the wide range of factors which have effected early American records of all types.

Most people give little thought to their more distant relations, and they commonly wonder how such knowledge can be assembled in the absence of family records. The answer is that there are often many sources of documentary evidence from which we can learn about family history. To mention only a few of the more common ones, there are: census records, indexes to census records, birth, marriage and death records, church records, tax records, wills, probate court records, land sales, land grants, court records of all kinds, newspaper and media articles and obituaries, military unit records and enlistments, other military records, pension records, social security records, immigration records, applications for immigration, steamboat passenger lists, county histories and records, other historical records such as published local histories, various family records, family bibles, letters and correspondence, published genealogies and family histories, Who's Who, city directories, telephone books, cemetery directories, and so on. The list is almost endless. It is surprising how many records of various types do survive.

In the 18th Century and before, one seldom is so fortunate as to find civil birth records, although some family bibles record birth dates over a surprisingly long span. In the absence of basic information such as dates, family groupings must be "assembled" by cross-referencing a wide assortment of records such as land grants, land sales, wills, tax records, marriage records, military records, possible court records, newspaper announcements, family papers and correspondence, and so forth. As an example in the case of John and Martha Templeton of Iredell Co., NC, we were fortunate to find at least one record that mentions Obadiah and his five brothers and sisters together in one group. Another type of clue is sometimes found in the similarity of repeating names. This is not especially useful in the Templeton family, as many repeating names are extremely common such as John and James. However, Obadiah's son Jasper named a son James O., which would have been after Jasper's Uncle. According to one researcher, Will Templeton, the "O" stands for Orin. [16] In any case "O" is an unusual middle initial, and it repeats. Of course in the case of James' son, it could have been for Obadiah, though it is unlikely that John Sr. would have called one son James O. (Obadiah) and another son Obadiah. Obadiah himself named a son James O., but this son died at age six. [11]

Research of this scope cannot be accomplished by one person. Several dozen people mentioned in the acknowledgments have provided extensive assistance, and perhaps as many as a hundred more have been contacted by phone and mail and have given some information on their immediate families. The genealogy of John Templeton of Iredell County has already reached more than three thousand names, which only includes extensive information on two of John and Martha's six children, James and Obadiah, and partial information on two others, John Jr. and Martha Cummings. It so far includes no information at all on their last two children, Elizabeth Moss or Polly Jones. To accomplish what we have it was first necessary to verify a basic outline of the family, plus bring at least some of the descendants down to the 20th Century. Eventually a research process such as this one reaches a certain "critical mass" where pre-existing work of other researchers can sometimes be discovered and brought together. Unfortunately this material seldom reaches us in clean, computer-printout form. Rather one receives thick envelops of photocopies of hand-written notes made by a multitude of people, most often not dated, most often of unknown authorship. The accuracy, detail, and legibility varies widely. And although some of the authors of these notes and so on are evidently quite conscientious about trying to create a family record, they seldom have any exposure to the methodology of genealogy. Thus people may record the year of events, but not the exact dates, and they most often do not record the place where the birth, death, or marriage took place. Without these places, future researchers a hundred or more years hence would be at a loss to know where to begin to look for records, documents, or traces of other relatives. The background material collected for this study fills fourteen two-inch thick ring binders. Of such stuff are genealogical studies composed.

Broader Historical Considerations of Family History

A book about family history or genealogy can expect to have at least two quite disparate types of readers. On the one hand there are family members interested in their own history, but not necessarily deeply interested in history in general, while on the other hand there are professional genealogists and researchers interested in possible connections between one group of related families and another. Researchers consider all published genealogies as potential sources of material, which may bear on their own studies. Of course those experienced in genealogy are already familiar with the issues being presented briefly in this introduction, whereas those perhaps reading a genealogy for the first time may benefit from a brief overview, as well as some explanation of the way this book is organized and why.

Though it is a little difficult to think about the audience for any book, one might at first suppose that the obvious audience for a genealogy would be "The family" at large. However, family members are surely not the only audience. A genealogy is primarily a reference book, and only people actively seeking information consult reference books. Sadly it is usually the case that only a small percentage of people in any family are actively seeking information about their family. Some of us of course do, but we are a minority. Those of us seeking such information are probably deeply curious, and this gives rise to books hundreds of pages long with thousands of names plus other historical material. But most authors of genealogies seem to write byandlarge for other genealogists, since only genealogists have learned of the difficulties and challenges involved in the pursuit of this particular aspect of "Truth" or "reality." Any detailed study on any topic must deal to some degree with the question: "How do we know what we think we know?" This is really not a question that interests lay people, but it is of critical interest to scholars. The very best genealogies have usually been written over a large number of years, and with extensive direct access to primary records. Such books are often half filled with transcripts of such records. This is fascinating stuff for historians, but usually quite boring to the lay reader.

The challenge in writing any history is between providing too much detail and boring many readers, especially the lay ones, and providing too little detail and thus being unconvincing to many readers, especially the expert ones. Most people who have studied history at least a little will be struck by its complexity. History is continually being rewritten as new tools bring new information to light. Information about the past is on the one hand increasing and accumulating in the present, while at the same time a given day in the past grows daily more distant in time, which inevitably has the effect of causing some details to be irretrievably lost. Trying to capture a view of the past that we can believe is "realistic" is not easy. This is partially because trying to capture a realistic view of even the present is not easy. The truth about anything often seems to elude us.

The further back in time one tries to look at family history, the more such history seems to become intertwined with American history, and eventually with the history of other countries. For example, the fact that the American East coast was first predominantly colonized by the English is important, since a national tradition of keeping town records of births, marriages, and deaths was begun in England about two hundred years before it was begun in other European countries, and English practices tended to be replicated in American towns. Thus paradoxically the earliest American records are sometimes more extensive than later records from frontier communities spreading inland from the coast.

Another important factor was the class background of particular families. Did immigrants come as families, or as individuals? Were they from a wealthy background or a working class background? Did they come voluntarily, or were they "transported" as criminals or war prisoners to serve sentences of "indenture?" This was much more common than most people realize today, the two largest categories being military prisoners and those having been imprisoned for debt. At what point did families immigrate? Such questions often have a great bearing on what we can learn about families today. During the Middle Ages there was a great preoccupation with heredity throughout Europe among wealthy and prominent families, because the entire system of power and economic distribution was largely based upon heredity, and upon property and social position passing from one generation to the next. Therefore it was important for people in prominent families to keep track of their hereditary connections, since society valued kinship to a far greater extent than it does today. Thus immigrants to America from such families tended to carry on their traditions of keeping track of heredity, whereas people from working class backgrounds generally had no such traditions.

Another factor was the generally stable and/or static nature of communities on or close to the coast, as compared with far more turbulent conditions further inland. The earliest communities along the coast, bays, and river inlets seem to have been relatively stable, especially in the initial period after 1620. This was true for a variety of reasons. For one thing communities near the sea were growing rapidly from the beginning, because they were resupplied by ship with ever increasing population, as well as with trade goods. Also these communities could be defended by sea power, thus allowing the Europeans the maximum benefit from their superior technology. At first the populations were relatively small compared with the Native American populations, and it took time for Native American leaders to realize how great a threat to their cultures the European influx was about to become. At the same time as European coastal populations were increasing rapidly, Native American populations were equally rapidly declining as a result of the drastic effects of European diseases, especially smallpox, against which they had no immunity. Although statistics are non-existent, many historians have speculated that initial losses by Native American populations from disease may have been as high as one-third.

Nearly a century after European immigration began, many Native American tribes had become more hostile, and conflicts with Native Americans continued to be an unsettling factor as the Frontier moved westwards for the next hundred and fifty years until the middle 19th Century. In 1703 France went to war with England in a ten year conflict which was known in Europe as the War of the Spanish Succession. This war spilled over into the American Colonies where it was known as the French and Indian War. In this conflict, the French in Quebec allied themselves with several large Indian tribes, while the British in New England and further south also allied themselves with tribes. Thus began more than a century of almost continual guerrilla warfare along the frontiers of the new colonies, largely involving Indians. However, this Indian warfare was largely instigated by conflicts between the colonial governments back in Europe. Such conflicts are mentioned here in passing only because many people do not realize how extensive they were, or how they might effect the study of family history. If one's ancestors three hundred years ago lived in a relatively stable part of the American colonies near the coast, conflicts with the native Americans were probably short-lived, and communities could successfully maintain records of all types. However, in other parts of the American colonies the frontier was expanding rapidly, communities were more spread-out, and social conditions were far more chaotic. As a result, records were fewer and were often lost in fighting and so forth. Most of us learned a little in school of the romantic version of the American frontier peopled by heroes such as Daniel Boone and Davey Crocket, who have passed from history into myth. Yet these historic circumstances which often seem romantic to us in hindsight, were doubtless not at all romantic to those who lived then. At least one of the direct ancestors of some of the Templetons, Capt. Samuel Handly, was captured by Indians in TN and held for several months during which he received some very harsh treatment. His sister, Margaret Handly Pawley, was captured at a different time and held five years. Surprisingly, it seems that this fate befell literally thousands of colonial settlers, and one recent book is based upon written reports of three hundred such captivities[99]. From such accounts we can form an impression of the very great range of stability pertaining in different parts of Colonial America and how this might have affected the availability of written records of all kinds.

The only reason for having dwelled briefly on a panoramic view of Colonial America is to emphasize to newcomers to genealogical research how variable the quantity of detail from one local to the next and from one time period to the next can be. A question very often heard by genealogists is why we cannot discover more about one particular group of ancestors, when we have succeeded in discovering so much about some other group of ancestors. The answer is both complex and simple at the same time. The simple part is that some families cherish and preserve family history, while others do not. The complex part is that rediscovering family history in the absence of family records depends on a wide variety of documentary sources and clues, which themselves are affected by a myriad of historical factors.

We should not forget that there is as much difference between genealogists as there is amongst any group of human beings, and opinions differ widely on how the subject should be approached, and on what information should be preserved and how. As in most academic pursuits there is considerable commentary on what constitutes a "professional" genealogist, and on what passes for "good" genealogy as opposed to "bad" genealogy. For a small number of people genealogy is a way of earning a living, and such persons are concerned to give the impression that their skills, knowledge, work and abilities are superior to that of amateurs. Such professionals band together into societies and attempt to set up exclusionary standards designed to make it difficult for newcomers to enter their field. Such practice has been common in human society equally among plumbers and bricklayers, as among intellectuals. The argument is usually made that this is to safeguard unwary citizens from victimization by unscrupulous rapscallions. Unfortunately it at the same time often acts to retard the introduction of new ideas or practices.

My own personal bias is that though many professionals do excellent work, some do mediocre or bad work, and amateurs sometimes produce inspired work. Whatever the case, I think the average reader can distinguish between good work and bad, whatever the subject matter, and thus I feel confident this work will be judged on its merits, and not by any recitation of my qualifications or lack of them. It remains only to add that while more details about the lives of individuals would doubtless have made for more interesting reading, I felt it necessary to first provide a source book pulling together all presently ascertainable facts pertaining to this group of interrelated families, since nothing of the kind has ever existed before. Whatever professional genealogists may say, ninety percent of all genealogy is done by ordinary people, who simply record in bibles or elsewhere facts about their families that seem important to them. For reasons I have never understood this often results in people keeping track of dates, but not of places. I guess most people have difficulty remembering dates, whereas where they live seems self-evident to them. Unfortunately this is not true for genealogists, who seldom need to know an exact date, however nice it is to have one, whereas it is essential to know where to look for records, and this is often totally obscure when trying to look backwards a hundred or two hundred years into the past. Yet notwithstanding the frustrating omissions of amateurs, in the absence of previously published genealogies, the most readily available records are usually those kept by ordinary family members. Though such records may sometimes contain errors and may even sometimes contain deliberate fraud designed to obscure some fact thought by someone to reflect badly on an individual or family. they are by-and-large extremely accurate and trustworthy. Thus the challenge of genealogy is to seek out as many family sources of records as possible. and to persuade family members both that their records are valuable. however meager they may be. and that they will be treated with proper respect. This process initially generates a large body of data. which first needs to be organized. and then needs to be examined to some degree with regard to credibility. One present-day cross-check on credibility is the increasing use of computers. which have built-in checks for consistency of data. But this is not the sort of credibility check that would persuade traditional genealogists. who are generally extremely concerned with documentary proofs. My own bias was to provide a maximum of organized information. at least ninety-five percent of which I believe will stand up to future minute examination. Yet this book can readily be seen to be lengthy. and it was simply not possible to provide documentation for every fact without resulting in an excessively cumbersome and unaffordable result. In fact. I used a complex combination of computer tools to produce a referencing system that would work for both text as well as for genealogical computer databases. which are generated from specialized computer programs. not from word processors. I have attempted to provide sources where I thought they were especially necessary. usually with the idea of allowing future researchers to relatively easily explore more deeply. but without feeling the need to document every step I took in gathering information. Doubtless some may criticize this. but then those people will probably not produce books covering 9.709 people. 3.873 marriages. and 1.999 locations unless they have a half a lifetime in which to accomplish it. which I did not.

Specific Computer Tools Used in Producing This Book

A few readers may be interested in the technical computer aspects of the production of this book. which I hope benefited from my own personal background with computers. Computers are evolving extremely rapidly at present. so the tools I used changed quite a lot during the two years I worked on the book. Genealogical records were accumulated in a database program called Brothers Keeper version 5.2 for Windows 3.1. This program is superior in many ways to some. is modest in cost. and in times of crisis allows the user direct access to the program's author. John Steed. who is extremely helpful and responsive. The genealogical chapters were "exported" to "RTF" files. which were in turn "imported" into MS Word Version 6 for Windows word processing program. This program had the unique ability to generate indexes from these particular files. Programs often advertise abilities. which it later turns out they lack. The text portions of the book were first written on a very old DOS word processing program called XyWrite 3 Plus. Though using an "old" program like this can present problems later with Windows. the advantages are many. the primary one being that the program is small. fits on a diskette. and works fine on any computer. even very old and slow ones. The XyWrite text files were later "imported" into Lotus AmiPro Version 3.1 for Windows 3.1. so that they could be printed using the same fonts which would match the appearance of the chapters produced by MS Word. Using two different programs had definite disadvantages. but was necessary because MS Word could not import from XyWrite. whereas AmiPro could not generate indexes from the Brothers Keeper files. In addition to the above. a separate program called Endnote 2 was used to keep track of reference notes and bibliographic entries. Though all the programs named above have some degree of ability to handle notes. they did not afford the degree of flexibility I desired. I used another program called Reunion 4 for Windows by Leister Productions Inc. to generate certain charts. Reunion is an excellent genealogical program. though I preferred to use Brothers Keeper. Brothers Keeper can make excellent small charts. especially when coupled with a laser printer. However. Reunion has a separate chart-making "module" called Superchart 4. which is greatly superior to all other genealogical chart-making programs. To make such charts it was necessary to use the Brothers Keeper program to "export" its database to a common genealogical file format called GEDCOM. Then the Reunion program could "import" this GEDCOM file. whereupon Superchart could make charts from the data. Superchart 4 has the capability to generate charts up to forty-five generations "deep" and output them to plotters. which can print in color on paper three feet by four feet in size. The next version of the Superchart program. Superchart 5. is scheduled for release in early 1997. and will have even more extensive capabilities. Since hopefully books like this one will encourage further research on these families. the author is willing to provide this database of about ten thousand people to serious researchers for a small handling charge to cover postage. diskettes. and so on. The database presently occupies about four megabytes of hard disk space. though it can be "compressed" into about one megabyte so that it fits onto one diskette. John Steed's program Brothers Keeper is "shareware." which means he encourages users to give copies of the program to others. who will mail John $45.. if they decide they like it enough to use it. The program also fits on one diskette. Future researchers can write to me at P.O. Box 539. Alna. Maine 04535.

Templeton Ancestry A General Overview

Most people, if they ever think about their ancestors, do so only seldom, and then they usually do not think beyond their grand parents or great grand parents. Those who are interested beyond this are often primarily interested in the ancestors who carry their same surname. Few people realize the staggering number of ancestors we all have in only a very few centuries, or the multitude of other families from which we all are descended. Yet when we go back even just a few generations it rapidly grows apparent that we all are a mixture of very many families, all but one of them NOT of our own surname. Thus if we considered only ancestors of our same surname, the study of ancestry would be vastly curtailed.

As mentioned in the previous introductory chapter, the study of genealogy is divided into the attempt to answer two basic questions: who are the living relatives of a particular person or group of siblings, and who are the ancestors of a certain person or group of siblings? The answer to the second question will usually be of interest to a much smaller group of people, since only one individual or sibling group can have all the same ancestors. Thus, even a relatively close relative such as a first cousin will have only half the same ancestors that you have.

Nevertheless, the question of where we came from interests most people sometime in their lives in one way or another, and thus the first question everyone always asks of genealogists concerns ancestry. After only a small degree of initial pondering it will be obvious to most people that the number of our ancestors doubles with each succeeding generation. What is perhaps less obvious is how staggeringly large these numbers rapidly become. We will discuss this mathematics in a little more detail shortly. Meanwhile a small inkling of this can be seen in the chart on page 14a of the next chapter. This chart stretches back only six generations, but the sixth generation would still contain thirty-two ancestors, if all of them were known, and does contain twenty-eight people. There are an additional thirty-one people in the second through the fifth generation, so even this small chart contains fifty-nine ancestors.

Colonial Immigrants

In exploring the ancestry of Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton, we have been fortunate in being able to trace a surprising number of ancestral lines back to the first immigrant to America. In fact we have found forty-seven immigrants, all of whom arrived in Colonial times. In addition, there are perhaps an additional ten men from the same period who might have been immigrants, if information about their birth was known. Plus the spouses of some of these were probably also immigrants. For most of these immigrants, little or nothing is known of their families in Europe. Of a few, quite a lot is known, though this information can only be traced back another five to seven generations in England. However, Jack, Anne, and Christopher are unusually fortunate that among these fifty to sixty immigrants are three who are very well-known because of their royal ancestry. As a result these ancestors have been studied by many for more than one hundred years, and appear in many books about early Americans of known Royal descent. These three were named Ann Lovelace, Col. William Bernard, and Capt. Anthony Savage. There are perhaps not more than one thousand American immigrants in all who are known to have such documented royal ancestry. Moreover, it is not commonly realized the extent to which British noble families intermarried among themselves, and British royal families with royal families throughout Europe. Thus Jack, Anne, and Christopher have not only many English royal ancestors, but Scottish, Welsh, French, German, Dutch, Norwegian, Danish, and Spanish royal ancestors as well, and they even have one Russian Czar as an ancestor. The reason we know quite a lot about Jack, Anne, and Christopher's medieval ancestry is that a gigantic amount of information was recorded about the heredity of these royal and noble families. Once we can trace their ancestry to known direct descendants of medieval kings, we can simultaneously tie into a vast genealogical database of medieval noble families.

Of course when one first learns that he or she is descended directly from Kings and Queens, it could easily have the effect of causing one to perhaps feel slightly superior to the average person, who sadly probably does not have even one such illustrious ancestor, or at least, if he does have, doesn't know about it and cannot prove it. So it is well to remember that even the most recent of Jack, Anne, and Christopher's royal ancestors, namely Edward the Third, who died in 1377, is in Jack, Anne, and Christopher's twenty-fourth generation back. This in turn means that in their same twenty-fourth generation they had approximately eight million other ancestors, according to the table below. This is because of the surprising way in which numbers grow exponentially, doubling in each generation.

At the same time it should be realized that some of their earlier royal ancestors such as Charlemagne are back as far as their forty-fifth generation. If you simply double the number of ancestors in each succeeding generation, as in the table below, you would have approximately a trillion ancestors in your forty-first generation back, and another total of a trillion between you and that forty-first generation, or two trillion ancestors total. Thus, even if Charlemagne were your ancestor twenty five times over, as he could easily be for Jack, Anne, and Christopher, he would still only be a minuscule contributor to your total ancestry.

Of course the simple arithmetic above does not hold true in the real world for several reasons. First of all, there obviously are not a trillion people on the entire planet today, let alone twelve hundred years ago. The reason the pure logic of the geometric progression fails is because of what genealogists call "converging lines." Basically this means that distantly related descendants of the same person marry together often, usually without knowing it, and each time this happens, it reduces the total number of ancestors by a large number. This can most clearly be seen in the fact that Charlemagne and others of the medieval royalty are Jack, Anne, and Christopher's ancestors many times over that we know about, and probably many other times over as well that we have not yet traced. We learned formulas for calculating these things in High School, but only a mathematician could remember them. The important thing to realize is that these royal and noble ancestors a long way back are certainly extremely interesting to know about, but they do not have a very strong mathematical effect on one's present genetic makeup. Also, though there is a temptation to focus on the presence of famous names in one's genealogical chart, one must not lose sight of the fact that the well-known part of the ancestry is the part that has been recorded and remembered and thus included in the chart or genealogy, while most of one's distant ancestors have unfortunately been forgotten. Thus what is not on the chart is the thousands-of-times larger number of ancestors, which we simply don't know about because they are NOT a part of recorded history.

The information we have succeeded in gathering on the ancestors of Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton is considerable, and more than most people are able to learn about their ancestry, yet seen from another perspective it can also serve to highlight that which we have failed to learn. For many complex reasons we have been able to gather approximately eighteen times more information on the ancestry of Jack, Anne and Christopher's mother, Judith D Folk than on that of their father, Sir John Marks Templeton Sr. Their known paternal ancestors presently number sixty-nine, whereas the total number of known ancestors is 1,349. Thus we have information on 1,280 of their maternal ancestors.

There are many reasons for this discrepancy. Among them are that many of Judith D Folk's Tennessee ancestors were early immigrants to VA. Many came from prominent families about which good records were kept both in VA, and prior to VA in England. Also, they were established for several generations in VA before going to TN, and thus records stretching back to VA were relatively available. Most present-day Americans, when they think about the Colonial period of our country, first think of the Pilgrims, who arrived on the Mayflower in 1620. However, the Pilgrims at Plymouth did not have a significant impact on immigration from the British Isles to the American Colonies. By contrast, British colonization of VA began in 1587 at Roanoke Island, twenty-three years before the Pilgrims first arrival at Plymouth. Unfortunately, all in this first group died. The cause is still not known. England went to War with Spain at that time, and a relief ship had to await the defeat of the Spanish Armada. When the relief ship did arrive in 1590 after three years, the first group of settlers had disappeared entirely, possibly from disease, starvation, being killed by Indians, or all three. The next settlement began in 1606 at Jamestown. The initial history of American colonization is complex and chaotic. By 1610, there were only sixty survivors at Jamestown. By 1617, there might have been five hundred. In the four years between 1618 and 1622, four thousand more were sent, but only about twenty-five percent survived, while seventy-five percent died largely due to disease. Nevertheless, by the time the first pilgrim arrived in Plymouth, there had already been about one thousand five hundred Englishmen in VA for about ten years. Although in these early times records were often sketchy, especially for people who were not from upper class backgrounds, nevertheless, colonization of Virginia had a significant head-start compared with that in New England and other parts of the South.

By comparison, we have so far succeeded in tracing back to Colonial times only one group of John Marks Templeton Sr's ancestors, those being the Bells and Bealls of Colonial Maryland and the related Scottish immigrant families of the Edmonstons and Magruders. These were the ancestors of Obadiah Templeton's wife Rebecca Beall. But so far we have learned almost nothing of their antecedants in Scotland. Besides these Scottish immigrants, we have learned a little about the family of Revered John Marks' wife Uriah, the Ledyards. Beyond this we know only of more recent ancestors. Of John Templeton himself we know only that he was in Iredell Co, NC for certain in 1781. However, of his family or his wife's family or where they came from we so far know nothing. The dearth of information which research has so far been able to bring to light on this group of ancestors may be due simply to the loss of records over time, or simply their sparsness in a frontier community. However, it is also quite possible that earlier records of this John Templeton in America have not been found because this John Templeton of Iredell Co was himself an immigrant. While we have found no evidence for this, neither have we found any to the contrary. Ruth Cohlmia studied all the Templeton families in the Carolinas for more than ten years trying to discover who was related to whom, and was unable to discover any likely, let alone provable connection for John. Ruth herself would be the first to caution that this was only a partial study, and she encouraged me to look for records in PA. I did make an initial attempt to do so, but without significant results, beyond the discovery of several early Templetons, who seem not to have been related to the PA group that ended up in Southern Iredell Co, NC. At least one impressive study, discussed more fully in a later chapter on the Templeton family, explains that there was a major surge of immigration in the American colonies in the fifteen years between 1760 and 1775, and that a great part of the immigrants traveled directly to frontier areas such as northern NC in search of cheap lands. To put this in crude perspective, it is estimated that the European population in the Colonies had grown in the one hundred and fifty years prior to 1760 to approximately seven hundred thousand people, whereas an additional two hundred twenty-one thousand Europeans are estimated to have arrived between 1760 and 1775, equivalent to ten percent of the entire population of British North America as of 1775. Of the new immigrants, forty thousand are thought to have been Scots, equivalent to three percent of the entire population of Scotland in 1760, and an additional fifty five thousand are thought to have been Irish, equivalent to slightly more than two percent of the entire Irish population in 1760. Thus, in the period immediately prior to John Templeton purchasing his first three hundred acres in Iredell Co, NC in 1781, there was an extraordinary surge of Scottish and Irish immigration, part of which was specifically concentrated in the NC frontier area. The Scottish and Irish immigrants to NC arrived primarily at two ports, Philadelphia and Wilmington, and traveled by very different routes. This is discussed more fully with maps in the next chapter. The author of this study describes the immigration of the period into this area as a flood. So it seems at least possible that John Templeton was part of this flood, and that earlier records of him could only possibly be found by discovering something about the date, ship, and/or port of arrival, and hopefully something about the port of embarkation.

Templeton Ancestry

Following this chapter are four chapters about 1,349 ancestors of Jack, Anne, and Christopher. Each chapter has its own index. These chapters extend back into The Middle Ages. The reader should take note of the fact that all of the ancestors farther back were of Royal, or at least noble descent. This is because records were kept on high born people, but not on common people, so we cannot discover anything about the ancestors of more ordinary birth. The reader should also note that the total number of ancestors expands rapidly as you explor back further in time. So although it might appear that we have included a great deal of information, this is really only a small part of the total information which could have been included, had we devoted an additional year, let's say, to just collecting more royal and noble ancestors. Records exist to continue many of the lines shown in the charts and chapters which follow, although we did not research every last line. Many of the people who are shown in these charts and chapters without parents had well-known ancestries, and indeed many of them were of known royal descent.

There are problems in presenting so much information in a useful and convenient form. During the course of the research I used a computer to print out charts of all the ancestors. However, even using very small print this still required a specialized plotter capable of printing on paper three feet by four feet in size, and then four such sheets were required to create charts six feet by eight feet in overall size. Such wall-sized charts are fascinating, but not at all convenient. Because such gigantic charts obviously cannot be reproduced in a book, the ancestors were next printed out in text form. This report is customarily known to genealogists by its German name, which is Ahnentafel, or literally ancestor table. The convention in this type of report is to assign a number to each person such that any person's father can be found by doubling that person's number, and his or her mother by doubling the number and adding one. In the previous pages we saw that the total number of ancestors increases very rapidly. Thus, in trying to produce a report stretching backwards nearly forty-five generations, a little-known mathematical limitation of the IBM PC's central computer chip was encountered. This chip, called the "CPU" (for Central Processing Unit) by computer specialists, is an extremely complex integrated circuit manufactured by the INTEL Corporation and known by its trade name, "Pentium." It seems that there is a limit built into these PC CPU chips, which prevents them from processing numbers larger than two billion. Math programs for the PC can work with numbers such as 2.345 times 10 to the 64th power, times some other large number, expressed exponentially. However, two billion seems to be a limit for "regular" numbers. The computer program that makes the Ahnentafel ancestor report assigns a number to each ancestor, and then doubles the number and assigns it to the parent in the next generation. Thus if the computer is asked to make a report of many generations, the numbers rapidly grow very large, and seem to reach two billion at about the thirtieth generation. At this point the computer program cannot continue to calculate the next larger number, so it simply lists out all the remaining ancestors, without assigning any further numbers or providing any way to relate any one ancestor to his antecedent in the prior generation. It would simply be too time-consuming to try to rectify this problem manually by editing the file and assigning larger numbers to each ancestor beyond the thirtieth generation. Moreover, the Ahnentafel system is far from ideal for presenting even twenty-five generations, let alone thirty or forty, because the numbers get so large so rapidly that it is very cumbersome, even using a hand calculator, to double these large numbers into still larger numbers, and then try to find a person with a number say in the trillions. The plain fact is that no system is ideal for simplifying such complexity, and there is presently no perfect way to put all of this complex data in a book.

Recognizing that the notion of royal ancestry will be both new and interesting to some readers, I have attempted to circumvent the limitations described above, though this cannot be done without considerable duplication. First there is an ancestry with index of the first twenty-eight generations, which includes the most recent kings, as well as most, if not all, of the ancestors who were sureties, who signed the Magna Carta or were nobles named in the Magna Carta. This first ancestry in the next chapter is within the two billion numeric limitation of the computer chip. For this report we provide an index. Following this report are three more separate ancestor reports with indexes, which start fourteen or fifteen generations back in time with each of the three ancestors who were of royal descent, and stretch backwards from that point for another thirty generations. Thus, the total of these four chapters on ancestry reachs back along many lines about forty-five generations to approximately the time of Charlemagne, 742-813 AD, but not without considerable "double-reporting" of some of those ancestors between the fifteenth and twenty-eighth generations. This was the only way to report on all the many lines which extend back farther than twenty eight generations, since all of these lines are ancestors of those three special immigrants of royal descent. For more details about Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's connections to these Royal descendants refer to charts and text on pages 555 through 556 in Chapter 22 on the Winston family.

Summary of Some of Jack, Anne, & Christopher's Notable Direct Ancestors

Eight Revolutionary War Veterans

Capt Samuel Handly	1751-1840 King's Mt. etc, later in 1st TN State Legislature & a Judge
Capt John Winston	1757-1800 later Maj Louisa Co VA militia
Capt Elisha Marks	1744-1805
Lt John Caldwell	1747-1829
Maj Peter Dudley	1749-1823 record of him as Ensign in Revol.Perhaps Maj was in militia after
Pvt James Bate	1747-1787 private in NC line
Col Robert Haskins	1732-1804
Sgt William Trabue	1756-1786 VA line, 3 years service, 11th VA Regiment

Five Civil War Veterans

Newton Templeton	Comp C, 23rd TN Infantry Battalion,Bedford Co,& Co E, Newsom's Cavalry
Benton Bell Templeton	Company C, 23rd TN Infantry Battalion CSA, Bedford Co
Dr John Wiley Templeton	"Hospital Steward F & S," 44th TN Infantry Regiment CSA, Bedford Co
Matthew Barrow Pilcher	Company B, Rock City Guards, Maney's 1st TN Regiment CSA
Robert Clinton Handly	Company B, Rock City Guards, Maney's 1st TN Regiment CSA

Partial Summary Of Others

Sir George Barne	1525-1592 Lord Mayor of London 1587. Also 5 other London mayors.
Edwin Sandys	1519-1588 Archbishop of York
William Cary I	1500-1572 Sheriff (1532) & Mayor (1546) of Bristol, England
William Cary II	1550-1633 Sheriff (1599) & Mayor (1611) of Bristol, England

Royal Ancestors

At least 150 royal lines, and probably double if all known data were collected and entered.

11	lines from Charlemagne and most of the kings in his next 20 generations down to Edward III
2	lines from Alfred the Great & most of the kings in his next 20 generations down to Edward III
8	lines from Hugh Capet King of France, including 3 other kings of his line
1+	lines from Duncan I King of Scots and his son Malcolm III and grandson David I, both King of Scots
1	line from Owain ap Gruffydd Vychan (Owen Glendower), last independent Prince of Wales
1	line from St Ferdinand III King of Castile, incl 19 generations of royal ancestors back to Charlamagne
1	line from Czar Jaroslaff of Russia
1	line from Louis IV King of France
1	line from Raphael DuPuy and son Hugues, a general under Godefroy de Bouillon on his Crusade in 1096
13	lines from various of the 17 Magna Carta Sureties who had descendants
7	lines from various of the 14 nobles mentioned in the Magna Carta who had descendants
21	lines total from different people mentioned or signed in the Magna Carta (includes King John)

The Magna Carta

Before presenting the Ancestor report a final word is in order about the Magna Carta. Many of those who signed the Magna Carta, as well as many others named in the Magna Carta were among Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templetons ancestors. As already mentioned above, most of the medieval noble families of Europe were interrelated in complex ways, so that being descended from one often meant being descended from at least several, sometimes many others. As Frederick L Weis comments on page seven of the introduction to his book,[34] "The Magna Carta is generally considered the cornerstone of Anglo-Saxon law, since it is the earliest agreement between sovereign and subject on the rights of both parties, that is what each can do, and the limitations of powers." While there were several so-called Magna Carta documents, this one of 1215 is usually considered The Magna Carta. Twenty-five nobles signed it, and they were called "sureties," meaning that each signed for some baron, if he himself was not a baron, pledging his own name to insure the compliance of particular barons not present at the signing. In addition to the sureties who signed, there was another group of nobles and clerics named in the Magna Carta as "friends of the King."

The Magna Carta thus reflects a condensed cross-section of the nobility of England during the reign of King John I of England, called "Lackland." Of the twenty-five sureties who signed the Magna Carta, only seventeen have identified descendants, and of these seventeen, thirteen are ancestors of Jack, Anne, and Christopher. These Magna Carta sureties are identified in the following report by the letters "ms" following their names. In addition, of the fifteen nobles named in the Magna Carta as friends of the King, fourteen are known to have had descendants, and of these fourteen, seven are ancestors of Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton. These Magna Carta nobles are identified in the ancestor report by the letters "mn" following their names.

14. Matthew Barrow Pilcher b. 1 Apr 1840, Nashville, Davidson Co, TN, occupation food broker, soldier, m. 13 Jun 1867, in Nashville, Davidson Co, TN, Judith Dudley Winston, b. 9 Jan 1842, Bardstown, KY, d. 19 Oct 1909, Nashville, Davidson Co, TN, buried: Mt. Olive Cemetery, Nashville TN. Matthew died 30 Dec 1908, Nashville, Davidson Co, TN, buried: Mt. Olive Cemetery, Nashville TN. Confederate soldier known as "The fighting quartermaster"- was in many battles. Was deeply religious, always carrying a bible, which saved his life when it stopped a bullet which would have killed him. Capt Pilcher also active in Immanuel Baptist Church, & Supt of its Sunday School for 25 years. Instrumental in starting numerous Baptist Churches in Nashville. On City Council, Pres of Nashville RE Exchange. Death Cert #2108 on file gives DOB Apr 1, 1840. Served in Comp B, Rock City Guards, Maney's 1st TN Reg with RC Handly per 1900 photo.

This was one year before start of Civil War. Rebecca had died (not shown.) In 1870 Obadiah was living with John W in Beech Grove. DOD from letter from his son Dr John W with whom he lived to his brother-in-law, Robt Carlisle dated 5 Feb 1875. Letter reprinted in Coffee Co Histor. Quarterly, Vol XX

17. Rebecca Tyson Beall b. 5 Feb 1800, Iredell Co, NC, m. abt 1818, in Iredell Co, NC, Obadiah Templeton, b. 18 Oct 1792, Iredell Co, NC,[6] d. 30 Jan 1875, Coffee Co, TN.[7] Rebecca died 15 Jul 1855, Coffee Co, TN.[8] The 1880 census ref for "Jane Carson" in family of Dr John Wiley Templeton, stated as his mother should be disregarded as a definite error. Jane Carson could only possibly be mother of Dr. John W's wife Susan Jones, who was said to have been married 3 times after marriage to Susan's father Col Isaac Jones. Rebecca's YOB derived from 1850 census is 1797, 3 yrs bef DOB above, which she gave herself in her bible.

18. Isaac Jones, Col of Canton, Mississippi, m. Eunice Griffin (Miller), b. 1820, GA,[9] d. 1915, Manatee FL. Isaac died ?Beech Grove, Coffee Co, TN. Said to have lived to age 95. Not found in extensive search of entire Madison Co, MS census for 1850 & 1860. A desc of different Jones also in Canton about 1850, who lives in Canton in 1995 & whose maiden name was Jones, searched court & other library records in Canton in 1995, also with no result. There is no Jones family in Madison Co in mid 1800's which can possibly be matched with Col Isaac's family.Possibly marriages in GA, MS, could be checked. Search attempted of TN mar on CD, but no res. Very difficult with such common name.

Griffin family data from Vella Handly's bible Ref # 81. Said to have lived to age 95. Possibly she is "Jane Carson" in 1880 census for Beech Grove TN in fam of Dr John W Templeton, incorrectly listed as his mother. "Jane" more likely Dr John W's wife Susan's mother, said to have mar. 3 times after mar to Col Isaac Jones. He also said to have lived to age 95. 22. Elisha Smith Marks b. 1 Nov 1807, Loudoun Co, VA, m. 23 Mar 1833, in Daviess Co, KY, Elizabeth Lashbrook, b. 9 Mar 1815, Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY, d. 1859, Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY. Elisha died 7 Aug 1851, Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY. Some researchers have said his year of death was 1854. Marriage on Automated Archives CD #229. Best proof known to date that his father was Isaiah is the 1850 census showing him living with his mother Elizabeth, age 66, born VA. The DAR has accepted this as of 1987 in the application of Mary E Marks Powers, a descendant of Elisha Smith's son Albert Smith Marks, Gov. of TN. Elisha's will has not been found. However, court records name his children.

23. Elizabeth Lashbrook b. 9 Mar 1815, Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY, m. 23 Mar 1833, in Daviess Co, KY, Elisha Smith Marks, b. 1 Nov 1807, Loudoun Co, VA, d. 7 Aug 1851, Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY. Elizabeth died 1859, Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY. Court records regarding a dispute over payments to the court appointed guardian of Elisha & Elizabeth's minor children prove the names of their children. Presumably Elizabeth, though still living, could not be legal guardian, since she was female.

32. John Templeton b. bef 1755, m. ca 1777, Martha Unknown, b. abt 1760, d. aft 18 May 1832, Iredell Co, NC. John died ca 11 Jul 1822, Iredell Co, NC. John and Martha Templeton were both born before 1755 according to the Iredell Co census for 1800, 1810, and 1820, which all list them as being over the age of forty-five years. However, other than these indirect dates, the earliest document we have on this Templeton family is a North Carolina State land warrant for Rowan Co, later Iredell Co, for 300 acres on the North Side of Main Rocky Creek to Robert Chambers, 14 July, 1788 found in Book 64 p. # 422. On 21 Jan 1781 Robert Chambers sold this warrant to John Booker Hoy and so endorsed the original warrant document. A few months later on 9 Sep 1781 John Booker Hoy resold this warrant to John Templeton, and likewise endorsed the same original grant document to this effect. This is the earliest provable date known of John, who later died intestate in 1822. When John died, his wife Martha received 50 acres as her dower, which was said to be 1/3 of John's land at time of his death. The balance of 259 acres was divided equally among his 6 children, as clearly shown in Ref 13 sketch which matches northern half of the map shown in grant survey made 11 Dec 1786 by Griffith Rutherford. John Templeton's 7 known land transactions appear impossible to reconcile, since they net out to only 89 acres in 1818. This disagrees with a figure of 800 acres on which he is recorded to have paid tax in 1815, and with the total of 309 acres inherited by his wife and 6 children in 1822, 50 acres for his wife's dower, and 259 acres divided between his children. Perhaps some deeds were not recorded, or the records were lost. John's original 300 acres first warranted to Robert Chambers in 1788, and purchased by John in 1781, was not surveyed until 1786, and was not actually granted to John Templeton until 1788. Finally it was recorded in Iredell Co deeds Bk A pg. 204 in Jan 1791. This process regarding John's original 300 acres took 13 years before being recorded. On 18 Feb 1792 John and Martha sold (Bk A pg 479) 150 acres of the original land and one of the witnesses was Thomas Templeton. Thomas, Robert, & William Templeton were close neighbors of John and Martha, and most researchers believe they must have been closely related to one another, though no relationship has been proven to date. On 18 Feb 1799, John Cowden sold 88.5 acres on North side of Rocky Creek to John Templeton. On 26 Dec 1799, Basil Prather sold 205 acres to John Templeton on waters of Little Dutchman's creek, joining William Prather, Thomas Prather, Benjamin Johnson, Francis Beggarly, & John Hendly, which included 1 acre for the meeting house and spring, part of a grant dated 25 Oct 1786. On 18 May 1801, John Templeton sold to Jeremiah Piles for 5 Pounds 4.5 acres on south side of Main Rocky Creek joining Leonard Dyson. Witnesses were William Mowen (Mowman), Jurat. Ingram A. Gill, deed recorded 11 Aug 1801. There were several other transfers of land during this period involving John and Martha either as buyers, sellers or witnesses. John Templeton had an impact on religion and the church. John Templeton was one of the first five trustees of Prather's Meeting House, the first Methodist Church in Iredell County, together with Zachariah Beall, his son Obadiah's father-in-law. Moss' Meeting House, (now Moss Methodist Chapel), is from the same period and now located on Mosswood Rd, off of Jennings Rd, Union Grove. This church was founded by William Moss sometime after 1800. William is thought (but not proven) to be the father-in-law of John Templeton's daughter Elizabeth who married John Moss. In the "Journal and Letters of Francis Asbury," (after leaving Wilkes county) "Tuesday 14, 1797 I preached at the church in the fork of the Yadkin on Isaiah XXXV 1-4. I had to ride eight miles in the rain to Templeton's". On his next visit his journal reads: "At Basil Prather's chapel, I gave my thoughts upon 'Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the Truth:' I fear this will be the case with many souls. Thursday, May 17, 1799. We came up the ridges, between Rocky and Hunting Creeks, eight miles to John Templeton's; over a path no sulky ever went before; my testimony was founded upon James IV, 2, 3." John Templeton left no will, however court documents (Ref # 13) regarding the settlement of his estate show he had 6 children: John Jr, James, Martha "Patsy" Templeton Cummings, Elizabeth Templeton Moss, Polly (Mary) Templeton Jones and Obadiah Templeton. In the sale of property in settlement of John's estate on 11 Jul 1822, James Templeton, John Templeton, Obadiah Templeton, the Widow Templeton and Jessee Cummings bought property. Note that son James eventually was agent selling land conveyed from John Templeton's estate to sisters Polly Jones, Patsy Cummings and Elizabeth Moss. See also Ref.s # 14, 17, 30, 39, 56.

She received 50 acres (1/3) of her husband's land at his death in 1822 as her dower. Her will dated 18 May 1832 leaves clothes etc to dtr Patsy Cummings, & to sons James & John Jr balance of $500. note received for selling 3 negroes to Peter Jones. "All the balance of my property of every description" she leaves to "whomsoever takes care of me in my last days." Land is not mentioned, so perhaps her 50 acres was already deeded to someone. Obadiah had left NC several years before & appears in 1830 Bedford Co TN Census.

46. John Lashbrook m. Ursula Colyar, b. ca 1792, on Nolichucky River, Washington Co TN, d. 1843, near Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY. John died bef 1835, Daviess Co, KY. Will 18 Apr 1833 mentions 7 children by name. Julia Ann found in court records of 1843 at death of Ursula as minor over age 14 needing guardian. There was also a sister Malinda named in court records after 1843, who presumably died before 1833 date of John's will, since she is not mentioned. There were 9 children altogether. Parents given by Michael Collier, who has done extensive research on this family. However they are not proven, nor location known, nor is John's time or place of birth.

47. Ursula Colyar b. ca 1792, on Nolichucky River, Washington Co TN, m. John Lashbrook, d. befor 1835, Daviess Co, KY. Ursula died 1843, near Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY. Ref #95 p 76 "Miss" Colyar. Ursula was almost certainly sister of Alexander Colyar who was father of "Col" Arthur S Colyar, of Franklin Co. Their father was William Colyer of Washington Co, TN, where Alex is found on tax list in 1814. William Sr died intestate 1819, & Alex was co-administrator of his estate. Gertrude Handly Woodruff letter of 2/9/96 said she was a Sherrill, but this seems impossible for many reasons. See ref # 111. They had 9 Children: Elizabeth, J Norris, James Wesley, Dorcas, Nancy, Malinda, Julia Ann.

DAR certified line of descent. His brother Isaiah was also a Capt in Revolution, wounded at Brandywine PA. Isaiah received 4000 acres of land in KY for his service, but he died single in 1785, possibly as result of his wounds, & left 1000 acres of the KY land to Elisha (see will of 1785, written day of his death). Capt Elisha died 1805 in VA, but another Elisha was in Henderson Co KY in 1830 to join a pension claim for Isaiah. If this is Elisha Smith, he must by his birthdate be a grandson of Capt Elisha.

Quite a lot is known about William Colyer Sr and his wife Ann/Nancy St Clair. They are thought to have come to Washington Co TN prior to 1787 and settled down to farm along the Nolichukey River. At the time TN was not yet a state, and the area was part of NC. He came possibly from Fauquier Co VA according to undocumented reports of other researchers. The time of their arrival is fixed by NC Land Grant #232 in Green Co Deed Book 1B, p. 151 (and also p. 270-1), 20 Sep 1787 when Andrew Sleeper received 250 acres on the North side of the Nolichukey River adjoining William Caliar. William Colyer himself received 4 different NC land grants along the Nolichukey River. First in Green Co Deed Book 1B p. 270, Grant # 2203 of 11 Jul 1788 for 130 acres adjoining land he bought from John Byrd & William Hogan. Second NC grant # 882 1788 William Colyer receives 200 acres in Wash Co on Bumpass Creek on South side of Nolichukey River. Thirdly NC land grant in TN # 903 in 1790 William Colyer receives 150 acres on Bumpass Creek on South side Nolichukey River. Fourth NC land grant in TN # 965 1790 William Colyer receives 200 acres in Washington Co on both sides Nolichukey River. Then on 16 Nov 1796 in Washington Co Deed Book 6, p.19, William Colyer buys 100 acres from Walter King, of which in same book p.16 he a week later he sells 62 acres to Jesse Bond & Walter King. Then Same book, p. 30, Sep & Nov 1796 William Colyer buys 175 acres from John England of Montgomery Co VA. These transactions over 8 years gives William a net of 893 acres on both sides of the Nolichukey River in Washington Co. It is reported that William Colyer earlier had a lead mine on the Bumpass Creek land, the production of which was used to make bullets used in the battle against the British at King's Mountain. If William indeed rendered significant service to the war effort, this might help explain why he received 4 NC land grants in the space of 2 years. William Sr is thought to have had 6 surviving children. In addition several secondary sources report that a couple of his children were killed by Indians. Of the 6 reported, only 3 can be said to be proven. Alex and William Jr were administrators for William Sr's estate when he died intestate, as recorded in Washington Co Inventory Bk 00 p. 410, recorded Oct 1819. John can be said to be proven by another land transaction to Alexander as a disbursement as part of the settlement of William Sr's estate. We know the most about Alexander from several detailed secondary sources about both Alexander and his best known son, Col Arthur St Clair Colyar. Biographical sketches of of A. S. Colyar relate that he lived in his father's cabin on the Nolichukey River until age 10 (ca 1928), when the cabin burned down. After that the family decided to move to Winchester, TN. Alexander had 12 children all born &/or raised in Winchester. We also have a secondary source stating Ursula Lashbrook's maiden name was "Miss Colyar, sister of Alexander Colyar." There are many records for Ursula Lashbrook in Davies Co, KY relating to the estate of her husband John, and later to her own estate. We have no record at all of one son of William's, Arthur St Clair Colyer, who would have been the uncle of the Col A S Colyar of Winchester. And finally we have only strong circumstantial evidence for Dorcas. Nonetheless, a picture emerges of a prosperous farmer and land speculator who lived at least 30 years along the Nolichukey River not far from present-day Greenville. Ref # 111 has details of Alexander who married Catherine Sherrill, daughter of George Davidson Sherrill.

Ref # 131 Moved to Lexington KY in 1793. Pilcher researchers disagree on Joshua's ancestry. Several LDS sources and others say his grandfather was Robert b. Wales who married Phoebe Chapman, & they had a son James who married also a Phoebe with maiden name Fielding, & these had 4 sons James Jr, Robert, Daniel, & Joshua. However, Catherine Avery in Ref 131 says his grandfather was Richard b. Wales who married unk & had Benjamin (Joshua's father), Robert, John, & Caleb. 160. James? Handly m. Unknown. James? died aft 1751, Cumberland Par, Lunenberg Co PA. Randall Handly ref # 108 reports a reference to a James Handley in vestry book of Cumberland Parish, Lunenberg Co PA in 1751, ordering him exempt from Parish levies, probably due to old age. There is no proof he was father of John or William. But for computer to chart John & William as provisional brothers, for which there is considerable circumstantial evidence, they need to be given a common parent. Only evidence that he might have been their father is that the name James is repeated at least 7 times among William's descendants.

161. Unknown m. James? Handly, d. aft 1751, Cumberland Par, Lunenberg Co PA.

176. John Marks, Rev b. 1716, ?Montgomery Co, PA, m. bef 5 Apr 1749, Uriah Ledyard, b. ca 1720, PA, d. aft 1788, Loudoun Co, VA. John died 3 Mar 1788, Loudoun Co, VA, buried: Short Hill Cemetery, Ketoctin Church. His gravestone at Ketoctin says he was age 72 at death, thus born 1716. John was baptized at the Montgomery Baptist Church in 1740 when he was age 24. It is recorded he spoke with a thick accent. The Montgomery Church was founded in 1719 by Welsh people, and the services were probably in Welsh. Thus it seems likely John Marks was either born in Wales, or to Welsh speaking immigrants. However, neither his place of birth or parents are known.

However, he was not a "knight," as the same expression in English denoted. It is said he was raised a vintner by trade. But he fled France abt age 17 to escape mob violence against Huguenots, so he could not have been a vintner long. The original French spelling of name is well documented by photocopy of original records of 16th Century. Ref # 103 p 11, & # 83.

Married (2) Pierre Chastain. Her mother was step dtr of Jacob Flournoy, who married (3) Magdalene Prodomme Verrueil widow of Moise Verrueil with whom she came to America on "Peter & Anthony" in 1700. Moise died in VA in 1701. Ref # 103 p 13. Jacob Flournoy m. (3) widow Magdalene Prodomme (Verrueil) 12 Dec 1703 in Manakin Town, King William Parish VA.

506. John James Dupuy, Capt b. 1698, prob Holland, m. 1728, Suzanne La Villain. John died 1775, VA.

507. Suzanne La Villain m. 1728, John James Dupuy, Capt, b. 1698, prob Holland, d. 1775, VA. DuPuy researchers speculate that her father was a close relative of her husband's mother, possibly her brother. If true, she & her husband would be first cousins. Also, her brother John Peter Jr m. her sister-in-law Phillipa. Thus the relationship between the descendants of these 2 couples is very complex. Ref.s # 83, 103, 104.

Was Rector of Walkern, Hertfordshire, but being an aggressive Royalist, he was ejected from his living in 1642. In 1647 he was pursued by Parliamentary officers and took refuge in a haymow, where he smothered or was smothered. ref # 33 p. 402.

7731. Anne Lovelace b. 1611, England, m. 1628, in England, John Gorsuch Rev, d. 1647, England. Anne died ca 1652, Lancaster Co, VA. A small number of American immigrants, perhaps 500-1000, are proven to have Royal and/or noble ancestors. They have been studied by many & Anne is one such. Since the ruling class of Europe was based on heredity for at least 1000 yrs, pedigree records were carefully kept by many, thus tracing ancestry to 1 noble usually means being able to connect to very, very many. References are not included for each of the following ancestors, but those given here apply to all. Ref.s # 32, 33, 34, 35, 67, 70, 94, & 109.

7754. ?Thomas Woodhouse m. Unknown. ?Thomas died 1655, James Town Island VA. Ref 113 p 28-9. There is no "hard" evidence as to which Woodhouse was the father of Elizabeth. Some have said Henry, who was Gov of Bermuda 1623-6 & later lived in Norfolk Co VA. Some have said Capt Henry Woodhouse, son of Henry Gov of Bermuda. However, there appear many circumstantial links between Thomas and Nicholas II. Thomas was nephew of Henry Gov of Bermuda, & 1st cousin to Capt Henry. Ref # 112 p 142 links this family with 11 more generations of the Bacon family, which I have included, but did not check.

Royal Ancestry of Anne Lovelace, First Part

Partial Royal Ancestry of Anne Lovelace Born 1611

1. Anne Lovelace b. 1611, England, m. 1628, in England, Reverend John Gorsuch, d. 1647, England. Anne died ca 1652, Lancaster Co, VA. A small number of American immigrants, perhaps 500-1000, are proven to have Royal and/or noble ancestors. They have been studied by many & Anne is one such. Since the ruling class of Europe was based on heredity for at least 1000 years, pedigree records were carefully kept by many, thus tracing ancestry to one noble usually means being able to connect to very, very many. References are not included for each of the following ancestors, but those given here apply to all. Ref.s # 32, 33, 34, 35, 67, 70, 94, & 109.

3 Generations of John & Martha Templeton's Descendants

John and Martha Templeton of Iredell Co, NC and Their Descendants

In the previous chapter, we saw that there are many families involved in one's ancestry, and that in the case of the Templeton family, there is a very great variation in the amount of information we have been able to obtain about these different families. In the case of the Templeton surname, the earliest record we have found is in Rowan County, North Carolina on 9 Sep 1781. This is the date on which John Templeton bought 300 acres of land from John Booker Hoy in that part of Rowan County, which shortly thereafter became Iredell County in 1788. A "Warrant" for this land located "On both sides of (main) Rocky Creek, including Sherrills ford" was first issued by the state of North Carolina to Robert Chambers on 14 Jul 1778, and was entered as number 642. A Warrant document was created by James Brandon, Entry Officer of Claims for Lands in the County of Rowan, and the surveyor of said county was "required as soon as may be to lay off and survey a Tract or Parcel of Land, containing three hundred acres, lying in the county aforesaid etc." However, Robert Chambers never took possession of this land, but instead sold his Warrant three years later on 21 Jan 1781 to John Booker Hoy by making the following handwritten endorsement on the original Warrant document: "I do assign my rights and title or claim of the within warrant from me & my Heirs unto John Booker Hoy It being for value Rec'd of him. In witness whareof I have hereunto set my hand this 21 day of January 1781." Nine months later John Booker Hoy made the identical handwritten endorsement on the same original Warrant Document, assigning his Rights and Title to John Templeton for value received of him on 9 Sep 1781. This is the earliest provable date known of this John Templeton. Though the Warrant for the land was issued in 1778 and sold three years later to John Templeton, it was not actually surveyed until 11 Dec 1786 by Griffith Rutherford. The process by which the state granted land was intentionally a lengthy one involving several steps. This process first of all allowed time for other claimants to hear that a claim had been made and possibly dispute it, and also allowed the state to collect fees at several different stages. Once a Warrant was issued, the surveyor was ordered to survey it, and once the survey was accomplished a grant could be issued. John Templeton was issued grant number 1727 on 11 Jul 1788, based upon the original Warrant issued to Robert Chambers ten years previously. This grant was finally recorded on 20 Jan 1791 in Iredell Co Deed Book A, page 204. Theoretically, the law allowed two years to record a state grant in the county where the land was located. John Templeton took an additional six months. However, Iredell had just become a new county, and perhaps the courthouse was not even completed. The whole process took thirteen years from the date of the original Warrant before John Templeton recorded the first deed for this land. This explains why, although the land was granted to John Templeton, the original Warrant for it was issued to someone else. Such delays were not unusual in the frontier where many new parcels were being warranted, granted, sold, resold, surveyed, and so forth. Sometimes there was not even a local place where land could be registered. The town of Statesville was not established until 1790. Sometime thereafter the local courthouse was established there, which was about nine miles from John Templeton's land.

This extreme slowness in recording deeds, plus the liklihood that some land may not even have been recorded, or the records subsequently lost makes detailed analysis of John's subsequent land transactions confusing. Records of seven land transactions for John Templeton survive, however these do not seem to add up. In 1791 John sold what appears to be half of his original 300 acre grant to Richard Piles, only a year after recording it. In this transaction recorded in Iredell Co Deed Book A, page 479, on 18 Feb 1792, John sold 150 acres south of Main Rocky Creek and on Trumpet Branch, joining Cowden, and part of the original 1778 grant. Witnesses were Jeremiah Piles, Thomas Templeton, and James Welch. Thomas, Robert, and William Templeton were close neighbors of John and Martha, and most researchers believe they must have been closely related to one another, though no relationship has been proven to date. On 18 Feb 1799, as recorded in Iredell Co Deed Book C, page 421, John Templeton bought from John Cowden 88.5 acres on the North side of Rocky Creek. On 26 Dec 1799, as recorded in Iredell Co Deed Book D, page 141, John Templeton bought from Basil Prather 205 acres, including 1 acre for the meeting house and spring, on waters of Little Dutchman's creek, joining William Prather, Thomas Prather, Benjamin Johnson, Francis Beggarly and John Hendly, part of a grant dated 25 Oct 1786. On 18 May 1801, as recorded in Iredell Co Deed Book D, page 275 John Templeton sold 4.5 acres on South side of Main Rocky Creek joining Leonard Dyson to Jeremiah Piles for five Pounds, witnessed by William Mowen (Mowman), Jurat, Ingram A. Gill, recorded 11 Aug 1801. There are three other land sales recorded for John Templeton, including a sale of 200 acres to his son James, and several additional records in which John appears as witness for other transactions. However, all of these seven known transactions net out to only 89 acres, whereas John paid taxes in 1815 on 800 acres, and when he died in 1822, he left 309 acres to be divided between his wife and six children. The available land records are inadequate to explain either the tax record or the inheritance.

When John died intestate in 1822, his wife Martha received 50 acres as her dower, which was said to be one third of John's land at the time of his death. However, an additional 259 acres was divided approximately equally among his six children, as clearly shown in the surviving 1822 sketch[13] of the subdivision, which matches the map shown in the grant survey made 11 Dec 1786 by Griffith Rutherford, surveyor. Although these divisions are clearly shown in the document as being approximately equal, and the approximate locations of the six subdivided parcels is shown, it is not definite from the document whether the numbers shown are in units of acres, though this seems likely. That they were acres would seem to make approximate sense from the original Rutherford survey drawing. Taking into account these 259 acres plus the 50 received by widow Martha as her dower, John seems to have left a total of 309 acres. The 259 acres if equally divided yields about 43 acres average to each of his six children, which seems to be what they did receive, as reflected in later records. James Templeton seems to have bought 47 1/4 acres in 1844, which his sister Martha Cummings inherited from their father's lands, and in 1857 he acted as agent for another of his sisters, Mary Jones, in the sale of 42 acres inherited from their father's lands.[11] Although John Templeton left no will, and the exact size of the subdivisions is in some doubt, the above document[13] regarding the division of his land shows he had six surviving children: John Jr., James, Martha "Patsy" Templeton Cummings, Elizabeth Templeton Moss, Mary "Polly" Templeton Jones, and Obediah Templeton. Also we have a four page document regarding the estate sale of his other property dated 11 Jul 1822, and James Templeton, John Templeton, Obadiah Templeton, the Widow Templeton and Jessee Cummings bought property. James Templeton and Obadiah Templeton were Administrators of this sale and signed a detailed inventory and accounting of the sale which brought a total of $3,243.87[14, 17, 30, 39, 56]

Further proof for some of John and Martha's children is provided by widow Martha Templeton's will dated 18 May 1832. She leaves clothes and other belongings to daughter Patsy Cummings, and to sons James and John the balance of a $500. note received for the selling of three Negroes to Peter Jones. "All the balance of my property of every description" she leaves to "whomsoever takes care of me in my last days." Land is not mentioned in her will, so presumably she had already disposed of the 50 acres received as her dower in 1822. Obadiah had left NC several years before, probably 1828, and by 1830 already had appeared in the Bedford Co, TN Census.

John Templeton was a church leader in his community and was one of the first five "trustees" to establish a church there in 1800 called Prather's Meeting House, together with Zachariah Beall, his son Obadiah's wife's grandfather, Benjamin Johnson, Leonard Roby, and Truman Hilton. This was the first Methodist Church in the County, and was built on one acre of land sold to the five trustees by Basil Prather for five shillings, thought to have been a nominal sum. There were four subsequent sales of land to the church over the next forty-three years, the second and fourth of which were from land belonging to Jesse Cummings, John Templeton's son-in-law. The church 's name was later changed to Mount Bethel United Methodist Church sometime before the fifth land acquisition in 1843. The second church building stood very close to the site of the original meeting house and was probably built around 1843. This second church was also subsequently replaced by a larger building completed in 1960, also very close to the original site.[39] A traveling preacher, Francis Asbury, wrote in his Journal and Letters that "After leaving Wilkes county, Tuesday 14, 1797, I preached at the church in the fork of the Yadkin on Isaiah xxxv 1-4. I had to ride eight miles in the rain to Templetons." On his next visit his journal reads: "At Basil Prather's chapel, I gave my thoughts upon 'Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the Truth:' I fear this will be the case with many souls. Thursday, 17 (1799). We came up the ridges, between Rocky and Hunting Creeks, eight miles to John Templeton's; over a path no sulky ever went before; my testimony was founded upon James iv, 2,3." [11]

From all of the above it is clear that John Templeton was established in Rowan County after 1781 by his purchase of Robert Chambers' 1778 land grant in that part of Rowan County which became Iredell County in 1788. In 1791 his first deed is recorded, and thereafter we find several additional records for John Templeton buying and selling land in and around his original 300 acres on main Rocky Creek in North Iredell County, being a leader in establishing a church there, witnessing other people's land transactions, and then dying in 1822, leaving more records pertaining to his wife's dower, the sale of his property, and the division of his land among six children. Naturally all previous researchers have wanted to know more about where he came from, and who his ancestors were. In attempting to answer this question these researchers first looked at other Templeton families in the region hoping to establish a connection to one of these families.

The earliest Templeton known to have been in North Carolina was a David Templeton, who was granted land in 1752, according to Raleigh, NC land records. This David died in 1761. Another early Templeton in NC was James Templeton, who is first recorded in NC in a survey for John Davidson or Davison in the Granville District dated 26 Nov 1748, in which James Templeton and George Davidson were noted as carrying the survey chains, which presumably were used to lay off exact measures of land. Five years later a survey was done for James Templeton for 400 acres in Rowan County on Davidson's Creek, dated 6 Feb 1753. This James is somewhat unusual among early Southern Templetons because some few records do exist for him in Lancaster Co, PA prior to his acquisitions in North Carolina. The 1748 survey shows that he traveled quite early with John Davidson to Rowan Co to the area that was later named after the same John Davidson, and records also exist in Lancaster Co, PA for Davidson. This part of Rowan county later fell in Southern Iredell Co after 1788. One of the many groups of Templetons in the Carolinas grew from this early beginning. In 1776 James Templeton deeded 200 acres of his original grant to George Templeton for 5 Pounds, which was thought to be a token sum, this George being supposed to be one of James' younger sons. In 1783 James deeded the other 200 acres to Joseph Templeton for the same sum, who was likewise thought to be his son. A third son of James was probably the John Templeton who married Margaret Graham prior to Aug 1767, who is mentioned further below, because some researchers have speculated without any evidence that he might have been the father of John Sr. of North Iredell Co. Prior to 1995 no record had ever been found linking the two Templeton groups in the north and south of Iredell Co., who in fact lived some thirty miles apart, a significant distance at the time considering the absence of roads. However, in 1995 a genealogist named Jo White Linn, who had previously published several important books of NC records, published "Rowan Co NC Tax Lists 1757-1800" (see Chapter 8).[135] In this book is found a tax list for Capt. Davison's district (Southern Iredell Co), which includes the name of Thomas Templeton. This is significant because we only know of one Thomas Templeton, and he had previously been associated with the North Iredell Co. group. However, by comparing this tax list and fragments of two other lists containing fifteen other men from south Iredell Co, it appears quite definite that Thomas Templeton was living in South Iredell Co in 1782, whereas he witnessed a deed of John Sr. and Martha Templeton ten years later in 1792 in North Iredell Co., and also was bondsman for the marriage of Robert Templeton to Anny Wells in North Iredell Co sometime before that. Thus, the fact that Thomas lived for a time in both the north and south of Iredell Co appears the only known link to date between the two groups. Thomas Templeton was one of only two men from North Carolina surnamed Templeton to have fought in the Revolution on the revolutionary side. He enlisted in 1777 as a sergeant in Brevard's Company of the 9th North Carolina Regiment, though his place of residence at the time of his enlistment in 1777 is not known. This has given rise to some confusion, because as a reward for his service he received military land Warrant # 1643 for 428 acres for thirty-six months service, dated 30 Mar 1785, which he deeded to J. Malloy. The second man from NC named Templeton who fought was a drummer named William Templeton, who served eighty-four months, but was killed. The heirs of the drummer William Templeton received military land Warrant # 2624 for 1000 acres, which they sold to John Donalson. The confusion arises because the name on this Warrant sold to John Donalson is also Thomas Templeton, drummer. This appears to have been a clerk's error since a later court record dated 13 Aug 1797 relating to this land correctly gives the name of William (not Thomas) Templeton. Several records prove that Sgt. Thomas survived the war and later married Mary Wigfield in Lincoln Co, NC where they are found on the 1800 census. Subsequently they moved to Posey Co, IN where Thomas is found on the 1820 census. [136]

A detailed search of Thomas Templeton's military records was conducted at the National Archives in the hope of finding a pension record, since such records usually contain considerable detail. It was hoped such a record might show his place of birth or origin, which might lead to discovery of the origin of one or more of the other three Northern Iredell Co Templetons, namely John Sr., Robert, or William. The Act of Congress establishing pensions for Revolutionary War veterans was not passed until 1825. Not only had many veterans died by this time, but many records had been lost, so veterans claiming a pension had to go through a detailed court proceeding to establish their eligibility. Unfortunately, no pension file exists for Thomas. There was only one pension file for anyone named Templeton, and this was for a Robert Templeton born in Ireland, who first lived in Laurens Co, South Carolina, and who later went to Indiana about 1800 and settled there permanently.

Despite his possible origin in South Iredell Co, Thomas is established by several records in north Iredell Co by 1792, and thus many have thought he might have been a close relative of John Sr. Likewise there is a Robert Templeton living close to John Sr in north Iredell Co who appears on the 1790 census. He is the Robert who married Anny Wells for whom Thomas Templeton was bondsman. This Robert should not be confused with the southern Iredell Robert for whom a martriage bond is found for a marriage to Mary Black. The southern Robert almost certainly married Mary Black, although the bond alone is not proof of this. The Robert in north Iredell Co bought 500 acres of land on the south side of Main Rocky Creek in 1804. The approximate ages of Thomas and Robert can be construed from census and other records, and they appear to be of an age to have been posssible siblings of John Sr., though no proof of this or any other relationship has been found, other than that they appear in several records together: Thomas witnessed John Sr.'s deed and was bondsman for Robert's marriage. The fourth possibly related Templeton in the north of Iredell Co was William, who wirnessed a deed on 29 Apr 1786. This means this William was at least age fourteen in 1886, possibly much older. We know very little of this William. Jo White Linn's 1995 book of Rowan Co Tax lists contains an entry for John Sr for 1787 on Capt. Joseph Nichol's tax list showing he paid tax on two white males between ages of twenty-one and sixty. One would have been John Sr himself. The other could have been a hired hand not even a member of the family. But he might also have been an elder son of John and Martha, who might have died before his father, and we would have no knowledge of him through inheritance. If William was indeed only fourteen or fifteen in 1786, he might possibly have been such an elder son of John and Martha, or a sibling, or a more distant relative, or unrelated. All we know is that the next record for a William in North Iredell Co is that on 30 Apr 1801, a William Templeton buys 800 acres of land on waters of Rocky Creek. However, there is no deed for his selling this land, nor is he found in wills or estate papers. [136]

Possible Origins of John and Martha Templeton of North Iredell Co, NC

Many researchers appear to have taken at least a cursory look at some other contemporary Templeton families in the Carolinas. However, only Lois Schneider and Ruth Cohlmia appear to have looked extensively at other families. Indeed Ruth Cohlmia has tried to look systematically at all Templeton families in the Carolinas. Ruth is an experienced and meticulous researcher, and her Templeton studies extending over more than two decades have attempted to compile all that is known about seventeen early Templeton heads of households in the Carolinas. This includes James in NC 1748 and six to eight of his children and many grandchildren; David died NC 1761 and six of his children and many grandchildren; three Johns; three Roberts; a Thomas; a William; an Unknown; and seven "other" James, some of whom may be multiple references to the same James. This serves to illustrate the difficulty of establishing definite genealogical connections between Templetons in the Carolinas in the 18th Century, and also shows the amount of effort that researchers have expended in attempting to establish the parentage of various early American Templetons. However, as mentioned above, so far the parentage of John Sr. of Rocky Creek, North Iredell Co has not been established. Ruth Cohlmia's 1996 update to her study of NC Templetons prior to 1800 appears in its entirety in the next chapter. [17, 136]

Several Templeton researchers in the past have repeatedly advanced the theory that the father of the above John Templeton of North Iredell Co NC may have been John Templeton, who died before 1788 and who married Margaret Graham of Mecklenburg Co, NC. This couple had at least six known children, including a son named John. However, a good deal is known about this John, and the speculation that he and John Sr. of North Iredell Co were the same seems to ignore several established facts about John and Margaret's son John. First, in 1790, he was living with his mother in York Co, South Carolina, after the death of his father, and that he was in York Co, South Carolina in 1804 when he sold his father's land in Iredell Co. Secondly, he married Nancy Hawkins and died and was buried in White Co, TN. Thus, all those records found to date prove that this John was not the same man as John Sr. of North Iredell Co. [11, 14, 16, 136]

It seems wiser not to speculate about John Sr's parents, since many people unfamiliar with genealogical methods are inclined to perpetuate speculations, which have no likely basis in fact. We have seen above how even in frontier circumstances, certain records and documents were kept, especially those having to do with ownership of property and the passing on of that property through inheritance. Researchers have been able to gather together quite a few details of the existence of the John Templeton family during its first thirty years on Main Rocky Creek in North Iredell County. People often leave behind various traces of their having existed in a particular time and place. Unfortunately such traces are often scanty, and when people move from place to place the thread connecting such traces can be broken, especially when a particular surname or given name or both are common and occur frequently, as was true among the various Templeton families, most of which had at least one John and one James. A researcher needs not just one, but often several clues in order to be able to establish beyond reasonable doubt that a man of a particular name in one place is in fact the same man in a different place, and not two entirely different men of the same name. Genealogists use various methods to attempt to discover such links. One such method is to try to catalog systematically all known families and individuals of the same surname in a given area and then to try to discover whether any individuals are left unaccounted for. This is what Ruth Cohlmia attempted to do, but without success regarding some individuals such as John Sr. of North Iredell Co.

Since many other Templeton families existed in the Carolinas, including many before 1781, it was natural for researchers of the North Iredell Templeton family to first try to explore a possible connection to one of these other families. However, many have looked for such a connection and not found one, which might of course simply be due to the scarcity of early records. That this John was connected with other Templetons already in America before him is only one of several possible scenarios, which others have so far not mentioned in any detail. People have focused to a great extent on what seemed to be happening in the tiny microcosm of early Iredell County, while paying almost no attention to what was happening in the vastly wider world of Colonial America. An excellent study of early Iredell Co by the Genealogical Society of Iredell Co[39] tells us certain important facts about this region. It was almost totally unsettled prior to 1750. In this history is included a very relevant map, the top portion of which extends to within a mile of John Templeton's land on Main Rocky Creek, at the juncture of Trumpet Branch, and which covers an area about twenty-two miles square or four hundred eighty-four square miles. This map is dated 1773 and made by William Sharpe Esq in an attempt to show all those families belonging to the "Fourth Creek Congregation." As such, it does not necessarily show every family in that area at the time. However, it is the best existing source, incomplete as it may be, for getting a good idea of the extent of settlement at the time. Lois Schneider has observed that to her knowledge, the vast majority, perhaps as much as ninty-seven percent, of the early settlers in the Iredell Co region were Scottish-Irish Presbyterians, so it is likely that most would have belonged to the congregation. From this map we learn that in the twenty-three years following the first exploration only one hundred ninety-six families had settled in this entire region. Neighbors lived one, two, or three miles apart, and some areas still had no habitations at all. A family of Sherrills were apparently among the very first settlers of this region, thought to have arrived on the Catawba River about 1747 at a place later named for them as Sherrills' Ford. They are thought to have reached this place via a roundabout route partially dictated by a previous path known as the Indian Trading Path. Once having decided to settle at Sherrills' Ford on the Catawba, they apparently decided to open a new, more direct route back to the far more settled parts of western Virginia and Pennsylvania. This path became known as "Sherrills'" Path and had a lasting impact on the early development of the region, since it was used by most early settlers.

The exact route of Sherrills' Path can only be partially reconstructed by references to it in the early Granville Land Grants issued by the British land office of Lord Granville who was the authority for issuing land grants prior to the American Revolution. Actually the Granville land office issued no grants after Lord Granville's death in 1763, so there was a hiatus of more than a decade before new grants were again issued, after which they were issued by the Rowan County Land Office of the State of North Carolina. This fact is reflected in Sharpe's 1773 map, which shows many people living on land for which they did not have a grant. By marking several grants known to mention Sherrils Path on the map and connecting them, it is possible to obtain a fairly accurate idea of the probable route of Sherrills Path. In fact, the 1778 North Carolina State grant to Robert Chambers purchased by John Templeton includes specific mention of Sherrills' Ford of (main) Rocky Creek. From this source and its maps we get a picture of very gradual settlement of a back woods region, which was still only very sparsely settled by 1773, and for which access was quite limited to one main, recently opened route of travel. There appear to have been no earlier major routes of travel to this part of North Carolina from other parts of North or South Carolina prior to 1773, and certainly not prior to 1747. Certainly travel was possible, but the region was almost devoid of settlement prior to 1750, and travel would have been quite difficult. It appears unlikely that there would have been very much communication between families living in different settled parts of the region separated by twenty-five to thirty miles of relative wilderness, let alone with Templeton families much further apart. The region is criss-crossed with many rivers and streams, which presented considerable obstacles to travel, let alone commerce, as evidenced by the fact that routes grew up around places where these obstacles could be crossed, usually being named as the Ford of the family who owned the adjacent land.

Another well-known and well-researched book on the early history of North Carolina is called "Carolina Cradle" by Robert Ramsey, published by the University of North Carolina Press. This book appears to be extensively documented, making use of all such records pertaining to the region that have survived. Ramsey states that in 1749 the governor granted land to eighty different persons for land lying in the western part of Lord Granville's domain west of the Peedee or Yadkin River, and that the next year an additional eighty-eight land grant applications were made. Of these one hundred sixty-eight petitions, thirty were made by known inhabitants of the region, which later became Iredell Co. Though many of these grants were to speculators who had not gone to the region, or to others hoping to emigrate to the region in future, the sum total of all such extant records is sufficient to identify "conservatively" eighty-two persons who were established in this region between the Yadkin and Catawba Rivers prior to the end of 1751. Although records do not establish who among these were the first to settle, Ramsey lists all of these by name, including George Davidson Jr. who gave his name to Davidson's Creek, and David Templeton and James Templeton of the Templeton family, who traveled to the region with Davidson from Lancaster Co. PA, where this David Templeton had been Tax Collector for Harmony Ridge in Lancaster Co in 1742. This summary here necessarily excludes much detail regarding this complex first wave of settlement in the area. As mentioned above, John Davidson made an early survey in 1748 upon which his grant of 650 acres was based, leading the way for the aforementioned James Templeton from Lancaster, PA, doubtless a close relative of David Templeton. So both these Templetons were actually in the region by 1748, and James Templeton ended up with Land adjoining John and George Davidson. John Davidson apparently died in 1749 on the Creek which bears his name, and the grant based upon the survey was awarded to John's brother, George Davidson. David Templeton's land was on Coddle Creek, six miles to the East. Thus, extensive evidence exists that David and James Templeton, probably close relatives, came to the region that later became Southern Iredell Co from Lancaster Co, PA at least by 1749, and obtained land close to one another in the Davidson Creek region. On the other hand, Obadiah Templeton's father John did not obtain his first land in an entirely different part of Iredell County until thirty years later in 1781, and to date no connection between these two groups has been shown in records, except for Thomas appearing in the south of Iredell Co on one 1782 tax list.

For a further understanding of the possible origins of John Templeton we must now consider the broader events in Colonial America at the time, which were dramatic. An historian, Bernard Bailyn, published a prize-winning book in 1986 called "Voyagers To The West," and partially subtitled "The Peopling of America on The Eve of The Revolution." This study focuses specifically on the dramatic surge in emmigration from Europe to America in the fifteen year period from 1760 to 1775, with emphasis specifically on emmigration from Great Britain. The book explains that there was a gigantic surge of immigration in the American colonies in this fifteen year period, and that a great part of the immigrants traveled directly to frontier areas such as northern NC in search of cheap lands. To put this in crude perspective, Bailyn estimated that the European population in the Colonies had grown in the one hundred fifty years prior to 1760 to approximately seven hundred thousand, whereas an additional two hundred twenty-one thousand Europeans are estimated to have arrived between 1760 and 1775, equivalent to ten percent of the entire population of British North America as of 1775. Of the new immigrants, forty thousand are thought to have been Scots, equivalent to three percent of the entire population of Scotland in 1760, and an additional fifty-five thousand are thought to have been Irish, equivalent to slightly more than two percent of the entire Irish population in 1760. In the period immediately prior to John Templeton purchasing his first 300 acres in Iredell Co, NC in 1781, there was an extraordinary surge of Scottish and Irish immigration, part of which was specifically concentrated in the NC frontier area. The Scottish and Irish immigrants to NC arrived primarily at two ports, Philadelphia and Wilmington, and travelled by very different routes. Bailyn's detailed, well-documented account of the immigration into this area described it as a "flood." So it seems quite possible that John Templeton may have been a part of this "flood." Bernard Bailyn writes:

> "A veritable tumult of migrants was pouring Southwest out of Pennsylvania, through the Cumberland Valley and its parent valley system, The Great Valley of the Appalachians, into western Virginia, into northwestern North Carolina, and into the eastern fringes of Tennessee. The main route of access through these connected backcountry valleys was the Great Wagon Road, a still crude, rock-strewn, occasionally swampy expansion of an ancient Indian trail, which by 1770 extended 800 miles from Philadelphia to Augusta, Georgia. It passed westward through Lancaster and York Pennsylvania, then turned south through western Maryland, the Shenandoah Valley and southern Virginia, then through central North Carolina . . . . Through this corridor passed thousands of heavily loaded covered wagons, some pulled by as many as six horses or oxen; homemade "carriages" whose heavy, clumsy wheels were cross-section segments of tree trunks; and above all trains of packhorses accompanied by family members on foot and by farm animals roped together or kept in small groups by snapping dogs or flicking whips."

How many thousands of migrants flocked through this heavily traveled route of expansion in the fifteen years after 1760 is not known. What is known is that by the late 1750s, even before the major migrations of the 1760s, over 2000 settlers were passing south every year through the Shenandoah Valley -- these in excess of the new arrivals who settled permanently in the valley. By 1776 the Shenandoah had a population of 35,000; and Virginia's entire western borderland (the Great Valley together with the southwestern Piedmont) contained more than twice that many settlers. In the 1760s the population of the whole of southwestern Virginia was growing at the rate of 9% a year, hence doubling every eight years, and the expansion of settled land was equally swift.

But while the population of western Virginia grew continuously through this period and more unworked land was brought under cultivation, most of that colony had at least been explored before 1763 and thinly settled. That was not true of North Carolina. There the rush into new, altogether unsettled and little-known territory was equivalent to the opening of northern New England and New York and southwestern Pennsylvania. The inflow of immigrants to North Carolina seeking parcels of fresh land seemed to contemporaries to be a stempede. One observer noted that between January and October 1755, 5000 migrants crossed the James River in Southern Virginia heading for North Carolina, and that the numbers were increasing daily. In 1763 Benjamin Franklin estimated that in the previous three years 10,000 families had migrated to North Carolinia from Pennsylvania alone -- a guess, to be sure, but roughly substaniated by overall population figures and by the extent of new land opened to cultivation. In 1766 an observer in Salisbury, North Carolina, which like Fort Pitt was strategically located athwart major westward routes, reported that 1000 wagons rumbled through the town en route to the west in the autumn and winter months alone. Between 1730 and 1750 the colony's population had doubled, from approximately 35,000 to approximately 70,000; by 1770 it more than doubled once again, reaching a figure between 175,000 and 185,000.

Some of the newcomers to North Carolina moved in through the Wagon Road into the back country; others traveled down the east coast and then swung west into the interior; still others moved north from South Carolina along the Catawba River, then overland to Salisbury. But the route most favored by immigrants from abroad, especially the Scots, was inland from the port of Wilmington in the colony's far south, northwestward for approximately a hundred miles along the Cape Fear River to the trading and transfer center of Cross Creek (the modern Fayetteville), from which a network of lesser roads led out into a scattering of swiftly growing settlements close to the South Carolina border. As a result of these population movements the colony's settlements expanded swiftly after 1760 in three main regions: in the far west, from Salisbury and the Wagon Road west to the Appalachian barrier; in the east, inland from the coast toward the still largely unsettled center of the colony; and in the south-central region, in an arc focused on Cross Creek, swinging to the south Carolina Border.[100]

Harrison wrote, "to live independent," the possible losses, as they began the trek to remote points on the inland arc, could be total, absolute, beyond all possibility of recovery. Why did they take these extraordinary risks when others in the same situation did not? What drove them out, or drew them away? What rootage had they had in the land of their birth? And what was the process of their relocation in these inland territories? . . . . What in the end was the cost of the great move -- the yield and the gain? . . . . None of these questions can be fully answered. For these voyagers were ordinary and obscure people, part of the mass population in motion throughout Europe and America in these years. But though records of their lives are scattered and incomplete, some careers can be traced through the Register of 1773-1776, back into origins and forward into destinies. For each of the main regions into which the provincial migrants from the north of Britain moved, documents survive that supplement the Register's listings and allow glimpses of individual lives in transit, of family sagas, and of the entrepreneurial efforts of particular organizers of emmigration and resettlement. These scenes, these tracings of careers and passages of careers, though discontinuous and at times fragmentary, are vivid and full of the strange coloration of a distant reality."[100a]

This last poetic paragraph is from Bernard Bailyn's introduction to the last third of his book in which he attempts to bring detail to the broader picture he has been painting in the beginning of the book. He does this by means of several detailed case histories of immigrants to different parts of America. Bailyn's Chapter 14 is a forty-six page "saga" of the attempt of one Scotsman, James Hogg, to organize the resettlement of two hundred and eighty Scottish Highlanders to the back country of North Carolina. It describes the traveling conditions on board ship, the wreck of their charter vessel, the "Bachelor," shortly after their departure from Thurso, the loss of a dozen lives on board ship, mostly children and old people, the outbreak of smallpox on board, the many lost months as they attempted to get back to Scotland, the loss of all their money, the ensuing legal wranglings with the shipowners to recover their passage money so that they might continue, the many frustrations of their dreams, the eventual arrival of James Hogg in North Carolina via the port of Wilmington, NC in early fall of 1774, and of his eventual success and prosperity in America. This fascinating and moving account is highly recommended to anyone of Southern Scottish-Irish ancestry. However, only a few details are directly relevant to our inquiry regarding the origins of John Templeton.

The most interesting aspect of James Hogg's story for us is that he arrived only seven years before John Templeton bought his first land, and he did not travel eight hundred miles down the Great Wagon Road from Philadelphia. Other accounts of the settlement of North Carolina such as "Carolina Cradle" give the impression that there was predominantly a very slow trickle trekking down by path from Pennsylvania. However, according to Bailyn this is not a realistic picture of what was happening in North Carolina between 1775 and 1780. Bailyn describes in detail the arrival of James Hogg and family in the NC port of Wilmington in 1774, after which he reached Cross Creek (Fayetteville) only one hundred miles from Wilmington in just a few weeks, presumably having traveled there with his whole family and goods by wagon. Bailyn emphasizes how rapidly Hogg was able to progress to Cross Creek. In Cross Creek James Hogg stopped to establish a store, but even so he continued on within probably less than two months to Hillsborough, seventy miles north. From Hillsborough he would have been only about one hundred miles east of John Templeton's tract in what was then still Rowan Co. So in the 1770s a slow eight hundred mile trek was not required to reach this area. Rather one or two men traveling alone, perhaps traveling to meet relatives with whom they had had prior correspondence, could very likely have traveled by horseback from Wilmington to north Rowan (Iredell) Co in less than two weeks, a distance of only about two hundred and seventy miles, even taking the roundabout route way north by Hillsborough. This would only have been about twenty miles per day, and there were apparently good wagon roads at least as far as Hillsborough. Perhaps there were more direct routes to Rowan Co from Cross Creek. But the conclusion is inescapable that the 1750 migration path from Lancaster Co followed by James & David Templeton and John Davidson was quite irrelevant to European immigrants arriving thirty years later. Bailyn pays more attention to numbers for this period and this region than any other writers found during this research. And he seems to have a great familiarity with British sources. He has made a careful numerical analysis of a British study of the period called the Register, by means of which the British government was attempting to document what appeared to them as an alarmingly sudden population drain, especially from Scotland. Apparently no one had previously studied this source closely, as Bailyn has, using it to try to estimate more accurately the population flows, and to tell where specifically in Britain the people where coming from, how they traveled, and where they went. He is exceedingly convincing in his discussion of the concentrated flow between Scotland and interior North Carolina.

"The connection between Scotland, especially the Highlands, and the remote borderland of North Carolina had been formed almost half a century before, in the early years of the administration of Governor Gabriel Johnston (1734-1752). A Scot himself, Johnston had promoted immigration into the colony from all sources, had sponsored legislation to encourage settlement, and had stimulated especially the immigration of his own countrymen after the upheaval of 1745. And he helped redirect the geography of settlement. Avoiding the dangerous sand reefs that formed natural barriers to the northern sounds behind which the original settlements clustered, the immigrant traffic of Johnston's time and after entered the colony in the south, through the Cape Fear River. The arriving vessels had no reefs to contend with, and could sail directly to a key port of entry, Wilmington, sixteen miles inland, where the voyagers could easily transfer to long boats, lighters, and large canoes to move slowly inland. . .

How many Highlanders entered this inner region, which became Cumberland Co, after the first large contingent arrived from Argyllshire in 1739 is not known. One estimate of a total Highland community of 12,000 in the Upper Cape Fear region in 1776, is probably low, especially in view of the repeated reports of large numbers of sailings in the 1760's and '70s. But the geographical concentration of the Highland population at the time of Hogg's involvement is clearly indicated in the location of 1,003 individual land grants and purchases secured by Highlanders between 1733 and 1775. [The Highlanders comprised perhaps half of the population in the region, and were] the most distinctive and numerous community in the region, and their contacts with their home communities, maintained with extraordinary persistence, kept their ethnic identity alive and the recruitment of their fellow countrymen continuous.

How active, how vital and effective, this communication between inland North Carolina and the Scottish Highlands remained through all these years can be illustrated in a hundred ways -- in letters and notices printed in Scottish newspapers, in the communications of officials on both sides of the ocean, in local records, above all in family correspondences maintained for decades by members of families divided between the two continents. Such transatlantic networks of communication were common in the eighteenth century, and were well known to everyone familiar with the process of emigration."[100]

Viewed from this perspective, we can see the settlement of northwestern North Carolina in the 1770s not as the haphazard movement of small bands of isolated mavericks and adventurers, but rather as part of an accelerating movement of population with strong lines of communication, and with distinct geographical and ethnic origins and objectives. Scottish Highlanders had apparently been traveling to the backcountry of North Carolina for at least forty years before John Templeton bought his first land in 1781, and the existence of an extensive Scottish community in North Carolina was widely known back in Scotland. If John Templeton was a new immigrant to America, his arrival in North Carolina would not have been at all accidental. At least twelve thousand other Scots had come before him according to Bailyn. Of course, having made the case for the possibility, or even the likelihood of John being a recent immigrant, we must hasten to add that we still have no idea at all whether he would have been coming directly from Scotland. The greatest concentration of Templetons in Scotland today seems to be in Ayrshire, which is the Lowlands, not the Highlands. Moreover other Templeton immigrants are known to have come from Ireland, not Scotland at all. Their families very likely came from Scotland originally, but they may have lived in Ireland for a generation or more before immigrating to America. Furthermore, information about the Irish immigrants is even scantier than for most other immigrants from Britain at the time, because the Register of Emigrants of 1773-1776 did not include immigrants from Irish ports, but only from seventy-two ports in England and Scotland. This recording of all British emigrants during this three year period apparently grew out of a concern in the British Government with the dramatic increase in emigration, especially from Scotland. The data was ordered to be gathered by the British Treasury Office, and thereafter responsibility for collecting the data fell to the British Customs Board. While far from perfect for the purposes of modern statistical analysis of population movements, "the result is [nevertheless] a documentary collection which illuminates as does no other source, literary or statistical, essential characteristics of the most mobile elements in British society; the process by which British North America was peopled in the years before the Revolution; and the major segments of the immigrant population in pre-Revolutionary America. There is no other body of immigration data comparable in detail and comprehensives for the entire first two centuries of American history."[100]

When one first turns one's attention to the study of genealogy one wonders how one will ever learn anything at all about these mysterious and distant ancestors and cousins. Then not so long after delving into the details of a search one often grows astonished at the incredible wealth of detail which seems to unfold before one. With hard work and a little luck we sometimes find ourselves following a trail leading deep into the Middle Ages, or otherwise at least into Colonial times. It begins to seem as if anything at all we wish to discover will yield to our pursuit, if only we pursue it diligently enough. And yet sometimes this is simply not so. We run up against seemingly impenetrable barriers, and they do not yield. This seems to be the case with respect to the ancestry of John Sr. and Martha Templeton of Iredell Co, NC. Some have thought to try to search further in Pennsylvania records to try to find traces of their having traveled that route to North Carolina. However, such a search would take an enormous amount of time to perform thoroughly, and seems unlikely to be fruitful. Given the surge of immigration from Europe directly into the North Carolina back-country described by Bailyn, especially of people of Scottish and Irish origin, it seems more reasonable to assume for the present that John and Martha Templeton also came to America at this approximate time as part of this large migration. It is true this is only speculation. We have no hard evidence to believe it, except for the negative evidence, that many have searched for many years, some very meticulously, for records connecting this couple with other earlier-known settlers of the same surname without success. Given the whole body of information summarized above, which we have been able to assemble about this family and their times, it seems at least a strong possibility that John and Martha Templeton immigrated to Iredell Co, NC directly from Scotland or Ireland not long before they bought their first land there in 1781.

McClelland Family Papers # 3869 shows a 6 way division for the heirs of John Templeton Sr of his 300 acres of land granted to Robert Chambers in 1788 and purchased by John Templeton from John Booker in 1781 on North side of Main Rocky Creek, Iredell Co, NC. This division is undated. However, since John Sr died intestate, it is the primary proof of the 6 children and heirs of John Templeton Sr. The document shows a sketch of the bend in Rocky Creek corresponding to the bend shown in the original Rutherford survey of 1786, and divides the land into 6 lots designated to James Templeton, John Templeton Jr, Obadiah Templeton, Jesse Cummings husband of Martha Templeton, John Moss husband of Elizabeth Templeton, and Mary "Polly" Templeton wife of Joshua Jones (possibly deceased at time of division, as he is not named).

John and Martha's Children

What we know about John and Martha's six children varies frpm almost everything to almost nothing. Their eldest child, John Jr., was reportedly born in Rowan Co on 18 Jan 1778 according to bible records reported by one of his descendants in 1948.[56] John and Martha Templeton were both born before 1755, according to the Iredell Co Census for 1800, 1810, and 1820, which all list them as over age forty-five. If we imagine they were born not long before 1755, then John Templeton Sr. might have been about age twenty-two when his first child was born. Of course, if accurate, John Jr.'s birth date would place John Sr. and Martha in Rowan Co three years before their 1781 land grant purchase. John Jr. was also a farmer, who married Anne Claywell about 1798. Anne was born 1777 probably in Campbell Co, VA. Her father, Peter Claywell, was a Revolutionary soldier born in Worcester Co, MD, who came to Iredell Co with his wife Jemima Arthur from Campbell Co, VA. The first record of Anne's family in Iredell Co is a land purchase in 1800. In the next twenty-three years there are six other land transactions recorded. Anne Claywell had eleven brothers and sisters, and a good deal is known about this entire family. John Jr. and Anne had eight children, one of whom they named Peter Claywell Templeton. John Jr. and Anne moved further west in the later part of their lives and settled in Buchanan Co, MO where they died in 1850 and 1853 respectively, and where they are buried. We have extensive information about the descendants of one of their eight children, John Wesley Templeton, from an excellent book by Joseph Crittenden Templeton published in 1948.[56] This excellent book includes a wealth of detail about the lives of John Jr. and his family after they left Iredell Co for MO.

John and Martha's next child was James O Templeton born 18 Feb 1783. James bought 200 acres of land from his father in 1818 and farmed it for the rest of his life. He married Dicey Burton about 1810. Dicey was born 7 Dec 1796. James was a private during the War of 1812 in the 7th Regiment (Pearson's) North Carolina Militia. James and Dicey had six children, and died in Iredell Co in 1870 and 1874 respectively. They are buried in Union Grove NC in the Templeton Cemetery on Dowell Road. Of all of John and Martha's children we know the most about the descendants of James. This is partially because they and many of their descendants stayed in Iredell Co, and partially due to a very large study of this branch performed by one of its descendants, Larry D Coleman of Jonesborough, TN. This study includes more than 1500 names of descendants, their spouses, and parents of some spouses, and is included in this volume in the Templeton genealogy section.

John and Martha's daughter Martha was called "Patsey," a common nickname for Martha in the period. She was born in 1784 and married Jesse Cummings about 1803. Jesse was born 5 Feb 1782 in NC. Jesse and Patsey lived in Iredell Co and had four children. Jesse died 8 Mar 1847 and is buried in Mt. Bethel Methodist Church, the former Prather's Meeting House founded by John Sr. and four others, to which Jesse twice contributed land. Patsey died later after 1860, but before 1870. We have learned quite a lot about the descendants of one of Patsey and Jesse's children, Drucilla Saunders, through the research of one of her descendants, Dorothy Crook, of Evergreen, AL.

John and Martha's daughter Elizabeth was probably born about 1790. So far we know very little about her. She married John Moss, who appears on court records for the division of John Sr.'s land in 1822. Elizabeth was still living on 8 Oct 1832 when her brother James sold her inherited land for her. Of their children or descendants, if any, we so far know nothing. Elizabeth's husband John was very likely the son of Reverend William Moss, who first bought fifty acres of land on Main Rocky Creek and Trumpet branch from John Huey in about 1802 and in 1818 bought an adjoining one hundred forty-four acres from William McKarahan. This land was extremely close to John Templeton's land, if not actually abutting it. William Moss was a Methodist Circuit Rider from Brunswick Co., VA who rode the North Carolina Circuit between 1788 and 1799, before settling in Iredell Co in 1802. He donated one acre of his land to the Methodist Church on which was built Moss Meeting House, which later became known as Moss Chapel Methodist Church. William Moss died 11 Oct 1826 leaving a will in which he named eleven children, including a son, John Morrison Moss, who is believed to be the John Moss who married Elizabeth Templeton, perhaps about 1810. However, the evidence for this is only circumstantial. The names of the children and of some of their spouses, as well as the precise location in proximity to the Templeton family, and the time of their arrival on Main Rocky Creek is all extensively documented by tax lists, census, will, court minutes, deeds, some marriages, and so forth. However, proof of the marriage of William's son John to Elizabeth Templeton is absent, and no one has further researched this couple or their descendants to our knowledge. [14]

John and Martha's daughter Mary, called "Polly" was probably born about 1791. We also know very little about her. She apparently married a man named Jones, who must have died before 1822, because Polly appears on the document subdividing her father's land in her own name, which she could only do if she were a widow. Her two sisters are represented on this document by their husbands, according to prevailing law. Some researchers have mistakenly thought her husband's first name was Joshua, because of an 1827 court reference to a Joshua Jones, who was appointed guardian of a Polly T Jones to represent her interests in a dispute with some of the other Templeton heirs. The nature of this dispute is not clear from the scanty records, nor is the identity of Joshua or Polly T Jones. But Joshua could not have been Polly Templeton Jones's husband, since he died before 1822. And the Polly T Jones in the 1827 court record could not have been Polly, John Sr. and Martha's daughter, since she was not a minor needing a guardian. Quite possibly the Polly in the 1827 record is the first Polly's daughter. However this is speculation at this point. It appears the "original" Polly Jones lived until after 18 Sep 1857, when land records show her brother, James, sold her inherited land for her. Unfortunately we do not know anything of her descendants, if any, at this time. Since Polly's husband died before the division of John Templeton Sr.'s land in 1822, a search was conducted of Iredell Co Estate papers to try to find a deceased Jones whose will might have mentioned Polly. This was not successful. The only Jones death record found was for a Thomas Jones who died in 1810. Court minutes indicate that there was a will for Thomas, but this has been lost. The 1800 and 1810 Iredell Co Census lists several Jones families, but no Thomas, and no Mary or Polly. Also, Thomas Jones did not have property listed in the 1800 Iredell Co tax lists, nor in the 1815 tax lists, and none of the other Jones families in 1815 live in the same tax district as John Templeton Sr. It appears that Polly was not living in Iredell Co after her marriage, as she is not found on any Iredell Co census. Given the absence of all records except the three mentioned for the land division in 1822, the guardianship in 1827, and the land sale by brother James in 1857, learning more about Polly or her possible descendants presents a non-trivial problem for future researchers. [14]

John and Martha's youngest child was Obadiah Templeton born 18 Oct 1792. Obadiah was Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's great great grandfather. Obadiah married Rebecca Tyson Beall in Iredell Co in about 1818. Rebecca was the daughter of Horatio Beall and Elizabeth Harris,[4, 11] and the descendant of Col. Ninian Bell, a 17th Century immigrant to Maryland. There are many references to both the Beall and Bell spellings. However, in the sale of John Templeton's property in 1822, two different purchasers are mentioned repeatedly with the specific surname Beall, showing that this spelling of the name was common in the immediate family circle. One of these was Aza Beall, and the other was Benton Beall. Benton is a name given by Rebecca to one of her sons. A will exists in Iredell Co in 1851 for Elizabeth Harris Bell, which names Rebecca Templeton, among others, but does not mention either Aza or Benton, or any son at all. Obadiah and Rebecca had at least eleven children, counting two, William and James, who died as infants. Some researchers have attributed an additional two children to Obadiah and Rebecca named Jane and Lafayette. However these two, discussed separately below, are thought to be in error. Five of Obadiah and Rebecca's children's names are most readily verified in the 1850 census, which was the first census to list children by name. These five were still living at home in 1850 during this census. They were Jasper, Columbus, John Wiley, (Benton) Bell and Allanta Jane. Bell was incorrectly listed in 1850 as a female. A sixth child, Newton Templeton, age twenty, was also living in Coffee Co with a Dr. W Norton.[11, 18] In addition, the 1850 census tells us that in Coffee Co there were 1179 dwellings, 1195 families, 3588 white males, and 3473 white females, and a total population of 7061.[12] The other names we cannot get from the census, because prior to 1850, the census gave only the name of the head of household, and then listed other family members only by number, gender, and approximate age. The names of the other children were verified by Rebecca Templeton's 1853 bible, and later all but Lafayette and Jane were verified many ways. Obadiah is said to have learned the trade of cabinet maker as a young man. However, after immigrating westward to Coffee Co, TN about 1828, he became a farmer. Obadiah and Rebecca are found in the Bedford Co, TN census in 1830, and in Coffee Co. TN census in 1840, 1850, and 1860. Coffee Co was not yet incorporated in 1830, and was formed from part of Bedford Co, so they probably did not move a second time, once having settled in TN before 1830. Today Bedford Co and Coffee Co are adjacent to one another in Central TN. Rebecca died in Coffee Co in 1855, but Obadiah lived another twenty years until 1875, when he died, also in Coffee Co TN. We have been able to develop a fairly complete picture of the first three or four generations of Obadiah and Rebecca's descendants, plus many of their descendants down to the present. From this we can see that Jack, Anne, and Christopher have even in just the Templeton part of their family, many many cousins not named Templeton. Some are named Jacobs, Walton, Hancock, Gambill, Gore, Carlisle, Keeling, and Jarratt.

Some of these relatives are much easier than others to trace down to the present. For example, one group that is difficult is Jacobs. This is because Obadiah's daughter Elizabeth Templeton married James J "Jack" Jacobs in Bedford County TN probably about 1840. The difficulty stems from the fact that the Jacobs family was one of the first in that area, and they got there as early as 1790, when Jack's grandfather John Jeramiah Jacobs arrived. It is not yet known how many children John Jeramiah had, but his son Jeramiah who married Rebecca Rudd had twelve children, of whom Jack was the fourth born. Five of Jack's brothers were Alfred, William, Stokley, Calvin, and John Clinton.[127, 180] Thus by the time of Jack's marriage to Elizabeth about 1840 there were three very numerous generations of Jacobs already in the area, thus making it exceedingly difficult to tell one Jacobs from another from the available records. Jack and Elizabeth together had nine more Jacobs children to add to this already confusing group. To make matters yet more difficult, census records prior to 1850 name only the head of household, and not the spouse or children. At this early period records were not very good, so it is rather hard to find distinct documents differentiating one group of Jacobs descendants from another. Census takers at the time were not always as literate as we might wish, and sometimes spelled names phonetically, sometimes entirely incorrectly, or sometimes just wrote down the initials of the first names. As a result, in the case of Elizabeth's first born child, it is hard to know from the census alone whether this was a boy David R who married Harriet Unknown and had five children, or whether this was a girl named Dowe (Dove?) R who married a man named Wilson and had also five children. Both these two census records actually exist with names Dowe and David, with similar birth dates, and with the same middle initial. To resolve such a mystery we would need additional documentary evidence. Such research can certainly be attempted, and is often successful. However, it requires extensive access to local records, and often takes a great deal of time. As mentioned above, Elizabeth and Jack had nine children, plus at least eleven grandchildren that we know about so far. This could probably add more than one hundred cousins, if all these descendants could be traced down to the present accurately, but this would require considerable specialized research with local records.

The Templeton, Beall, Bell Ancestry

Rebecca Beall Templeton, wife of Obadiah, was the daughter of Horatio Beall and his wife Elizabeth Harris, and the granddaughter of Zachariah Beall and his wife Rebeccah Tyson. Zachariah was a contemporary of John Templeton, lived close to him, and was a founder and trustee together with John Templeton and four other men of the church first known as Prather's Meeting House. These trustees are listed in a land transaction dated 10 Sep 1800 in which they purchased from Basil Prather for five shillings one acre of land for the church, plus rights to the use of the spring adjoining the meeting house.[17] Zachariah had seven surviving children, and quite a lot is known about most of them, including Aza who became a doctor in Lincoln Co, GA, and Horatio who married Elizabeth Harris and died in Iredell Co in 1849 and left a will. Horatio's wife Elizabeth Bell, mentioned above, died two years later in Iredell Co, also leaving a will. Probably more could be learned about the descendants of this family, since Rebecca's three sisters Drucilla, Jennie, and Jemima married, and their husbands' surnames are all known. Moreover, there appear to be extensive records for the Iredell Co, NC area, and these appear readily accessible, as many have been published in book form and are available for between fifteen and twenty five dollars per volume.[14, 29] Also, quite a lot is known about the ancestry of Zachariah Beall. Russell C Black, Jr. of Statesville, NC is quite familiar with the "local version" of this ancestry, because after Zachariah's death in 1817, one of his descendants named J. E. Ramsey of Salisbury, NC replaced his broken soapstone gravestone with a granite one in about 1933, apparently at the same time causing Zachariah's ancestry to be engraved on this new stone. This was not so difficult for Mr. Ramsey to accomplish, since he was either a manager or the owner of the Carolina Pink Granite Company. We know of this unusual event from a letter from Mr. Ramsey to a Mrs. Virginia G. Elmore dated 24 Mar 1933 in which he states that the new stone has been completed, but that he has been delayed in erecting it due to inclement weather and muddy roads in the local area. Many afterwards came to know of this ancestry engraved on the stone, since there are books published in Iredell Co with the texts of all the gravestones in the local cemeteries, including Zachariah's. It is, of course, exceedingly rare to have several generations of genealogy engraved on a gravestone. Zachariah's "new" gravestone is still said to be in excellent condition and is easily found in the churchyard of the Episcopal Methodist Church, which he helped found in 1800 together with John Templeton. The ancestry inscribed on the gravestone says Zachariah is the great grandson of a well-known Colonial immigrant Scotsman named Col. Ninean Bell, who first arrived in America in the 17th Century, probably as early as 1670, although the exact year is not known. Many early American immigrants have been much studied, especially ones who played some prominent role, and thus a considerable amount has been written about Col. Ninian Bell and his descendants. There are at least three books that give extensive coverage to all the Scottish immigrants to Maryland in the 17th Century, which include hundreds of people, including probably two hundred Bells, many of whom were not closely related to one another. Apparently the name in Scotland was always written Bell. But the early immigrants spoke English with a very thick Scottish accent, and clerks of the period transcribed the Scottish pronunciation of the Bell name as Beal, Beall, Bale, or Beale. Many families later changed the spelling back to Bell, though some families simply kept the phonetic spelling. In the case of Zachariah's family, this spelling change did not appear to occur until during his children's generation. Horatio Beall's wife signed her will in Iredell Co in 1851 as Elizabeth Harris "Bell," whereas her husband's brother Aza was listed thirty years earlier at John Sr.'s estate sale as "Beall," and another probable family member at the same time was listed as Benton Beall.

The many early Bells of Maryland immigrated from Scotland in the late 17th century as a result of religious and other persecution by the English government under Oliver Cromwell. Ninian Bell fought in the "disastrous" (to the Scots) battle of Dunbar, in which the Scots led by Leslie were defeated by Cromwell's invading army under General Monck. All those who were captured were "transported" to various English Colonies to serve out a sentence of eight or more years of "indenture," during which they were essentially slave laborers. It was in this way that Ninian Bell came to America with many others. After the battle, Cromwell's army burned and sacked many of the towns in the region where Ninian and many of the Bells were born, namely St. Andrews, Fifeshire. In the process many records were destroyed. As a result of this persecution, many who neither fought nor were captured eventually also decided to leave Scotland. Since Ninian arrived as a prisoner, he had little money. Nevertheless, he managed to acquire extensive land holdings in the area which is now Washington DC, and became a very wealthy man as a result, owning as much as 25,000 acres at his death. He also became a prominent military leader in the wars against the Native Americans of the period, and rose to the rank of Colonel, and Commander in Chief of all Maryland militia forces. These details about Col. Ninian Bell are worth recording here because he is in some ways typical of the Scotch immigrants to Maryland of the time, though somewhat more prominent and successful than most. His family was well-known, and it is likely that Zachariah's descendants would have considered him a worthy ancestor to remember, and to perhaps memorialize on a gravestone. The ancestry on the gravestone stated that Zachariah's father had been Samuel Sr., son of Ninian Jr., son of Col. Ninian. It seems that Ninian Jr. died quite young, probably at about the age of thirty, after having only two children, one being Samuel Sr., the other a daughter named Mary. His widow, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Magruder, daughter of Samuel and Sarah Magruder then remarried to another man also named Beall, but who was not closely related to her former husband. Elizabeth's second husband was William Beall son of Alexander Beall, and with this second husband Elizabeth had seven more children, one being William Jr. The fact that Elizabeth Magruder married two different men named Beall, and had children by both of them, has confused some genealogists, including the well known Beall genealogist, Col. F M M Beall, who published a Beall genealogy in 1929.

Fortunately, we do not have to take Zachariah's ancestry on his "new" gravestone on faith, since Mrs. Vivian Gay Elmore, an unusually dogged Beall researcher, had kindly provided Iredell Co genealogist Lois Schneider with a copy of a rather hard to locate deed document verifying this ancestry, and Lois provided this to us. After careful study of the wills of Col. Ninian Beall, his son Ninian Jr., his grandson Samuel Sr., and Samuel Sr.'s wife Jane, as well as Zachariah's deed to his brother, all of which documents we have on file, it seems quite certain that the genealogy on the gravestone of Zachariah Beall is correct, and that Col. F M M Beall's book is mistaken in this regard. The problem in verifying this particular ancestry was that there were many men named Beall living in Maryland at about the same time, often with the same given name. Thus it was unusually difficult to prove that a man named Zachariah Beall appearing in one record was the same Zachariah Beall appearing in a different record. Col. F M M Beall's book was dated 1929, whereas the certificate of authenticity that came with the crucial deed record provided by Mrs. Elmore to Lois Schneider in 1985 was dated 29 Mar 1946, so it took Mrs. Elmore seventeen years to prove that Col. Beall had been in error in his book about this line. Since it is a little complicated to prove, some additional details are provided below.

In looking first at many secondary sources for Colonel Ninian Bell Sr., all experts are agreed on his nine children by his (probable) second wife, Ruth Moore, one of whom was indeed Ninian Jr., who did appear to be the father of a Samuel Beall whom many called Sr. to distinguish him from another Samuel Beall whom historians have arbitrarily dubbed Samuel Beall Jr., who is not the son of "Zachariah's" Samuel, who also had a son Samuel, whom is here called Samuel II. Col. Ninian also apparently had two earlier sons in Scotland by a first wife, Elizabeth Gordon. These two were said to be John, born about 1647, and Thomas. Both of these sons were said to have immigrated to America in 1666, however Col. Ninian does not mention them in his lengthy and thoughtful will, of which we have a copy. The trouble with the initial investigation of the secondary sources was that no expert gave a son named Zachariah to Samuel Beall Sr. son of Ninian Jr., nor to any other Samuel Beall either. While these Bealls are generally extremely thoroughly researched, there were also hundreds of Bealls in Maryland by the third American generation, quite a few with the common names of Ninian, Samuel, Robert, William, and Alexander. Furthermore, there were thousands of Scottish-Americans in Maryland, so there were not only multiple Ninian Bealls, but there were Ninian Magruders and Ninian other names, and so forth. This clearly made it extremely confusing sometimes for the researchers. Nevertheless, authorities do seem to agree that after the relatively early death of Ninian Beall Jr., who left only the one son Samuel Sr., and a daughter Mary, his widow Elizabeth Magruder (Beall) did marry second to William Beall Sr., as alluded to by Col. Beall in his 1929 book. Regarding Col. Ninian it should be noted that he apparently had a special feeling for his grandson Samuel (Sr.), since he not only mentioned him prominently in his will, but also made him executor of his will, even though he was not yet of the legal age of twenty-one when Col. Ninian made his will. Thus Col. Ninian named three other men to act as executor for his grandson Samuel until he reached the age of twenty-one.

Unfortunately no Samuel could be found from secondary sources who had a son Zachariah. Anyone pursuing this line of research in secondary sources would next logically check all available indexes for any and all Zachariah Bealls, but this search also produced no results that matched. There were several Zachariah Bealls later, who served in the Revolutionary War from states like NH and MA, but the only one found born in Maryland was said to be the son of a William Beall Jr., not Samuel Beall Sr. However, for this Zachariah of Maryland, said to be son of a William Jr., the entire family was given, and it matched perfectly with what was known of Zachariah Beall later of Iredell Co. NC.

including the names and dates of all his children, plus the spouses of all his children, plus some of his descendants, plus his places of birth and death. [49] In other words, this appeared to be the "correct" Zachariah Beall beyond all reasonable doubt, but apparently with the wrong father. Col. Beall asserted in his 1929 book that this William Jr. was the son of William Sr., who was said to be the son of the immigrant Alexander Bell who arrived in Calvert Co, MD according to one authority in 1668 (land records Annapolis), and according to another authority among the "later" Beall immigrants, after 1680, but well before 1695, when his name appears on the list of Civil Officers and Magistrates in Prince Georges Co, MD. In retrospect it does appear that Col. Beall erred grievously regarding the ancestry of Zachariah later of Iredell Co and his siblings. Such errors are easy to make, since genealogical studies of any size must rely at least partially on secondary sources. Today, despite the fact that telephones, fax, microfilm, microfiche, computers, etc. have made the compilation and transmission of complex data far easier than in the 1920s, and many more facts about these early times have been matched together than was the case seventy years ago, errors are nevertheless still all too easy to make. Even today some experts disagree about certain parts of this early story. There were many people with similar or identical names living in a relatively small community, many of whom may have been distantly related back in Scotland, and most of whom knew one another here in America. Furthermore, several of the earliest immigrants had extremely long lives, spanning three or four generations, sometimes outliving some of their children, and thus mentioning grandchildren in their wills to help confuse the record yet further. So we should not judge Col. F M M Beall too harshly for this one error, however obvious it seems in hindsight.

The proof of Zachariah's descent from Col. Ninian Bell rests first of all on two major bequests, which Col. Ninian made in his will dated 15 Jan 1717 to his grandson Samuel (later called Samuel Sr.), whose father Ninian Jr. had already died before 6 Jan 1711 when Col. Ninian made his will, namely "Item. I give and bequeath to my granddaughter, Mary Beall, ye daughter of my sonn Ninian Beall, deceased, the one halfe part of my moveables or personal estate [etc.].... Item. I give and bequeath to my grandson, Samuel Beall, the remainder part of Bacon Hall, together with plantation and orchard, tobacco houses thereunto belonging (with proviso) that when he comes of the age of one and twenty . . . . And lastly, I doe make, ordain and declare and appoint my grandson, Samuel Beall, to be my sole and whole executor of this my last will and testament, and I do devise my loving son Charles, Joseph Belt, and George Beall to doe and perform for my Executor until he arrive at the age of one and twenty . . . . [etc.] And I doe devise my said sons to use their best care and endeavor that my two grandchildren, the children of my beloved Ninian Beall, deceased, to be brought up and have trustees to this my last will and testament [etc.] . . . . . ."[42, 47] This and the other bequest to Samuel son of Ninian Jr. establish the descent of this Samuel from Col. Ninian.

Many secondary sources agree that Samuel Beall Sr., son of Ninian Jr., married Jane Beall, daughter of James Beall, and granddaughter of Alexander Bell the immigrant. A transcript of Samuel Beall Sr.'s will of 5 Sep 1780 is to be found in Book 1 page 80 (formerly Liber B, page 10) of the Montgomery Co Registry of Wills in Rockville MD, while the original is archived in the State of Maryland Hall of Records in Annapolis MD. This will names among several children Zackariah and Samuel Beall as heirs, and names Zackariah and wife Jane as executors. The will was proved 12 Dec 1780.

The will of Samuel Sr.'s wife Jane Beall dated 18 Jun 1788 is found in Montgomery Co, MD Will Book 1 page 319 (formerly Will Book C, page 180) and also mentions several children including Zachariah and Samuel, and says in part: "First I give unto my son Zachariah Beall, my son Samuel Beall, and my grandson Alexander Robert Beall all that tract or parcel of land called James's Gift lying and being in the county aforesaid [Montgomery Co, MD] together with the improvements thereunto belonging the same to be equally divided among them the said Zachariah Beall, Samuel Beall and Alexander Robert Beall above mentioned shall share and share alike to them their heirs and assigns forever." Will proved 17 Jan 1795.

The above wills prove that there was a Zachariah Beall who was the great grandson of Col. Ninian Bell, but they do not prove he was the same Zachariah Beall who married Rebecca Tyson and removed to North Iredell County, North Carolina. Of course Mrs. Virginia G Elmore and other genealogists who had read these wills realized this uncertainty, so she searched for many years until she found in 1943 a deed recorded 11 Oct 1785 in Liber C No. 3 at folio 175 of land records of Montgomery Co, MD in which Zachariah Beall, son and heir at law of Samuel Beall late of Montgomery Co Deceased sells to Samuel Beall "for and in consideration of the sum of fifty pounds Current money to him in hand paid by the said Samuel Beall . . . all that tract of land situate laying and being in the county and state aforesaid being part of a Tract of Land called the Resurvey on James's Gift." Thus the same Zachariah Beall mentioned in the above two wills of his parents sells his share in the same specific land left to him and his brother and nephew by his mother and specifically described in her will as James's Gift. The Samuel mentioned as the buyer in the deed was undoubtedly his brother Samuel II. The crucial thing about this deed is that Zachariah was then married, and therefore his wife had to appear to state that she freely relinquished her dower rights in this land. Thus there is an addendum to the deed as follows: "Then came Zachariah Beall son and heir at law of Samuel Beall late deceased of Montgomery County before us two Justices of the Obadiah and Rebecca's eldest surviving daughter, Elizabeth, born in 1821 married James J. "Jack" Jacobs in Coffee Co. TN, who was previously mentioned above, and they had nine children before Jack died at the relatively young age of thirty-six. They also had at least eleven grandchildren according to census records. James J Jacobs died about 1857, shortly after the birth of his youngest son, J William Jacobs. Elizabeth out-lived him by fifty years, dying in 1910 at age eighty-nine. Many of the Jacobs family are buried in Beech Grove TN, however "Jack" Jacobs' gravestone has not been located. All Jacobs researchers have encountered difficulties due to too many people of the same name and too few adequate records. However, with the help of several Jacobs descendants still living in Coffee Co and one living in Georgia we have been able to piece together a fairly complete picture of Jack and Elizabeth's descendants. Their eldest daughter, Dovey, married Alexander Wilson and had one daughter. Alexander Wilson was a Confederate soldier who died in the Civil War. By 1887 Dovey was living in Texas with her second husband, W C "Bose" Yardley, with whom she had no children, though Bose had some children from a previous marriage, whom Dovey raised. As the final draft of this book was being prepared after nearly two years of research, contact was finally made with some of Elizabeth and Jack's descendants, through whom contact was finally made with some of Dovey's descendants still living in Denton, Texas. Elizabeth and Jack's second child was Wesley Burgess Jacobs who married Susan Alice Blanton and had five children. Only two of these had children, and only one descendant is living today in Decatur, GA. Elizabeth and Jack's third child, Mary Ann, married Martin S Hancock, who had previously been married to Mary Ann's aunt, Nellie Jacobs. They had at least four children born between 1867 and 1878, and then they also moved to Texas shortly after 1883. They had quite a lot of descendants named Slay who are living today in Dallas, most of whom we think we have traced. Louisa Jacobs married M A Chapman, however nothing is known of their descendants, if any. Narcissa Jacobs married James Newton King, and their descendants are living in Plano, TX. Nothing is known of James Jacobs, except that he is not James Wesley Jacobs, who was his first cousin, son of his Uncle Alfred Jacobs. Jack and Elizabeth's son James is often confused with James Wesley Jacobs, who married Elizabeth Johnson and had two daughters, Mattie B and Brenda B, who married two brothers named Mason. The youngest child of Jack and Elizabeth was J William Jacobs whom some living Jacobs descendants still remember. He was quite successful and was affectionately known as "Beef Bill." This was allegedly because he had once somewhat unscrupulously dressed out and sold a steer which had died from mysterious, but probably "natural," causes. Bill had only one son, William Templeton Jacobs, who went by his middle name Templeton. He apparently was not well-liked, squandered his father's money, and drank to excess. He is mainly remembered for the fateful manner of his death. While riding home drunk late one night he fell off his horse in the middle of Puncheon Camp Creek. This creek only had a few inches water in it at the time, but Templeton unfortunately landed on his face and was too drunk to roll over so he drowned. His third wife left the area with Templeton's one son, so more is not known of any further possible descendants.

Obadiah and Rebecca's son Newton, born in 1823, was also a farmer who married Telitha (sometimes called Tabitha) Ann Huffman and had eight children, three of whom died tragically young. Two died at twelve and seven respectively, only two days apart, while the third died at age two only weeks later in 1863. Undoubtedly they all succumbed to the same illness. Newton served in the Civil War on the Confederate side first as a private in C Company of the 23 Tennessee Infantry Battalion, a Bedford County unit, and later as a private in E Company of Newsom's Cavalry. Newton would have been thirty-seven or thirty-eight years of age at the start of the war, so was relatively old to be a soldier, especially because he had four children at the start of the war. Of Newton's eight children, four very likely had descendants. The eldest of the five surviving children was Lucy, who married Thomas J Gambill and had seven children and many descendants, some of whom we have traced to the present generation. The first born of Lucy's children died at age two.[26, 27, 28] Newton's daughter Fannie married a man named John Brixey, and they had five children. One of these named Gladys Brixey Cannon is still living at age ninty-one in Nashville, and has an excellent memory. We learned of Gladys from Louise Brown, author of a genealogy of the Gambill family. Gladys was eager to talk about the family and provided much helpful information. Also, Newton's daughter Addie married a man named Hall and has descendants we have not yet traced. Newton's youngest son John married Mattie, though he died only two years later, and apparently they had no children. Of Almedia whom some called "Meedy Ann" we still know very little. Besides being called Meedy Ann, some others seemed to have called her Minnie, and it is thought she married a man name Waite and had at least two children.

Obadiah and Rebecca's daughter Mary, born in 1826, married Robert B Carlisle and had three daughters, only one of whom married. The daughter who did marry produced many descendants. Of those descendants we know about so far most are named Keeling. One of these descendants has traced all the descendants of one of Mary's grandchildren down to the present. Presumably some or all of the other four grandchildren also have descendants. At least two lived long lives.

Obadiah and Martha's son, Jasper, born in 1828, was still in Coffee Co, TN in 1860, married to Lucy F Johnson. He was a carpenter. They had a first son, William, born 1859. This was a fortunate finding early in this research, since it makes it certain that the Jasper found in the 1880 census in Franklin Co, TN with eight children was the same Jasper, not some other.[9] The eight children are William, James O., Lemuel A, Charles F, Mary Belle, Lana E, Sanford Wade, and Ada A. Six of Jasper's eight children had descendants and we have traced the families of all of these down to the present. Several are still living in Winchester, Franklin County, TN.

Obadiah and Rebecca's son Columbus Templeton, born in 1831, was not found in the 1860 or 1880 Census for TN. He may have died, used another name, or left the state. We are reasonably certain he is the same man who married Amanda Taylor in 1854 in Franklin Co. TN. However, we have not found him in later censuses, nor have we found any later record of him after his marriage. He may have been killed in the Civil War, though he does not appear to be recorded among those serving on the Confederate side from TN. There was a different Columbus Templeton in Tuscaloosa, AL in 1850 and 1860 who was a "Stage Agent," and unmarried in 1860. The fate of Columbus is the largest remaining unsolved mystery among Obadiah's descendants. We do have a rather excellent family tree diagram (page 178a), which originally was thought to have been made only a few years ago. There was much mystery surrounding its origin. Several different people were alleged to have done this work. After a surprising amount of checking I eventually spoke to Sara Jo Templeton Holmes, presently about age seventy-two, who explained that this tree chart had been made sixty years ago by Ethel Lunn Templeton, wife of Henry Templeton. Henry was the brother of Boone Templeton, Sara Jo's father. Sara Jo can remember when this tree chart was being made, when she was a teenager, probably about 1935. Of course any genealogy or family tree is prone to some degree of error. However, most of Ethel's tree chart was quite accurate, despite a few strange errors. Of course she had the advantage of communicating with many family members now long since passed away. The reason for mentioning this here is that it shows Columbus Templeton as having two children, one being a John Templeton, and the other an Addie Hamilton. These are the only clues ever discovered so far regarding possible descendants of Columbus. It is clear from the tree that Ethel indeed did know a vast amount about her family, and so serious consideration must be given to this clue, although more about the descendants of Columbus, Amanda, John, and Addie has not been learned to date.

Obadiah and Rebecca's son John Wiley Templeton, born in 1838 in Coffee Co. TN was the only child listed as still living at home with his father in 1860, when he was age twenty-two. In the 1860 census John Wiley is listed with the occupation "grocery merchant." [6] John Wiley's 1926 obituary says in part "That at the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted as regimental surgeon of the 17th Tennessee Regiment and served four years, being regarded as one of the foremost physicians and surgeons in the southern army." John Wiley's medical training and service have been difficult to verify. The US Civil War began in 1861, which didn't leave much time for medical training between the 1860 census and the outbreak of the war. John Wiley is in fact listed in confederate army records not as a doctor, but as a "Hospital Steward" in the F&S 44th Confederate Regiment.[7] But it may be that this listing was the same as for a doctor, and perhaps training of one year's duration would have been considered sufficient at the time, especially in wartime. Whatever his medical training before the war, the four years during the war must have provided him with extensive experience. John Wiley married Susan Jones in Coffee Co in 1867. Susan was said to have been born in Canton, Mississippi.[8] However extensive checking of all Madison Co, MS records for the period has failed to turn up any traces there of her father Col. Isaac Jones. By 1880 Dr. John Wiley Templeton is listed in the census as a physician living in Beech Grove, Coffee Co TN. He lives with wife Susan and five children: Adie, Watson G, Jones, Harvey Maxwell, and Jesse Baldwin.[10] The 1880 Census also lists a Jane Carson as being the mother of John Wiley. This is an obvious error, since beyond all doubt Rebecca Beall Templeton was his mother, plus Jane born 1820 is too young, and born in GA, which is wrong. It is possible that whoever gave the information to the census taker meant that Jane was the mother of Dr. John Wiley's wife, Susan Jones Templeton. We have extensive notes from the bible of Vella Handly Templeton, wife of Dr. John Wiley's son, Harvey Maxwell Templeton. These notes state that Susan's mother was Eunice (not Jane) Griffin, daughter of Jerry and Annie Griffin of Georgia, and that she was also married to a man named Miller, though they do not say whether she was married to Mr. Miller before or after being married to Susan's father, Col. Isaac Jones, reportedly of Canton, MS. It is also believed by some family members that Susan's mother was married as many as three times after being married to Susan's father, so it is possible her name could have been Carson in 1880. Eventually we may learn who Jane Carson was. We have traced all of John Wiley's descendants down to the present.

Obadiah and Rebecca's youngest son, Benton Bell, born in 1844, was also a carpenter, and he learned his trade by apprenticing to his elder brother Jasper, with whom he was living in 1860. Benton enlisted in the Confederate Army as a private in Company C of the 23rd Tennessee Infantry Battalion at the young age of seventeen, and is said to have participated in many engagements. It is said that he enlisted to save his older brother Jasper from enlisting, since Jasper already had a family. He served in the same unit as his twenty year older brother Newton. Benton married Martha E Fariss, also born in 1844, in 1868 and they had ten children and many grandchildren and further descendants, about which we have extensive information down to the present, including contact with a large number of living descendants and five of his living grandchildren. Martha died at age sixty-eight in 1912, while Benton lived to age eighty-five and died in 1929 in Atoka, TN. Benton and Martha are buried together at Smith's Chapel Cemetery in Flat Creek, TN.

Obadiah and Rebecca's youngest daughter was called Allanta in the 1850 census when she was six years old. though many have thought this an error and changed it to Atlanta Jane, born in 1844. Allanta was apparently a twin of Benton B's, and appears in the 1850 census. She appears to be the Allie Templeton born 1844 who married George Ashley in Franklin Co in 1884. George Ashley was living in Coffee Co in 1880 with a wife Catherine and six children. He is found again in 1900 living with Allanta and three children, the youngest born in 1883, the year before the marriage to Allanta. Apparently George's first wife died, possibly in childbirth with her seventh child, and George remarried again soon after. though he and Allanta apparently had no children.

Some researchers have claimed in the past that Obadiah and Rebecca had a son named Lafayette. No documentary evidence for this has ever been found. We have a copy of a typed transcript allegedly of Rebecca Templeton's Bible dated 1832, which was sent some years ago to Sir John Templeton, and this transcript mentions a Jane and a Lafayette. However, we no longer know the origin of this transcript, nor have we ever heard other confirmation of the existence of a second Bible belonging to Rebecca Templeton and with the date 1832. The only original Bible known of Rebecca Templeton is dated 1852, and is in the possession of Sir John Templeton of Nassau. This 1852 Bible does not make any mention of either Lafayette Templeton or of initial L. Templeton. Nor does it mention any Jane Templeton. Without being able to study this other alleged 1832 Rebecca Templeton Bible, we are forced to conclude that there never were either a Lafayette or Jane Templeton born to Obadiah and Rebecca, because no other credible evidence of the existence of either has ever been found. Because of past reports of a son named Lafayette, apparently some[16] concluded that Lafayette was the L. Templeton born 1824 found living in Coffee County TN in the 1860 census married to Tempy (Temperance?). and with three children, John, Nancy, and Jane. There are several things wrong with assuming this L. Templeton is part of Obadiah's family. First is his age. The 1830 and 1840 census both state that there were only three males born before 1830 and surviving to 1830, and these three are accounted for, namely Burgess b 1819, Newton b 1823, and Jasper b 1828. There are multiple references for these three, as well as for their birth years. It seems unlikely both these censuses could be wrong, allowing for a fourth male, Lafayette, to be born in 1824. To believe this we would like to have at least one corroborating reference. Another question about L. Templeton in the 1860 census is that he is age thirty-six and apparently has a son John age seventeen. This son would have been born when his parents were quite young, ninteen and eighteen respectively, and would have been age seven in 1850. Thus, we would expect to find Lafayette either as a head of household in the 1850 census in Coffee County, or somewhere in TN, but we don't. We might expect to find him still living on his father's farm, but we don't. This forces us to wonder where he was in 1850. Another speculation we might make is that the John age seventeen living with L. Templeton is not his son, but rather some other relative. However, there is no other relative of Obadiah we know about who is available. The only other John close in age is John Wiley who is five years older and living with Obadiah in 1860. A final problem is that there is no later reference for Lafayette or L Templeton in TN, or for any of these family members. Perhaps this L died in the war or just died, and his wife died also or remarried. The daughters might also have married. There is a reference in the 1870 census index to a John Templeton age thirty in Coffee Co in 1870, but this very distant lead was not checked further. Given that Census age is often only approximate, this could be L Templeton's John or Obadiah's John Wiley. Ultimately we have no evidence whatever to suggest that Lafayette or L Templeton was part of Obadiah's family. However, it is quite possible that Rebecca Templeton had two or more Bibles throughout her life, and this other 1832 Bible, and yet other Bibles may still survive. Should the 1832 Bible or others be rediscovered, we would certainly need to take them into account. However, as far as descendants are concerned, even if a bona fide Bible with Lafayette and Jane recorded were rediscovered, it seems almost certain they would have died as infants, since otherwise we would have found records of them as described above.

"It would have been wonderful if, the year I was born, each of my grandfathers had put on paper all that they could remember about their ancestors and relatives. Therefore, in the year of birth of my first grandchild, I am putting on paper such information for her and other young members of the family. It would be helpful if the older persons in the other branches of the family would do the same thing.

My grandfather, Dr. John Wiley Templeton, was born February 20, 1838 in Beech Grove, Bedford County, Tennessee. In 1867 he married Susan Jones of Canton, Mississippi, daughter of Colonel Isaac Jones, who died at 95. Dr. Templeton received his medical training in Nashville and at the outbreak of the Civil War, enlisted as regimental surgeon on the 17th Tennessee Regiment [military records say 44th Regiment. JN] and served for four years. After the war, he practiced at Wartrace, Tennessee. He was an elder in the Presbyterian Church. He and his wife are buried in the cemetery at Winchester, Tennessee. Nothing is known about the Jones family except that the wife of Colonel Isaac Jones was later married three other times. When my father was a child, she would send oranges and grapefruit from her grove in Florida to Wartrace, Tennessee for her grandchildren. Susan Jones met her husband while she was spending the summer at Monteagle, Tennessee.

Dr. John Wiley and his wife Susan Jones Templeton had six children. The oldest was named Addie who married Mr. Richard Taylor of Winchester, Tennessee who was clerk of the County Court. When Father was about 13 years old he moved to Winchester and lived with his sister, Addie. He worked as a clerk in the law offices of Judge Banks and studied the law books there. Addie died without any children, but her husband married again and had two children named Richard Taylor, Jr. and James Taylor. My father sold them a part of his farm on the south edge of Winchester where many of us spent days hunting doves and rabbits. Dick Taylor was one year ahead of me in school and later became a professor in Louisiana and died about age fifty.

The second child was Jones T. Templeton who became an officer of the Buckeye Stove and Range Company in St. Louis, Missouri. Later he sold his interest in that company and moved to a suburb of San Francisco where he became a distributor of General Electric products. After his wife's death, he married Mary, a registered nurse, who is still living in California. Uncle Jones' daughter, Harriet Sue, born about 1902, died when she was about age 50. His son, Jones T. Templeton, Jr., born about 1911, spent one summer with us at Winchester. He has several children and now lives near Los Angeles.

The third child was Watson Gannaway Templeton, who obtained a job after high school as a telegraph clerk in the railway depot at Decherd, Tennessee with the Nashville Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad. He married Delia Lillard of Murfreesboro and moved to Shepherd Place in Nashville. He later became general manager of that railroad. He had two sons, the older of which was named Lollard Templeton and was an insurance agent in Nashville, born about 1902. Lillard and his wife, Polly, had two sons. Both Lillard and his younger brother, John Wiley Templeton II, graduated from Vanderbilt University. John still lives in the same house near Belle Meade Country Club which was the home of his father and mother. John and his wife, Doris, have no children. Cousin John spent many summers with my family in Winchester and went on several automobile trips with us. After college, he was a successful bond salesman in Nashville, and correctly predicted that the stock market in 1929 was due for a severe decline. Accordingly, he sold short stock of Electric Bond and Share Company; but during that year the price continued to rise, so his broker had to ask several times for more cash for margin. Then, in September of 1929, John could not put up any more cash and the broker sold him out at a price of about $180 per share, whereas a few years later that stock declined to less than $1 per share.

The fourth child in that family was my father Harvey Maxwell Templeton.

The fifth child was Jesse B. Templeton who became a lawyer and moved to Winchester, Tennessee with his offices in the building of the Farmer's National Bank where my father also had law offices. Uncle Jess was several times judge of the County Court. I helped in the hard-fought political campaigns when he was elected judge and was always surprised that the Judge's salary was only $900 a year. One of his opponents, Judge Frank Lynch, told people "Do not elect Jess because if you do, his brother, Harvey, will wind up owning the Courthouse." Sure enough, a few years later the Federal Government in the great depression made a grant to Franklin County for the purpose of building a new courthouse. Accordingly, the old courthouse was put up for demolition and auction, and was bough by my father who used the materials to build houses on the edge of Winchester for rent. Uncle Jess married Jessie Gant and they had one child, Dorothy Tenny Templeton, born 1910, who died when she was only 13. Uncle Jess was the first man to own an auto in Winchester.

The youngest child in that family was Baxter Templeton who died at about age 25, reportedly from alcoholism.

My father Harvey Maxwell Templeton was born in Wartrace, Tennessee and finished eight grades of school there. He was never interested in games or fishing like his brothers but only studying and farming and becoming a lawyer. After moving to Winchester at about age 13, he had an active social life as an eligible bachelor until age 31. His law practice was so successful that before he was 30 he was able to invite his father to retire as a surgeon and move from Wartrace to Winchester. Harvey built a large three-story brick house on the southern edge of the city at 600 S. High Street where his father lived until he died at age 85. His mother, Susan, died there at age 95.

However, in a town smaller than 2,000 people, it was not easy to make a living by legal work alone. He built and operated one of the three cotton gins in Franklin County which sometimes ginned as many as 2,000 bales of cotton in one season in the 1920's. The charge to the farmers was $2 a bale, but this was enough to support the gin throughout the year with a staff of about six operators, the chief of whom was Mr. Green. The cotton gin led later to father entering the cotton storage business and charging the Government rental on keeping their surplus cotton. Also, it led to his building a warehouse for fertilizer which he then sold in the spring to the cotton farmers who had no money. Each spring they gave him promissory notes for their fertilizer and their cotton seed. Then, when they brought their cotton to the gin in the fall, these debts were paid out of the sale of the cotton. He was also agent for several insurance companies. In addition, when farms came up for auction because of non-payment of real estate taxes, Father usually attended the auction. If the price was unusually low, he would buy the farm with the hope of reselling it later. About 1925 he owned six farms bought mostly with mortgage debt. Also, Winchester became a leading center for the nursery business. When the largest nursery called the Southern Nursery was short of cash, Harvey bought a 20% interest which for a few years proved quite profitable. Also, by using low-cost surplus lumber and workmen who could not find other jobs, he was able to build about two dozen houses which he then rented out. The rent on these houses was only $2 a month to $6 a month, except for one house which he bought as part of a farm and then rented it to United States Senator Tom Stewart for $25 a month. The cotton storage business also led him into speculating on the New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges which was sometimes highly profitable and other times incurred large losses. All of this activity was carried on from his three-room office above the Farmers National Bank where he had only one secretary. He operated from an old-fashioned roll top desk still owned by my brother, and never had any bookkeeping or accounting system. Because he installed the second telephone in Winchester, his office phone number was just "2". Although he was a lawyer, he never wrote a will for himself.

Later when I was just starting my investment counsel office in New York, Father came in unexpectedly one day and said that he had to have $11,000 cash by day after tomorrow, or else his cotton broker would sell him out and he would be ruined. I was able to borrow the money and send it to his broker on time. Then my father paid it back to me over a period of about four years in various amounts of cash. He also borrowed at that time from my brother. He borrowed against all his other assets and insurance and gradually lost all of these assets to the creditors. Then my brother and I helped him financially whenever he needed it until he died. When he died, he still owned the two houses with six acres of land on S. High St. and about 100 acres of land near Estill Springs.

I remember Father as being always dressed in dignified business suit with white shirt and tie. He went to work each morning about 8 o'clock and returned about 5 o'clock. His only recreation was playing Bridge about one night a week. He spent much time driving around the County working on and improving his various farms and also in Huntsville at the cotton market. He was famous for always moving and walking very fast. I can never remember him giving me any advice. He was a gentleman of the old school who said that if anyone asked him for advice he would give it: but then if they did not take his advice, he would not speak to them again. The family relationship was a very happy one; and as was customary in those days, all children respected their parents and tried to live up to the old family traditions.

After marriage, Mother and Father lived in the same house he had built for his parents at 600 S. High Street until 1915 when he set aside four acres of land next door and built on it a two-story clapboard house stained brown. About ten years later, in order to help a colored man who was an unemployed stone mason, he hired this man for $1.50 a day to build a stone facing over the entire house. The mason would drive to Little Mountain and break up the limestone rock, and haul it back with the horse and wagon. Thus he built up the walls gradually around the house so that the job finally took over three years. Then Father paid him to build a similar limestone wall for about 300 feet along in front of our house. Mother had this wall built in two sections so that there was dirt in between the two. On the top of the wall was a water pipe: and in the dirt were planted petunias of the climbing type which hung out over the front of the wall down to the ground and were watered by the pipe on top. This produced a remarkably attractive mass of flowers about four feet high and 300 feet long throughout more than six months of each year. On the north side of the house in the lawn he built for my brother and me a play house about 12 feet wide and 20 feet long, and on the south side, a tennis court. On the lot south of our house he built a stone cottage to be used for one year free as a gift for the wedding of Mother's best friend, Ethel McDowell to Edward Chattin. Later, he provided this house as living quarters for my Aunt Leila and Avera Handly as long as they lived. Back of the house for his father he built a hen house and a smoke house for the meat. Also, on the west, next to the cemetery for the Confederate soldiers, he built a barn for the two cows and two horses, and two horse-drawn buggies. Back of our house he built a hen house and a large structure out of unsawed logs and tin roofing for storing about two hundred bales of Government cotton. On the same six acres with the three residences was a cherry orchard of about eight trees, a peach orchard of about thirty trees, a pecan orchard of about eight trees, and an acres of asparagus.

My Other Grandfather, Robert Clinton Handly

My other grandfather, Robert Clinton Handly, was born February 17, 1837 and died January 19, 1925. He married Elizabeth Marks, sister of Governor Albert S. Marks, on January 27, 1869. Robert Clinton and his wife, Elizabeth Marks Handly, had five children. The oldest child was Marks Handly who, after college, went to New York and worked as a reporter for newspapers until early in his twenties when he was converted to Roman Catholicism and became a priest in the Order of the Paulist Fathers. Then he travelled throughout the United States holding revivals and novenas. Often he came to stay a month or two with his parents in Winchester. I remember him well because of his great knowledge and his ability to speak and write in Latin. Partly because of him the Paulist Fathers bought the estate on the edge of Winchester known as Hundred Oaks which was an imitation of an English castle built by his first cousin. Arthur Marks, son of Governor Albert Marks. When he became a priest he was called Father John.

The second child was named Leila Handly who married Mr. Richard Singellton, but this marriage lasted only a few years. Aunt Leila believed that a divorced woman should not re-marry, so she lived with her parents until they died, and then lived 614 S. High Street until she died. Her brother, Oscar, gave her a store building next to the Farmers National Bank which served to support her throughout her life. Her son, Richard Singellton, Jr., was always excellent in working with automobiles and welding. He worked most of his life as a technician with the U.S. Air Force in Tullahoma, Tennessee, but has now retired and spends his time collecting antique automobiles and serving as a leader in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. He married Virginia Holder of Winchester and they have two children. Betty Handly Singellton (named for her grandmother) and Bobby Singellton (named for his grandfather).

The third child was Oscar Handly. He had great ability as a store manager and at an early age became owner of the largest department store in Winchester. This was called Sprague's Store; it employed his father and also his sister, Vella, as a milliner for many years. Uncle Oscar then sold Sprague's Store and moved to Knoxville where he became a partner in a wholesale dry goods company called Anderson, Dulin and Varnell. Gradually he bought out the other owners and became sole owner of that company. He married Frank Miller whose father owned a department store in Knoxville called Millers. Anderson, Dulin and Varnell bought the store from his father-in-law and developed it into a chain of about a dozen stores in Knoxville and other cities of eastern Tennessee. His oldest son, Oscar Handly Jr. worked for Millers until the second World War when he was killed in Australia. He had one daughter named Muffet who later married William Brock of Chattanooga who is now one of the Tennessee U.S. Senators. His second child, Nancy Handly, born abut 1912, married a lawyer in Knoxville named Frank Pace, and they have several children. His next child, Emily McGee Handly, married a dentist in Knoxville. His youngest child, Gustav Handly, later became chief executive of the Miller Brothers Chain Stores. He and his uncle, Felix Miller, who owned Millers of Chattanooga, sold the chain to Garfinkle, Brooks Brothers and Rhoades, Inc. of New York and Washington.

The fourth child was my mother. All of the children were born at Handly's Mill on Boiling Fork Creek on the western edge of Winchester where their father owned a corn mill and flour mill.

The youngest child was Avery Handly who graduated from Vanderbilt, and became a lawyer in Nashville. He married Nell Fall of Nashville. I often visited them in their large home across West End Avenue from Vanderbilt University, where both their sons graduated. Their two children spent almost every summer with my family in Winchester. Their older child, Avery Jr., had a very high I.Q. and spent most of his life as an artist living with my Aunt Leila in Winchester. He died at about age 40 of heart trouble. The younger son, Joseph Horton Fall Handly, married Opie Craig of Nashville, and is now Vice President of the National Life and Accident Insurance Company of Tennessee. They have two children.

When my mother, Vella, was a girl, her father sold the mill on Boiling Fork Creek and built a one-story house on North High Street with about one-half block of land extending back to Jefferson Street. This land was gradually sold to others until a normal size lot on the northeast corner was left. Harvey and I were both born in that house which was torn down about ten years ago and replaced with another similar house occupied by Dick Singellton and his family. Mother attended grammar school and high school in Winchester and then the Winchester Normal College where she studied for more than seven years, especially Mathematics, Greek and Latin. Her brother, Father John Marks Handly, found a job for her tutoring the children on the Kennedy Ranch of more than a million acres in Texas. After two years tutoring, she returned to Winchester and worked as a milliner in Sprague's Store owned by my brother. She was married in Winchester at age 30 to my father who was 31. They then lived for two years in the house with his mother and father at 600 S. High Street before building their own house at 612 S. High Street where she lived the rest of her life. All of Mother's family were Cumberland Presbyterians and Father was a Methodist. Although active in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, Mother read every week the literature of the Unity School of Christianity at Unity Village, Missouri. This gave her total trust in God which caused her never to worry about anything including the risky things her children sometimes did.

Although we did go to medical specialists in Nashville for serious matters, Mother was a believer in Osteopathy; and all of us were treated by Dr. Jenny Houghton. Miss Jenny came to our house almost every week and gave a treatment to Harvey and me on the dining room table.

Mother was always interested in outdoor activities. She kept chickens and pigs and cows, and sold eggs and butter. She also grew and sold beans, cabbage, cherries, peaches, etc. Also, she maintained a large grape arbor and a large flower garden divided into four sections.

To raise money for the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, she and her friends would often cook and serve dinners for large groups of people such as the Civitan Club each week. Mother carned enough money to pay half of the cost of supporting a Christian Missionary in China named Gam Sen Qua. It was a great occasion when this missionary visited our Church and told us about the wonderful success of Christian missionaries in hcathen lands. Because it was a small church led by Mother and Aunt Leila, I was elected Sunday School Superintendent when only 15 years old. This caused me to begin to develop some conscience, because I felt badly standing in front of all those good people knowing that I was not a very good Christian myself.

Because Mother was kindhearted, she always attracted to her a variety of dependent people whom Brother referred to as Mother's "hangers-on." An old colored lady named Crazy Mag came to our house on an average of twice a week for handouts of one kind or another, and would often walk all through the house looking for Mother. One time a young man who was not very bright was given a job in the garden by Mother in order to help him. He then asked if he could please sleep in the woodshed because he had no home. Before long he had a girl sleeping with him in the woodshed and they had a child before mother finally got up courage enough to help them find some other quarters. Later on, when I was away at Yale, a poor white woman told Mother that she had nowhere to sleep; so Mother allowed her to sleep in the kitchen of my grandmother's home, because my grandmother was so feeble that she never came downstairs and never used the kitchen. Then this girl asked if she could please have her brother stay there, too, which Mother agreed. This went from one thing to another for more than a year until finally there were more than a dozen people sleeping in that kitchen before my father finally put his foot down and insisted that they leave. People came from miles around to get advice and help from Mother because they knew she would always listen and never criticize. When talking with Mother, I heard these people tell her that I was "born old." This was regarded as a compliment, because in the language of the mountaineers it meant that a child showed common sense and responsibility.

My older brother, Harvey Maxwell Templeton, Jr. was always brilliant and inventive which was a great education for me. He installed the electrical system for one of the low cost rental houses built by my father and so, of course, I obtained permission at age 7 to install the electrical system in the next house. Harvey built an automobile and so at age 12, I and my eighth grade friends also built an automobile. Harvey built several of the first radios in Franklin County, both of the galena crystal type, and also the first de Forest radio tube types. I learned much from this radio work but did not build anything myself more than a crystal set. Mother set aside the south room upstairs as our laboratory for electricity, woodworking, etc. Using references such as the Book of Knowledge, we built Tesler coils, Ouden coils and other apparatus which would produce electricity as high as 80,000 volts. When Harvey was 14 and I was 11, we put on many demonstrations such as having our bodies radiate sparks several inches long by holding on to the terminals of these high voltage machines. Mother arranged to have chestnut poles about 40 feet high installed near the cotton shed so that Harvey could erect an aerial to receive radio from distant places. Also, when there was no more cotton in the shed, Harvey built a room within the shed to be used as a laboratory. Besides electronics, we experimented with chemistry, fireworks and dynamite. Each Christmas and Fourth of July we put on fireworks exhibitions on our lawn. Such activities caused our area to be the center for about one dozen boys in town who liked to play with these things. We had several canoes, wagons, tents, shotguns, pistols, etc. Always there were two or three new building projects we were working on.

After high school, Harvey went for one year to Georgia Tech and then transferred as a Freshman to Yale. He studied two years at Yale and then two more years at the University of the South where his grades were the highest in the class. When he finished college in the worst year of the Great Depression, jobs were not available so he toured the West with a friend on motorcycles. Afterwards he helped Father by trying to collect the rent each month on the small houses and to operate the cotton gin and fertilizer business. While I was away in England he married Miss Jewel Wilson whom he had known throughout our high school years. She shared all my brother's interests such as automobiles, camping, mountain climbing, auto racing, horticulture, etc. They have five children: Jill, Harvey, Handly, Avery and Ann, and now seven grandchildren. My children spent several summers with Mother and Father and Harvey and his children. Jewel took them on automobile camping trips to Florida and the West, etc. Harvey's three oldest children toured Europe with us for two months in a Volkswagen bus in the summer of 1959.

When he was 57 years old, Harvey was National President of the Association of Propagators and the owner of a leading nursery producing large quantities of young trees and shrubs. Then he decided he did not want to spend the rest of his life in that business, so within a few months he found a buyer. He has devoted all the rest of his life to becoming a champion automobile racing driver. Such unusual activities were the subject of an illustrated feature article in the Sunday Tennessean Newspaper. All of the Templeton tribe and other relatives go back to Winchester as often as we possibly can to visit again with Harvey, Jewel and the children.

Childhood of John Marks Templeton Sr.

My earliest memory is jumping from rafter to rafter in the upstairs part of the new house being built for mother. This must have been about age two. Secondly, I remember being covered by a large ocean wave while sitting on the beach at St. Simons Island, Georgia. This, also, must have been about age two. Mother kept a flower garden of about one acre and I enjoyed watching her. When I was about 4, she marked out an area of 200 sq. ft. and suggested that I use it for a garden. I planted about one dozen kinds of flowers and several kinds of vegetables and kept up this garden for several years. Soon after I became interested in collecting and studying butterflies and moths. Mother showed me how to build a large butterfly net out of mosquito netting on the end of a broom handle and allowed me to buy from the drug store a large glass jar containing potassium cyanide to asphyxiate the butterflies. I learned to build mounting equipment and mount the butterflies for exhibition in the same way as museums. Also, I tried to learn the life history of each variety. This led to looking for and collecting cocoons and crysalids and keeping them in wire cages later to hatch into butterflies and moths. When these specimens laid eggs, the kind of vegetation each variety of caterpillar would eat was supplied so the caterpillars completed their lives and formed crysalids and cocoons and start new generations. Later I learned to label the different specimens and collected all together about 12 large specimen boxes of insects before giving up this hobby at about age 9. Also before entering school I made collections of coins and dried specimens of plants. I remember well at age 8 asking my mother to let me buy a pistol. She said that if I would wait until age 12 for a pistol, she would buy for me now a 410-gauge shotgun which I could use for hunting. Throughout these years my brother and I together with a few friends organized various camping trips to the creeks and rivers usually accompanied by Mother who did the cooking for us.

My school career began two months before my 7th birthday with a teacher named Miss Hearn in the Winchester Grammar School which occupied the building formerly occupied by Mary Sharp college. After a month or two, the first grades were assigned to students, and I discovered that out of a class of 30, one girl had a better grade than I did. I made up my mind then not to let that happen again. At the end of the first half year's term, my grades were A in all subjects. Father was so pleased that he said every time I got a report card without any grade less than A, he would give me a bale of cotton. This meant that I could win two bales of cotton each year, and at that time because of the war, a bale was worth as much as $200. We kept up this plan throughout high school by which time I had a claim on 22 bales because I had not missed on any report cards. However, by that time the great depression was so severe that Father did not have 22 bales of cotton and so I never did collect. The real rewards of the program have been much greater, of course, than 22 bales. By skipping the high second and the high seventh grades, I was in grammar school seven years. In each classroom we had the low half of each grade and the high half of each grade who alternated in reciting. Therefore, half of each school day was free for us to prepare our lessons for the following day. Consequently I almost never looked at any school book while at home. This left me free from three o'clock each afternoon until 10 p.m. for the dozens of building projects and research projects in which we were always absorbed.

For two months in the winter during the second grade and again during the seventh grade, Father and Mother and Harvey and I lived in St. Petersburg, Florida. This did not interfere with our school work because we took our school books with us and kept up with the daily lessons. The first trip to Florida was a real adventure. Father had just bought his first automobile, a Buick. Together with a Dodge owned by Miss Fanny Kisling, we took five days to drive 500 miles from Winchester to St. Petersburg. This could not begin until we got both cars from Winchester to Chattanooga, a distance of 70 miles which took two days. The roads were so bad that the cars were driven by our older friends, Dick Singellton and Harvey Johnson who then met us in Chattanooga. Mother prepared ahead of time by buying from Chicago a guide book called The Blue Book which described the new Dixie Highway running from Chicago to Miami. This book gave directions such as "drive 6.2 miles to a large oak tree and turn left through a pasture." There were no road signs and no paved roads except in the cities. Very often when stuck in the mud we had to find a farmer with horses to pull us out.

Until age 12 I was always a shy child except with other boys. In 8th grade I was surprised that the school principal asked me to represent our school in the spelling contest and the arithmetic contest with the other schools of the county. I felt that I knew very little; but after winning easily both contests, I realized that the children in the other schools also knew little. The principal then appointed me to deliver the valedictorian address on graduation day. Also, in the 8th grade I built my first automobile. This began because while playing in the hay bar on the Petty Farm, I discovered a Model T Ford about 8 years old which would not run. After buying it for $10.00, Harvey towed it back to the carriage shed next to Grandfather's house. Then I searched the County to find another Ford of exactly the same model which could also be bought for $10. It was towed to the same carriage shed. Four or five of my friends from the 8th grade and I spent almost every afternoon taking parts off one and putting them on the other until five months later we got one automobile which would run. There was no age limit on drivers and no drivers license required in those days. The success of our venture was measured by trying to drive to Cowan which was six miles away. We kept a record and found that every third attempt we were able to drive six miles without having the car (which we had named Esmeralda) break down.

In 1923 on the second trip to St. Petersburg, Mother and Father spent many evenings at an auction on Central Avenue at which were sold hundreds of Japanese objects brought over for an exhibition previously. Mother then converted our front porch into a second living room in which she kept all this Japanese furniture, carpets, tapestries, china ware, ivory, vases, bronzes and other Japanese art. She used this room for weekly meetings of her bridge group of 12 ladies. Each time the refreshments served all fitted a careful color scheme. I remember wondering how these ladies could possibly play Bridge, because the majority of them were talking constantly the entire time they were in the house!

In the summer of 1926, Mother enlisted cousins, Dick Singleton and John Templeton, as drivers to take us in our Buick Touring Car from Winchester to Washington, then to Philadelphia for the Sesquicentennial: then to New York and Niagara Falls, spending one day in Canada, and returning to Winchester. Every night the five of us camped out in a tent pitched beside the road. Especially I remember that one of our automobile tires lasted 3,000 miles, which was a record in those days. Also, I remember that between Philadelphia and Atlantic City, there was one stretch of highway which was paved for 50 miles! This was famous for being one of the longest paved highways in the United States. At Atlantic City we camped under an enormous elephant made of timber and tin. The mosquitoes were so thick that as many as a hundred would light on your arm at one time. Most of the time on this two-month trip was spent by Harvey and me touring carefully each exhibit in each of the museums of Washington, Philadelphia, and New York. Our last motor trip was in the summer of 1929 with Mother. She invited a friend, James Grizzard, to go with us so there would be four of us in our new Pontiac. Jimmy was one year older than I. Mother found a tin smith who constructed huge boxes on the running boards of our auto so that all of our luggage and camping equipment could be kept on the running boards and on the roof. We then camped out every night for more than two months on a trip of more than 6,000 miles as far north as Yellowstone Park, as far south as Mexico, and as far west as San Francisco.

John Marks Templeton, Thirteen To Thirty

Upon entering high school in September, 1926 my life suddenly changed. For the first time I became aware of girls, dances, competitive sports and business.

These were the years when the United States first became the world leader in prosperity. However, Franklin County was a farming community and farm produce prices were low throughout these years. During high school years I collected information about business in the county. The average annual cash income of farm families was only $200 per year. Almost without exception every farm worker and domestic worker earned $6 per seek for a 60-hour work week. The highest salary in the whole county of 20,000 souls was $2,000 per year paid to Mr. Mowry, the president of the largest bank, Farmers National Bank. The high school principal was paid $800 per year. The people were very free and happy, and no one ever bothered to lock his auto or door, even when going away for a week.

As a high school freshman, I decided to try to go to Yale, but this required taking examinations by the College Entrance Examination Board which no one from that high school had ever taken. From the Board I bought copies of the old examinations for the four years past. Then, each year when high school finished about May 20th, I began to study the subjects eight hours a day. Each year for three years I took the three-day College Entrance Board Examinations in Nashville the third week in June. Entrance to Yale required a minimum of four years of Latin, four years of English and four years of mathematics. Central High School offered only three years of math, so the principal agreed to offer solid geometry and trigonometry as a fourth year class, provided I would teach the class and obtain at least eight friends so that the class would meet state requirements. The principal set the examinations for us, and graded them, and all of my students passed.

To help with the cost of college in 1930, I joined a team of travelling salesmen selling subscriptions to "Good Housekeeping" Magazine and "Cosmopolitan" in Tennessee and Kentucky. This high-pressure selling door-to-door was the hardest job I ever had. Harvey said it changed my personality. However, I did save $200 in addition to my travel and living expenses, which was a real help in those days.

When I was thirteen, a pretty high school Junior from Sewanee agreed to teach me to dance by coming to my house two or three afternoons a week if I would drive her home to Sewanee. In the next older class in high school, twelve girls who were close friends formed a club which they called H.H.H. They never told anyone what those initials stood for, but the main activity was to give parties. Every other week they would give a party or dance, usually at the home of Mary Mark Mowry and almost every other week I would give a party at my home. From time to time almost all the high school students who showed any interest whatever in parties or dancing were invited: but, this totalled only about 20 boys and 20 girls. The favorite game was "progressive conversation." Sometimes college boys from Sewanee came uninvited to these parties, but were never welcomed by our parents because they often brought bootleg whiskey.

Mother and Aunt Leila were leaders in the Women's Christian Temperance Union which had helped pass the 18th Amendment to the United States Constitution in 1919, making alcohol illegal. For years Father gave a $20 award to any person in Winchester who helped the "Revenooers" destroy a "bootleg still." No one in the family ever used tobacco.

Several friends and I attended almost all the dances and parties at the University of the South during our high school years. There was no fraternity in our high school, so I went to Sewanee Military Academy where my cousin, Oscar Handly, Jr., was a student, and joined the Sigma Phi Omega fraternity in order to organize a chapter in Winchester. The Winchester chapter then gave many good parties and exciting initiation ceremonies.

Although weighing only 130 lbs., it was not difficult to be on the Varsity Football Team because usually there were only 22 players from Central High School who wanted to play football. The student body was 280 from all the county except the Decherd area. Coaching was done as a volunteer service by one of the teachers. I served at one time or another as president of the Debating Club, the Declaiming Club, the Sophomore Class and the Literary Society called Philomathean. Also, students often organized dramatic plays which were put on for profit to help local charities. Usually I was given the role of comic and also business manager. The high school principal, Prof. Fred Knight, awarded me four out of five of the gold medals at graduation ceremony. These were the medal for debating, for declaiming, for citizenship and for scholarship. Because my grades were the highest in the class, it was my duty to write and deliver the Valedictory Address at the graduation ceremony. As the main speaker, the Principal and I invited the Governor who was a cousin of my cousin, Joseph Horton Fall Handly. Governor Horton accepted and the ceremony drew a large crowd to the high school auditorium.

In those olden days, everyone agreed that the first duty of schools was to teach "character" and only secondarily to teach books. Mornings always began with prayer and bible reading or an inspirational "devotional." All students memorized uplifting literature and poems of which the following poem by Longfellow is a good example:

....Tell me not, in mournful numbers,
  Life is but an empty dream!
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
  And things are not what they seem.
Life is real! Life is earnest!
  And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
  Was not spoken of the soul....

....Lives of great men all remind us
  We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
  Footprints on the sands of time.

....Let us, then, be up and doing,
  With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
  Learn to labor and to wait....

A Psalm of Life (1839), St.1, 2, 7, 9

Yale was my fist experience in a place where I knew no one. I had never been to New England. The only person I knew was Prof. Nat Francis who owned the Roxbury School which served the purpose of tutoring lazy Yale students. Prof. Francis and his wife, Laura, owned a farm between Winchester and Cowan. About two-thirds of the 825 freshmen had attended eastern private schools in preparation for ivy-league colleges. When they arrived in New Haven, they already had chosen friends as roommates, and usually knew dozens of boys in the older classes. Because of this, no student from any high school was invited to join a fraternity when the fraternity rushing was carried out at the beginning of sophomore year. There was no discrimination, but simply the fact that none of the upper classmen knew us. Later in the sophomore year, two high school graduates were invited: High Cunningham to Beta Theta Pi, and myself to Zeta Psi. My roommate in freshman year was a very nice boy from Buffalo named Bill Gage. In the other three years, I roomed with Jack Greene from Dayton, Ohio, a graduate of Hotchkiss School who knew lots of Yale upper classmen.

At the beginning of sophomore year (which was two years after the great stock market crash of 1929) my father told me with regret that he could not contribute even one dollar more to my education. At first this seemed to be a tragedy; but now looking back, it was the best thing that could have happened. It caused me to begin studying really hard in order to get perfect grades and thereby maintain two scholarships to help with the expenses. Mother had saved a little cash from selling vegetables and eggs, and I borrowed $200 from my Uncle Watson which mother paid back years later. This enabled me to travel to New Haven and to apply to the very well organized Yale Bureau of Student Employment run by a capable man named Ogden Miller, who later became headmaster of the Gunnery School. He helped me to get scholarships and also to earn money at various jobs such as being Senior Aide of Pierson College and Chairman of the "Yale Banner and Pot Pourri" Yearbook. Also, about one-quarter of my expenses were earned by playing poker. I paid into a separate bank account all winnings and took from it all losses. During these great depression years, one bank in which I had an account, the Broadway Bank, failed. Friends in New Haven said the safest bank in which to open a new account was The Mechanics Bank. About six months late, when walking by that bank, I saw a long line of people extending half a block from the front door. In those days this meant that there was a "run on the bank" and, of course, no one could get near enough to the cashiers' windows to withdraw money. Economics textbooks said that savings depositors in Connecticut are paid off in bankruptcies at $2 for each $1 to checking account depositors. Accordingly, I went to the savings deposit window where there was no one, and opened an account by transferring to savings my entire checking account. Although Yale was known as a rich boy's college, there was no discrimination of any kind against those of us working our way through. In fact, in those depression years, 42% of the students were earning at least part of their expenses. By hard study, I became the stop scholar in the class by the end of Junior year; which was helpful in being elected as President of Phi Beta Kappa. This, in turn, was a great help toward selection for a Rhodes Scholarship. I was tapped for the Yale Senior Society called Elihu and served as assistant business manager of the comic magazine called the "Yale Record." When majoring in economics in 1932, I chose investment counsel as a profession because of deep interest in the difficulty in judging the true value of any shares of corporations.

When the 1934 accounting for the Yale yearbook was finished, about $300 profit was distributed to me as Chairman and used to open an account with my roommate, Jack Greene. He was then senior partner of a stock brokerage firm in Dayton, Ohio called Greene & Ladd because his father had died during Jack's Junior year at Yale. This account is now 42 years old but the name of the firm has changed to Cowen & Co. My first purchase of any stock was the $7 preferred stock of Standard Gas & Electric Company which was selling at 12% of par because of the Great Depression. From that original $300 have grown all of the investments I now own. Since 1934 new money was put in several times from savings; but in larger quantities assets were taken out of my investment accounts to pay taxes, expenses, etc. Therefore, it can reasonably be said that there was no net investment to the beginning $300.

Between 80-hour work weeks during four years at Yale, and 25 years beginning a career, the two Oxford years resembled a rest period. It was not considered proper for Oxford students to work for money. In fact, it was beneath the dignity of a student even to carry a parcel home from a store. At Oxford there were no grade and no examinations, and no classes to attend for two years until the final examinations. My only obligation was one hour each week in reading an essay to my tutor, Mr. Tyler, a brilliant legal scholar who was almost totally blind. The best part of Oxford was called Ryder-ising. During the First World War, Lady Francis Ryder and later her successor, Miss MacDonald of the Isles kept a list of more than 100 of the best families in Britain who would be happy to have Rhodes Scholars as house guests. If we notified Miss Macdonald at least two weeks ahead, we could visit from one night to a fortnight and could even indicate our preference as to whether we wanted to be in the city or on the seashore, or with families who kept horses, or any other wish. This extraordinary gracious hospitality was not only a pleasure but also an education for us into the best of British life. Also each holiday several of the Rhodes Scholars would form groups to tour carefully some one country. The 400 pounds per year scholarship was enough to provide travel. The holidays were six weeks at Easter, six weeks at Christmas, and four months during the summer.

Upon graduation with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Law and later a Master of Arts Degree, I had saved up about 90 pounds. A Canadian friend from Yale studying at Cambridge had about 110 pounds in his savings account. This enabled James Inksetter and me to travel for seven months through 35 nations. Tied in a roll over my shoulder, my only luggage was a sleeping bag, one change of shirt, socks, and underwear, four guidebooks, and a bible. Learning about the natives of each country was easy, because we always travelled and slept in the lowest cost places. Our average expense was only 25 cents per night for hotels. Upon returning to New York we told our story to a fellow Rhoades Scholar, Arthur Gordon, who wrote up the story for "Good Housekeeping" Magazine. Arthur generously shared with us half the price he received from the magazine which reimbursed about half of our total travel costs.

When twelve candidates gathered in Boston to be interviewed by the Rhodes Scholarship Selection Committee in 1933, we had to wait about 8 hours for their decision. A candidate named Bob Michelin said he could borrow an automobile from a friend at Harvard so we could go to Wellesley to visit the girls. At the Wellesley Gates, we discovered we were both going to see the same girl, Judith Dudley Folk of Nashville. At that time she was in love with a Princeton boy, but as was customary in those days she was also going to parties with dozens of other boys throughout New England and Tennessee. In fact, her classmates voted her as the "Most Dated Girl" at Wellesley. Later, in the summer of 1934, we became engaged. For an engagement ring, I gave her a diamond setting, and she put in this setting a diamond given to her by her mother, which diamond my son, Jack, later gave to his bride. Because of this engagement, I returned to Winchester in the summer of 1935 so that I could date Dudley whose family always spent the summer at their cottage in the Monteagle Sunday School Assembly Grounds. Upon returning to the United States in 1937, we arranged to be married by the Episcopal Bishop of Tennessee on April 17th with a reception afterwards at Belle Meade Country Club. There were twelve bridesmaids and sixteen groomsmen and ushers, including my friends from Yale and Oxford. Mother loaned us her automobile, and we drove for our honeymoon to the San Angelo Monastery outside Mexico City. In May, 1937, we went to New York and both began to look for work. Dudley found a job earning $150 a month at Young and Rubicam advertising agency in the Chrysler Building, and I earned $150 a month in the newly formed investment counsel division of Fenner & Beane in Wall Street. We carefully saved at least half of our earnings for investment and lived on the other half. For example, after renting a five-room apartment on the fifth floor of a walk-up building on East 88th Street, we furnished all five rooms with only $25 by going to auctions of second-hand furniture and buying only pieces no one else wanted. Three months later, George McGhee, a fellow Rhodes Scholar and travelling companion from Oxford and the Best Man at our wedding, told his employer, William Salvatori, the owner of National Geophysical Company in Dallas about me. This led to a job as secretary and treasurer of that Seismograph corporation at $500 per month. Therefore, we moved to Dallas and Dudley opened an advertising agency of her own. Three years later I was shifted to the New York Office of National Geophysical as financial manager for Salvatori. A year later I heard that Mr. George Towne, an elderly man, had not succeeded in obtaining more than eight clients from his efforts to be an investment counselor. Accordingly, I offered him $5,000 for his operation and changed the name to Towne, Templeton & Dobbrow. Charles Dobbrow Yale Class of 1914 was the sales representative. Two years later we merged with the older firm of Vance Chapin & Co. and changed the name to Templeton, Dobbrow & Vance. During these early years, the struggling young firm could not earn enough to pay me any salary so we lived from our savings account. When Fenner and Beane merged, we bought for only $50 their excellent and large research library including the mahogany book cases.

The only vacation we took during those first four years was a ten-day trip from Dallas to Nassau where we stayed at the British Colonial Hotel. To save money we travelled on the day coach of the railroad for 30 hours. Then from Miami we flew in the "flying boat" from Biscayne Bay to Hog Island Sound, which was the first route started by Pan American Airways and almost the first airline route in the world. When Dudley and I were 27 years old, our first child, John Jr., was born in New York City. Two years later, Anne Dudley was born, and five years after that, Christopher Winston, also in New York City, although at that time we were living in Englewood, New Jersey."

[Judith Folk Templeton died in a tragic road accident in Bermuda in 1951. In 1959 John Marks Templeton Sr. remarried to Irene Reynolds. John Marks Templeton Sr. lives in Nassau, Bahamas, and has become an internationally famous and ultra successful financier, as well as receiving a British knighthood, and instituting the famous Templeton Prize in Religion, now the largest annual prize of its kind in the world. CHAPTER 8

The Different Templetons of North Carolina Before 1800

by Ruth Cohlmia

Carolina Cradle, Settlement of the Northwest Carolina Frontier 1747-1762. by Robert W. Ramsey was originally published in 1964. In this book on page 47 the following is found. James and John Templeton were neighbors of George and Samuel Davidson in East Nottingham Township. PA. David Templeton was a tax collector for Harmony Ridge, Lancaster County. PA in 1742. Members of this family trekked to Carolina with the Davidsons. In a previous paragraph he states many of the Davidsons migrated to the Shenandoah Valley, where John and George Davidson removed to the Northwest Carolina frontier. Ramsey's references are Chester Co., PA Tax List for 1737-38. Lancaster Co., PA minute Book p. 58, and the book "Tinkling Spring" by Wilson p. 425.

Ramsey does not state that the David and James Templeton in North Carolina are the same men of that name found in Pennsylvania. Davidsons are found in the book "Tinkling Spring," a Known Augusta County. Virginia book. but there is no reference to a Templeton. Ramsey based his assumption that members of the Templeton family trekked to North Carolina with the Davidsons on the association of James Templeton with the Davidsons in North Carolina. This book indicates research in Pennsylvania for Templeton is needed.

The name is the same is not proof of identity or relationship. All Templeton families repeat some given names in each generation. In separating individuals of the same name the following elements should be considered: age, occupation. associates. education status (did a person sign with a mark or with his name) and title transfers. In estimating ages of males found in colonial records one should understand that at age 14 he could witness deeds and sign documents. He was taxed at age 16 and militia duty was required of him. He did have to be 21 to serve on a jury.

Applying these considerations the Templeton families of North Carolina have been separated. David and James Templeton are the first to appear in records.

David Templeton settled on Coddle Creek. His land at the time of patent (grant) was in Anson County. It fell in Mecklenburg County upon its creation in 1763 and in Cabarrus County in 1792. There are four patents (grants) recorded for a David Templeton of which two are duplicate grants of land that fell in South Carolina after the border survey between the two states. David Templeton of North Carolina did not receive the land that fell in South Carolina. David Templeton registered the following grants in Anson County:

1) Grant from George II (Gabriel Johnson) to David Templeton, 600 acres on Caudle Creek, north side Cuttawba...3 April 1752, enrolled in Auditor General's office 6 April 1752.

2) Grant form George II (Nathaniel Rice) to David Templeton...300 acres on Coddle Creek, adjoining his own land and McCulloch's line...18 November 1752. Enrolled in Auditor General's office 1 March 1753.

3) Grant from George II (Matthew Rowan) to David Templeton...125 acres on north side Caudle Creek, adjacent his own line and David Hustons...Enrolled in Auditor General's office 10 September 1753.

A 1759 petition to the King by the inhabitants of Rowan, Anson, and Orange Counties, North Carolina, was signed by David Templeton as the 13th person on list #4. At the end of the list of some 100 names are Archibald Templeton and John Templeton. Archibald and John Templeton also are on List #3, which states the subscribers live on the Earl of Granville Land in Rowan County. Only one Archibald and one John are found in other early records. Their names could have been added to one of the lists by someone but consideration should be given that perhaps there was another John who died early. If he was a son of David then he died prior to 1761.

The petition mentions the hardships of the people and they ask to be exempted from paying some taxes and supporting the clergy of the established church (Church of England - Anglican). The people identify themselves as follows "We are originally your liege people and mostly originally from the North of Ireland, trained and brought up under Presbyterian Church Government and we and our forefathers have mostly resided sometime in the Northern Provinces of Pennsylvania, Jerseys, and New York."

These Presbyterians had their own churches called Meeting Houses, because the word "church" was reserved for use of the Anglican (Episcopal) church prior to the Revolutionary War. In 1753 Jonathan Lynn deeded land to the Congregation of Lower meeting House whose name changed to Cathey's Meeting House in 1755. This was the beginning of the historic Thyatira Presbyterian church located in Rowan County 10 miles west of Salisbury in the Millbridge community. The Centre Presbyterian Congregation was established between 1752 and 1755. This is located in present Iredell County about 3 miles from Mooresville. Early records do not exist for either of these churches.

David Templeton's wife was Ann (maiden name unknown) who joined him in signing deeds to his sons. David signed the deeds with his name. Therefore, he was an educated man. He died in 1761 in Anson County, North Carolina. Records identify David's children.

Archibald [2] Templeton (David [1]), born ca 1740, married Jean White, daughter of Moses White of Rowan County.

18 July 1761, David Templeton of Anson County to Archibald Templeton for 5 pounds proc. money...300 acres granted said David 1752 on Coddle Creek. Cabarrus County, North Carolina, deed Book XII. p. 218, Archibald and wife Jean sold this land on 22 September 1780. Cabarrus County, North Carolina, deed Book VII. p. 263, deed of disclaim of surplus land of David Templeton, Sr., long deceased, from Archibald Templeton stated as eldest son of David Templeton, Sr., to James, Samuel and David Templeton, Jr., the youngest sons of David, Sr. or their heirs or assigns, dated August 7, 1813.

A Cooper by profession, Archibald was an educated man signing all documents with his name. He lived in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, prior to moving to Burke County, North Carolina, where he received a 1778 North Carolina land grant. He is found on the 1790, 1800, and 1810 census of Burke Co., North Carolina.

Children:

1. Moses Templeton.

2. John Templeton born 1766, married (1) Miss Morrison, (2) Sophia Wilson. 1830 census Henderson County, TN.

3. David Templeton, married unknown. Died 1822 in Limestone County, Alabama. (Limestone Co., AL Orphan's Court Minutes, 1822-1824, p. 3).

4. Samuel Templeton, married Martha unknown. 1820 census Limestone County, Alabama. Martha on 1830 census, Henderson County, Tennessee.

5. Archibald Templeton, married Polly unknown. 1820 census, Limestone County, Alabama, 1830 census Lincoln County, Tennessee.

6. James Templeton, said not to have married. Lived with brother, John, in Henderson County, Tennessee.

7. Ellen Templeton.

8. Mary Templeton, married Mr. Henderson.

9. Ann Templeton, married Archibald Summers, lived Madison County, Tennessee.

James [2] Templeton (David [1]):

27 July 1761, David Templeton, Sr. to James Templeton, my son, 250 acres, part of 600 acre grant 3 April 1752. Cabarrus County, North Carolina, Deed Book 5, p. 242, 25 October 1800, James Templeton of Spartenburg County, South Carolina, sold land on Coddle Creek. Cabarrus County, North Carolina, deed book 4, p. 167, 17 April 1802. James Templeton of Spartenburg County, South Carolina, sold land on Coddle Creek, part of land willed to James Templeton by David Templeton. Cabarrus County, North Carolina, deed book 7, p. 138, 28 December 1808, David and Arch and Rev. James Templeton all late of the County of Mecklenburg, alias Cabarrus, sold land on Coddle Creek originally granted to David Templeton.

James Templeton was an itinerant Presbyterian minister in South Carolina after the Revolutionary War. In 1797 Rev. James Templeton with others were incorporated as "The Spartenburg Philantropic Society" for the erection of an academy. He is easily confused with the James Templeton on the 1790 census York County, South Carolina. They are not the same. No record has been found at this time to indicate that the Rev. James Templeton married.

Samuel [2] Templeton (David [1]):

27 July 1761, David Templeton, Sr. of Anson County to my son Samuel Templeton of same for 5 shillings sterling. 210 acres, part of 600 acres granted said David 3 April 1752 on Coddle Creek, the plantation I now live on...L.W. and T. of David Templeton, Sr., dated 26 July 1761. Samuel married a daughter of David and Mary Houston of Rowan County, North Carolina. There were no living children at the time of his death. Samuel died prior to February 19, 1784, in Burke County, North Carolina. His estate papers name four legatees: David Templeton, Archibald Templeton, Ann Brevard, and Jean Dobbins. Receipts from Alexander Dobbins for part received by his wife and from Zebulon Brevard. James Templeton was executor of the estate.

Jean [2] Templeton (David [1]) : born ca 1737.

Married Alexander Dobbins. She is named as legate in her brother Samuel's estate papers. Alexander and Jean Dobbins lived in Rowan County, North Carolina, where Alexander left will dated 19 July 1798.

Children:

1. Hugh Dobbins
2. James Dobbins
3. William Dobbins
4. John Dobbins
5. Ann Dobbins
6. Jean Dobbins
7. Elizabeth Dobbins.

Ann [2] Templeton (David [1]) married Zebulon Brevard. She is named as legate in her brother Samuel's estate papers. Zebulon Brevard's will was proved 1799 in Burke County, North Carolina. The will is lost. Records other than Burke County are needed to prove their children. There is a large loss of Burke County records.

David [2] Templeton (David [1]) born by 1746.

Married unknown. 27 July 1761, David Templeton, Sr., to David Templeton, Jr., for 5 shillings ...two tracts granted 30 August 1753, 125 acres on Coddle Creek...the other 140 acres, part of 600 acres granted 3 April 1752.

David Templeton served as a juror in the Salisbury District Superior Court on 30 March 1767. He served in the Revolutionary War and a DAR line is established. He is found on the 1790 census Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, and 1800 census Cabarrus County, North Carolina. He died in 1813 in Buncombe County, North Carolina. Buncombe County, North Carolina, deed book 13, p. 534, partition of David's land names his children.

Children:

1. John Templeton, born ca. 1778, married Rachel West.
2. Samuel D. Templeton, born 1780, married Ann Tanner. 24 December 1813 he bought 100 acres on South Fork of Fifth Creek in Iredell County. He died in 1829 and left will in Iredell County.
3. David G. Templeton, born ca. 1783. Did not marry. He was a M.D. He died November 4, 1851, Iredell County and is buried Coddle Creek Cemetery, Mooresville, North Carolina. He left will in Iredell County which mentions his father David Templeton's estate and names his brothers and sister.
4. Ester Templeton.
5. Abigail Templeton. Born ca. 1789. Married William Porter.
6. James A. Templeton. Born 17 June 1785. Died 1830 Buncombe County, North Carolina. Married Nancy Brevard Nancy is on the 1830 census McMinn Co. Tennessee.

The Scots-Irish who had suffered in Ireland due to the feudal system of tenure found a similar system in Rowan County, North Carolina. In Ireland they only leased the land, whereas in Rowan County they could buy the land, but they had to pay a yearly rent fee to Lord Granville. James Templeton's Granville grant states he is to pay yearly rent of 16 shillings.

Land in Rowan County was in the Granville Proprietorship. King Charles II granted Carolina to eight of his courtiers in 1663, which proved to be a mistake, and after many years of negotiations, seven of the owners sold their shares back to the Crown in 1729. The eighth share was inherited by Lord Granville, who refused to sell his share. Negotiations were continued with Lord Granville to no avail, and by 1743 it was agreed that his eighth share of Carolina would be set aside. Computing and surveying the area began, and in 1744 King George II granted the land to Lord Granville.

Lord Granville appointed agents to act for him in North Carolina and they appointed deputy officers. The land office was opened in 1748 and granted the first of the Granville deeds. Between 1749 and 1759 there was trouble in the land office. Some of the deputy officers were dishonest and failed to carry out their duties. Procedures that should have taken 6 to 12 months were not completed. A new agent took over 1759 and straightened out the affairs of the office. Margaret Holmann stated an analysis of 34 Rowan County grants made in 1760 shows 19 based on land entries (claims) made in 1753 and 32 Rowan County grants made in 1761, 21 had commenced as entries in 1753.

James Templeton was in North Carolina on 26 November 1748 when he was a chain carrier for survey of land of John Davidson, granted to George Davidson. James Templeton's land grant is dated January 9, 1761, but was surveyed February 6, 1753. The land consisted of 400 acres in Davidson's Creek, joining James McCullough's line, George Davidson's line, and John McConell's line. A significant difference between Crown grants and Granville grants is that the grantee signed the Granville grant. James Templeton signed with a mark.

James and Robert Templeton are on Captain Alexander Osborn's Militia List of 1759. Most Colonial Militias were organized in districts. Alexander Osborn lived not very far from Davidson's Creek. Militia duty was required for males who were physically fit and between the ages of 16 and 60. Could there have been another Templeton in the area who had physical disabilities or perhaps was ill at the time? Otherwise, any of the children thought to belong to James, except Robert, would have been under 16 years of age and no other adult Templeton in this one area.

This was a very dangerous time for those living on the frontiers. The French and Indian War began in 1754 and did not end until February 10, 1763, with the Treaty of Paris. The 1759 petition to the King previously mentioned above states "they are exposed to Great and Eminent Dangers of the French Enemy and Cruel Savage Blood thirsty Indians in their Interest, numerous almost as Grasshoppers and set on against us by the French. They having already committed many hostilities by Barbarously murthering many persons and families in their beds, houses, fields, etc. And carrying away captive Men, Women & Children to be sacrificed in flames to Devils in the most Horrid way at pleasure, or to be their slaves, Kept & brought up in their most devilish manner. Not only in Virginia, Mary-land, and Pennsylvania etc., but also some of our friends and Neighbors on the frontiers of these our said countys." The petition was signed by James and Robert Templeton on list # 2 as subscribers who live on the Earl of Granville land in Rowan County.

James Templeton was Constable in 1755 and 1756. On 25 January for 5 pounds proc. he deeded 200 acres of land granted him 9 January 1761 to George Templeton. He deeded the 200 acres balance of his land to Joseph Templeton for 5 pounds on 26 March 1783. The 5 pounds is a token sum and these two men appear to be his sons.

Lord Granville died in 1763 and his land office closed. People were no longer able to obtain title to vacant land in Rowan County and some just settled on the land. For 15 years there were people in Rowan County who cannot be identified in records. Court Minutes, marriage bonds, and tax records reveal some Templetons. Many of the tax list are missing and some are not complete. All people were required to turn in a list of their taxables and failure to do so resulted in fines.

Five marriage bonds are found in Rowan County for Templetons prior to 1800. Usually a marriage followed a few days after the date of bond. A bond alone is not proof of marriage, only intent. The absence of a marriage bond does not mean a person was not married in Rowan County. Marriages could be performed by a clergyman or magistrate after the publication of bans on three successive Sundays. Prior to about 1850 many people in North Carolina were married by bans.

Robert Templeton and Mary Black, 27 August 1768. George Davidson, John Olgphant bondsman.

William McDowell and Elizabeth Templeton, 27 February 1772; Nathaniel (son of James) bondsman, consent from James Templeton, 26 February 1772, father of Elizabeth. Consent was required for someone under 21.

Jane Templeton and John Calahan, 19 August 1775; George Templeton, bondsman.

George Templeton and Elenor Greacy, 19 August 1775; John Calahan, bondsman.

Robert Templeton and Anny Wells, 9 December 1788; Thomas Templeton, bondsman.

A 1778 Rowan County tax list has five Templetons living in the Davidson Creek area, which fell in Southern Iredell County upon its creation in 1788. This is Captain Davidson's list:

George Templeton	amount of tax	463.4.0
James Templeton, Sr.		285.12.0
James Templeton, Jr.		167.0.0
John Templeton		374.10.0
Joseph Templeton		poll

Robert Templeton is not on the 1778 tax list but was living in the Davidson's Creek area. He was constable in 1773. His land entry of 14 September 1778 proves he was living on land adjacent James Templeton in 1771.

Two men appear in North Carolina Revolutionary War records whose place of residence at the time of enlistment is not known. Thomas Templeton was a Sergeant who enlisted in 1777, omtd. January '78, mustered May '79 in the 5th Regiment. He received military land warrant #1643 for 428 acres for 36 months service, dated March 30, 1785, which he deeded to J. Malloy. In the year 1786 when the commissioners were settling army accounts he had Alexander Brevard collect what was due him. William Templeton, drummer, served 84 months. He was killed during service and his heirs received military warrant # 2624 for 1,000 acres, which they sold to John Donaldson. The name on the military warrant is Thomas Templeton, drummer, which appears to be an error made by the clerk.

In 1778 the newly formed State of North Carolina opened its land office. People in Rowan County rushed to file for the land they had been living on. The procedure for land grants remained the same. There were four steps. Entry (claim) where the person describes the property he wanted, warrant to the surveyor, survey, then plat. Each step required a fee and could be interrupted at anytime. At any point in the process it could be sold. People who made entries, except those in military service, were required to take an oath of allegiance. Some of the grants resulting from these entries were not recorded until many years after the entry. A person could make an entry for land that had not been granted by the Crown or Proprietors before Independence. People who had previous grants but had not registered them could enter for land to gain clear title. James Templeton did not register his 1761 Granville grant and appears concerned for title to the land he deeded to George Templeton.

14 August 1778, entry #1384, James Templeton, 200 acres on waters of Davidson's Creek and adjacent James Templeton and Alexander Work, including his own improvement. Made over to George (illegible).

14 August 1778, entry #1383, John Templeton, 640 acres on Waters of Davidson's Creek adjacent his own improvement and running agreeable to a former survey on said land. The term, improvement, was defined by law as having lived on land at lease seven years prior to entry date. This entry resulted in State grant #204 dated 21 March 1780 to John Templeton, 640 acres on Davidsons Creek.

14 August 1778, entry #1498, Robert Templeton, 300 acres on waters of Davidson's Creek adjacent James Templeton and William Criswell, including his own improvements. This resulted in state grant #605 dated 10 October 1783 to Robert Templeton, 224 acres on water Davidson's Creek, joining James Templeton.

25 March 1778, entry #642, Robert Chambers, 300 acres on both sides of Rocky Creek, including Sherrill's Ford, and his improvement which was formerly Frankum's. Robert Chambers never lived on this land. A man named Frankum had lived here and evidently left the area. This land fell in the northern part of Iredell County after 1788. Robert Chambers received a warrant for the land then on January 21, 1781 he assigned it to John Booker Hoy. September 9, 1781, John Booker Hoy assigned this to John Templeton for value received. This resulted in State grant # 1727, dated 11 July 1788, to John Templeton, 300 acres in Rowan County on Main Rocky Creek adjacent Shelly and Cowden on Trumpet branch, registered 20 January 1791 in Iredell County.

There was no hurry, contrary to law, to complete the process of an entry to grant which required paying all the fees. The 1778 tax law considered land entered which no caveat had been filed as taxable. Therefore, a person was recognized as owning the land prior to grant and he was required to pay taxes on the land. Few people conducted personal business during the Revolutionary War, especially when Lord Cornwallis, with his British army entered North Carolina. Money was scarce during and for some years after the war.

With the publication of Rowan County, North Carolina, tax list 1757-1800 in 1995, the first evidence of a possible connection between the Templeton families of Northern and Southern Iredell County appears. Captain Davison for 1782 - Thomas Templeton Pt 200. Other than the 1778 tax list of Captain Davidson (Davisons) district only a small list for 1781 and the 1782 list, which contains 15 names, has been found for this area. Mrs. Linn states the 1781 and the 1782 lists appear to be fragmentary supplementals. In comparing the names on these lists there seems to be no question that Thomas Templeton in 1782 was living in the same area as the other Templetons in Southern Iredell County. Thomas was responsible for part of the tax. Who was responsible for the balance?

A Rowan County List of taxable Property of Captain Reed's County for the year 1784 includes _____ Templeton: 300 acres, 1 white poll. Other names on the list prove this to be in present Northern Iredell County. This would be John Templeton. The Sate of North Carolina changed the poll tax from age 16 to 21 in 1784, thus there is only one person of age 21 and above in John's house.

The 1787 tax list made by Captain Joseph Nichols shows John, 2 white males 21-60, 2 white males under 21 or over 60, 5 white females. In 1786, North Carolina changed another tax law. Men over 60 no longer paid a poll tax, thus the age group under 21 or over 60. Who is the other male age 21-60 living in John's house?

William Templeton, William Sharpe, and John Sharpe on 29 April 1786 witnessed the deed of Thomas Morris to Thomas Hoy for land on South Branch of Rocky Creek, adjacent Bogers, Smith and Dobson. Mrs. Linn's abstract shows that William signed his name. This places William in Northern Iredell County in 1786. A William is not found again until 30 April 1801 when he buys 800 acres on the waters of Rocky Creek joining Trueman Hilton, William McConnell and Owens, from David Woodson. There is no deed of his selling this land and he is not found in wills or estate records.

Thomas Templeton was bondsman for marriage bond of Robert Templeton and Anny Wells. Both men signed their names to the bond. Thomas witnessed John and Martha Templeton's deed in 1792. On 22 November 1791 Cowden's executors sued Robert and Thomas Templeton, which appears to be a trespassing case. In 1804 Robert Templeton bought 500 acres on the south side of the main Rocky Creek.

Genealogical Summary

James Templeton was in North Carolina in 1748, wife unknown. He died after March, 1783. He deeded land for token sum to George and Joseph. Jane Templeton marriage bond to John Calahan appears to be his daughter.

Robert Templeton, born by 1743, probably the oldest of James Templeton's children. He settled on land next to James by or before 1771. Marriage bond to Mary Black 27 August 1768. Robert signed his name to bond.

John Templeton, born ca. 1744 or 1745, probably son of James Templeton. He was living on land on Davidson's Creek prior to 1771.

James Templeton, Jr., is on the 1778 tax list Davidson's Creek area. Junior does not always mean son of. At times it was used to indicate a younger man of the same name living in the same area. If he was son of James, then his birth would be placed at ca. 1746. No further record in Rowan County or Iredell County.

Nathaniel Templeton, stated son of James in marriage bond of Elizabeth Templeton to William McDowell, consent from James. Original should be examined to see if James signed with a mark. Elizabeth Templeton, born 1752-1757.

Thomas Templeton enlisted in North Carolina army in 1777. Place of residence at time of enlistment not proven. He is on the 1782 Davidson's tax list. A close relationship appears between John, Robert, and Thomas. The exact relationship unknown. They may have been siblings born between 1750 and 1760. Rather these men are descended from someone who came with the first Templetons, from someone who later joined them, or they came to North Carolina as grown men is unknown.

The Next Generation

John Templeton, born ca. 1744 or 1745, married prior to August 1767 to Margaret Graham, daughter of William and Jane Graham of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina.

John Templeton received a North Carolina land grant on 25 September 1766 for land in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina. The land evidently fell in Tryon County upon its creation in 1769 as there is a Tryon County deed dated 1 February 1770 of John Templeton and wife Margaret of Rowan County selling this grant. John signed his name to the deed. He was on a jury 14 January 1769 in Rowan County. On 5 November 1772 he was commissioned a Lieutenant in the militia. This is not Revolutionary War Service as the war began in 1775. 6 November 1788 administration on the estate of John Templeton deceased was granted widow Margaret Templeton.

Within a short time Margaret Templeton and her children moved to York County, South Carolina, where her mother settled after the death of Margaret's father. Margaret Templeton is head of a house on the 1790 and 1800 census York County, South Carolina. The following deeds identify John and Margaret's sons. Iredell County, North Carolina, deed book E p. 356, 3 April 1804, Margaret, William, James, John, Ezekul, and Thomas, the widow and sons of John Templeton deceased sold land on Davidson's Creek. Iredell County, North Carolina deed book E. p. 432-437, 24 February 1804, the legatees of the estate of John Templeton decease, living in York County, South Carolina, to James Templeton, one of the legatees of Iredell County, North Carolina. 110 acres on Davidson's Creek. James is to relinquish all claims or right to any other lands of his father, John Templeton deceased. Signed William Templeton (his mark), John Templeton (signed name), Thomas Templeton (his mark), Ezekiel Templeton (his mark.)

Children:

1. William Templeton.

2. James Templeton, born 7-21-1771, died 3-2-1857, buried Centre Church Cemetery, Iredell County, North Carolina. Married Mary Ramsey, daughter of David Ramsey.

3. John Templeton, born 1775 to 1784 per 1800 York Co, South Carolina, census. Living in South Carolina in 1804

4. Thomas Templeton, born ca 1779 per 1850 census Warren County, Tennessee.

5. Ezekiel Templeton, born February 9, 1781, died May 24, 1855, York County, South Carolina, buried Beersheba Presbyterian Churchyard cemetery.

Robert Templeton, 1790 census Iredell County (southern), North Carolina 3 m of 16 and up, 1 m 10-16, 3 f. Children are not proven. One may be Robert, Jr.

Widow Templeton, 1790 census Iredell County (southern), North Carolina 2 m of 16 and up, 4 m 10-16, 5 f. She is not identified nor are those living with her.

Joseph Templeton, born 1748, died 1826 Iredell County, North Carolina. He is buried in Centre Church cemetery. Wife unknown. Joseph lived all of his life on land given to him by James Templeton. Iredell County deed book N. p. 375, 30 October 1828, quit claim of legatees of Joseph Templeton (named) unto Joseph Templeton 104 acres where Joseph Templeton lived when he died.

Children:

1. Delia Templeton, born 1778, married James Alexander.

2. Joseph Templeton, Jr., born 1784, died 1856. Buried Centre Church cemetery, Iredell County, North Carolina.

3. Ephriam Templeton, born 1790, died 1872. Buried Centre Church cemetery.

4. Margaret E. "Peggy" Templeton, born 1793, died 1871. Married John McNeely. She is buried Centre Church cemetery.

5. David Templeton.

6. Polly Templeton, married James McLean.

7. Ledia Templeton, married James Donaldson.

8. Rachel Templeton.

Children not given in order of birth.

George Templeton, born 1751, died 1820 Iredell County Buried Centre Church cemetery. He married Eleanor Greacy, born 1755, died 1837, also buried in Centre Church cemetery. He lived all of his life on land given to him by James Templeton. His will names wife Eleanor, his children by names, and grandson Oni. He signed his will with his name. The will is witnessed by Edwin Templeton, who signed his name. This is not the Edwin, son of George, as the man who receives by a will cannot witness the will.

Children:

1. George Templeton, Jr., 1781-1853, buried Prospect Presbyterian Church cemetery, Mooresville, North Carolina. Married Leah Blackwelder.

2. John Gracey Templeton, 1788-1882, married, Jane Huggins.

3. Ester Templeton, married Hugh Gray.

4. Matilda Templeton, married Sam McNeely and moved to Missouri.

5. Eleanor Templeton, married Hiram Sloan.

6. Edwin Templeton, married Jane Dewese.

7. Rebecca Templeton, married Hugh Blackwelder.

8. Elam Templeton, married Nancy A. Sloan.

Thomas Templeton. 1790 census Iredell County, North Carolina (northern) 1 m of 16 and up. He married Mary Wigfield in Lincoln County, North Carolina, and they are found on the 1800 census of this county. They moved to Posey County, Indiana, where Thomas is on the 1820 census. A son, Thomas Templeton, Jr., born 1803, North Carolina, married Nancy Certain and moved to Illinois.

Robert Templeton, 1790 census Iredell County, North Carolina (northern) 1 m of 16 and up, 1 m 0-10, 1 f.

John Templeton, 1790 census Iredell County, North Carolina (northern) 1 m of 16 and up, 2 m 0-16, 5 f. Information on children not included here.

Dangling Templetons

James Templeton, 1790 census Burke County, North Carolina, 2 m of 16 and up, 2 m 0-16, 3 f.

James appears in this same county on the 1800 census enumerated with John Templeton 1 m 16-26, 1 m 26-45. James is on the 1793 tax list with one poll and in 1794 with 2 polls indicating a son reached age 21 in 1794. The following is a constructed family:

James Templeton, born before 1755, wife born before 1755.

1. Son born 1773 or 1774.

2. Son born 1775 to 1784.

3. Son born ca. 1789 or 1790.

4. Daughter married before 1800 census.

5. Daughter born 1784 to 1789.

A point of interest is that a Benjamin Hawkins is found in Burke County. Nancy that married John Templeton is said to have been a daughter of Benjamin Hawkins. Years ago when DAR required little documentation a line was established on John Templeton, born ca. 1760 Rowan County, North Carolina, died 1820, White County, Tennessee, married Nancy Hawkins. Son William Templeton, born February 10, 1804, Buncombe County, North Carolina. References given were 1790 census North Carolina (which we know is John and Martha) and a Virginia record of a John Templeton paid off at Fort Pitt. There is no record of a John Templeton from North Carolina serving in the Revolution. The reference of Virginia service is for Dunmore's War 1774 and this John is likely the John Templeton found in Halifax County, Virginia, in 1777.

Three John's have been confused. John in Virginia, John and Martha on the 1790 census, and John born 1775 to 1784 Rowan County, North Carolina, who was in South Carolina when William Templeton was born. John who married Nancy should not be confused with John, son of David, Jr., who is found in the same areas in North Carolina.

There is a will for a James Templeton in White County, Tennessee, dated 18 December 1816, proved 20 January 1817 in which he names wife Mary, sons John, Robert, George, and daughters Beaty Sorrels and Mary Shephard. James signed with a mark. Is he the same as the one in Burke County, North Carolina?

James Templeton received a North Carolina land grant 20 April 1771 for 90 acres on Bullock's Creek. This land fell in Tyron County. A Tyron County deed shows James on 22 November 1771 buying 240 acres on a branch of Bullock's Creek. After the 1772 border survey between North Carolina and South Carolina this land fell in York County, South Carolina. 1790 census York County, South Carolina. James Templeton, 2 m of 16 and up, 4 m 0-16, 5 f.

Genealogy of Descendants of John and Martha Templeton of Iredell Co, NC

1. John Templeton b. bef 1755, m. ca 1777, Martha Unknown, b. abt 1760, d. aft 18 May 1832, Iredell Co, NC. John died ca 11 Jul 1822, Iredell Co, NC. John and Martha Templeton were both born before 1755 according to the Iredell Co census for 1800, 1810, and 1820, which all list them as being over the age of forty-five years. However, other than these indirect dates, the earliest document we have on this Templeton family is a North Carolina State land warrant for Rowan Co, later Iredell Co, for 300 acres on the North Side of Main Rocky Creek to Robert Chambers, 14 July, 1788 found in Book 64 p. # 422. On 21 Jan 1781 Robert Chambers sold this warrant to John Booker Hoy and so endorsed the original warrant document. A few months later on 9 Sep 1781 John Booker Hoy resold this warrant to John Templeton, and likewise endorsed the same original grant document to this effect. This is the earliest provable date known of John, who later died intestate in 1822. When John died, his wife Martha received 50 acres as her dower, which was said to be 1/3 of John's land at time of his death. The balance of 259 acres was divided equally among his 6 children, as clearly shown in Ref 13 sketch which matches northern half of the map shown in grant survey made 11 Dec 1786 by Griffith Rutherford. John Templeton's 7 known land transactions appear impossible to reconcile, since they net out to only 89 acres in 1818. This disagrees with a figure of 800 acres on which he is recorded to have paid tax in 1815, and with the total of 309 acres inherited by his wife and 6 children in 1822, 50 acres for his wife's dower, and 259 acres divided between his children. Perhaps some deeds were not recorded, or the records were lost. John's original 300 acres first warranted to Robert Chambers in 1788, and purchased by John in 1781, was not surveyed until 1786, and was not actually granted to John Templeton until 1788. Finally it was recorded in Iredell Co deeds Bk A pg. 204 in Jan 1791. This process regarding John's original 300 acres took 13 years before being recorded. On 18 Feb 1792 John and Martha sold (Bk A pg 479) 150 acres of the original land and one of the witnesses was Thomas Templeton. Thomas, Robert, & William Templeton were close neighbors of John and Martha, and most researchers believe they must have been closely related to one another, though no relationship has been proven to date. On 18 Feb 1799, John Cowden sold 88.5 acres on North side of Rocky Creek to John Templeton. On 26 Dec 1799, Basil Prather sold 205 acres to John Templeton on waters of Little Dutchman's creek, joining William Prather, Thomas Prather, Benjamin Johnson, Francis Beggarly, & John Hendly, which included 1 acre for the meeting house and spring, part of a grant dated 25 Oct 1786. On 18 May 1801, John Templeton sold to Jeremiah Piles for 5 Pounds 4.5 acres on south side of Main Rocky Creek joining Leonard Dyson. Witnesses were William Mowen (Mowman), Jurat. Ingram A. Gill, deed recorded 11 Aug 1801. There were several other transfers of land during this period involving John and Martha either as buyers, sellers or witnesses. John Templeton had an impact on religion and the church. John Templeton was one of the first five trustees of Prather's Meeting House, the first Methodist Church in Iredell County, together with Zachariah Beall, his son Obadiah's father-in-law. Moss' Meeting House, (now Moss Methodist Chapel), is from the same period and now located on Mosswood Rd, off of Jennings Rd, Union Grove. This church was founded by William Moss sometime after 1800. William is thought (but not proven) to be the father-in-law of John Templeton's daughter Elizabeth who married John Moss. In the "Journal and Letters of Francis Asbury," (after leaving Wilkes county) "Tuesday 14, 1797 I preached at the church in the forks of the Yadkin on Isaiah XXXV 1-4. I had to ride eight miles in the rain to Templeton's". On his next visit his journal reads: "At Basil Prather's chapel, I gave my thoughts upon 'Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the Truth:' I fear this will be the case with many souls. Thursday, May 17, 1799. We came up the ridges, between Rocky and Hunting Creeks, eight miles to John Templeton's; over a path no sulky ever went before; my testimony was founded upon James IV, 2, 3." John Templeton left no will, however court documents (Ref # 13) regarding the settlement of his estate show he had 6 children: John Jr, James, Martha "Patsy" Templeton Cummings, Elizabeth Templeton Moss, Polly (Mary) Templeton Jones and Obadiah Templeton. In the sale of property in settlement of John's estate on 11 Jul 1822, James Templeton, John Templeton, Obadiah Templeton, the Widow Templeton and Jessee Cummings bought property. Note that son James eventually was agent selling land conveyed from John Templeton's estate to sisters Polly Jones, Patsy Cummings and Elizabeth Moss. See also Ref.s # 14, 17, 30, 39, 56. Martha: She received 50 acres (1/3) of her husband's land at his death in 1822 as her dower. Her will dated 18 May 1832 leaves clothes etc to dtr Patsy Cummings, & to sons James & John Jr balance of $500. note received for selling 3 negroes to Peter Jones. "All the balance of my property of every description" she leaves to "whomsoever takes care of me in my last days." Land is not mentioned, so perhaps her 50 acres was already deeded to someone. Obadiah had left NC several years before & appears in 1830 Bedford Co TN Census.

Children:

2. i John b. 18 Jan 1778.
3. ii James b. 18 Feb 1787.

4. iii Martha "Patsey" b. 1784.
   iv Elizabeth Templeton b. 1790, Iredell Co, NC, m. John Moss. Elizabeth died aft 8 Oct 1832. Ref # 11. 8 Oct 1832 James Templeton sells on behalf of his sister land inherited from her father for $100. to Robt Grant (no size given).
   v Mary "Polly" Templeton b. 1791, Iredell Co, NC, m. Unknown Jones. Mary died aft 18 Sep 1857, Iredell Co, NC. Ref # 11. 18 Sep 1857 her brother James sold 43 acres land for her which she inherited from her father to James Mullis for $120. In the 1822 division of her father's land Polly is listed by name, which proves her husband died prior to 1822. Her two sisters are not mentioned by name, rather their husbands, which was according to prevailing law. A previous researcher misunderstood later 1827 Iredell Co court record in which Joshua Jones (NOT Polly's husband) is guardian of Polly T Jones, prob daughter of above.
5. vi Obadiah b. 18 Oct 1792.

Second Generation

2. John Templeton Jr (1.John[1]) b. 18 Jan 1778, Iredell Co, NC, occupation Farmer, m. __ ___ 1798, in Iredell Co, NC, Anne Claywell, b. 1777, prob Campbell Co, VA, (daughter of Peter Claywell and Jemima Arthur) d. 27 Aug 1853, Buchanan, MO. John died 17 Sep 1850, Buchanan, MO. Anne: Iredell Co deed Bk D p.144 11 Sep 1800 "Joseph Nichols sells to Peter Claywell of Campbell Co VA" Anne's father Peter was a Revolutionary soldier, who first bought land in Iredell Co in 1800, apparently having come from Campbell Co VA. It is not known how long he had been in VA. However he was born in Worcester Co MD, so Anne was likely born in one of those 2 places. Her father Peter & mother Jemima Arthur had 12 surviving children who are well-documented Ref # 14. Also Peter's will: Iredell Co Will Bk 2, p. 245.

   Children:
   i Lewis Taylor Templeton b. 22 Jun 1805, occupation Carpenter, contractor.
   ii Jemima Templeton b. 4 Mar 1807.
   iii Solomon Templeton b. 2 Sep 1809, occupation Blacksmith.
6. iv Wiley J. b. 9 Dec 1811.
   v Peter Claywell Templeton b. 20 May 1814, occupation Methodist preacher.
   vi Mary Amanda Templeton b. 20 May 1816.
   vii Sarah C. Templeton b. 1 Apr 1818.
7. viii John Wesley b. 9 Jan 1820.

3. James Templeton (1.John[1]) b. 18 Feb 1787, Iredell Co, NC, m. ca 1810, Dicey Burton, b. 7 Dec 1796, d. 6 Dec 1874, Union Grove, Iredell Co, NC, buried: Templeton Cem., Dowell Rd, Iredell Co,NC. James died 25 Dec 1870, Union Grove, Iredell Co, NC, buried: Templeton Ceme, Dowell Rd, Iredell, Co,. The research on the descendants of James Templeton was performed entirely by one of his descendants, Larry D Coleman of Jonesborough, TN with the assistance of some other of James' descendants. This research comprised more than 1,600 names which were combined electronically by computer with the nearly 8,000 names contained in the main Templeton family computer database. It was not possible to edit every last person individually, so some of the conventions used by Larry found in this descendant group differ from those in the rest of the database. The most noteworthy are Larry's use of parentheses to mark nicknames, or likely names, or alternative names, which in the rest of the data are marked by quotes. In the rest of the data parentheses are used exclusively to mark the married surname of a widow to distinguish it from her surname at birth. Another is Larry's use of ABT to signify "about" meaning an approximate date, whereas in the rest of the data this is signified by "ca," a shortened form of the Latin word "circa" meaning "about." Also, many researchers have given James Templeton the middle initial "O," which some have thought stood for Orin. Since proof of this is apparently absent, we have ommitted the "O" initial. Finally, many researchers have stated James was born in 1783. However, Larry has thought the year 1787 more likely. In either case, we now know his father was in Iredell Co in 1781, so James was almost certainly born in Iredell Co, though there is no proof of this. These previous comments are by Jay Norwalk, whereas the comments below and all subsequent comments are by Larry D Coleman. James Templeton was a private in the 7th Regiment (Pearson's), NC Militia, War of 1812. The Templeton Cemetery, on Dowell Rd, Union Grove, Iredell Co, NC is on land that once belonged to the Templeton Family. James and Dicey Burton Templeton's graves are marked with Tombstones. James' indicates he served in the War of 1812. There are at least 6 other graves marked only with stones. It is believed by the family that Margaret Templeton, James's daughter, is buried in one of the graves. The identity of the other persons buried here is unknown. James was present and purchased items sold during the sale of his fathers' estate. The survey prepared in settlement of his father's estate lists a tract of 46 acres of land identified as James' share. Land records also indicate that James bought land from his father in 1818 on Rocky Creek. In the 1860 census there was a John Cummings, 20 yr old male living with James and Dicey Templeton. I believe this man is related to Jessee Cummings who married Martha (Patsy) Templeton. (Note in the 1850 Census John Cummings is living with Milton and Caroline Templeton, Son of James). James Templeton bought or was agent for selling lands conveyed to his sisters in settlement of his fathers estate. Iredell Co, NC deed bk W, pg 280, 8 Oct 1832, James Templeton to Robert Grant for $100, the tract drawn by sister Elizabeth Moss as her part of her father's (John Templeton) estate on waters of Rocky Creek. Also a lot belonging to Jessee Cummings conveyed by him to Augustine Moss, part of the tract belonging to John Templeton, deceased, of 47 1/4 acres joining Johnson and Augustine Moss, allotted to John Moss in right of his wife Elizabeth Moss then conveyed to James Templeton. Wit: John Davis, Allen Lunsford, 9 Sep 1844 Recorded. Iredell Co NC deed bk I - 604 - 18 Sep 1857, James Templeton, agent of Mary Jones, to James Mullis for $120, 43 acres on waters of Rocky Creek, part of tract allotted to Mary Jones out of lands of John Templeton, deceased, joining A. Steel and McConnell. Witness Stephen Mullis, Richard Mullis. 14 Apr 1858 recorded.

14. iii Ann Elizabeth b. 1824.
15. iv Drucilla b. 5 Dec 1827.

5. Obadiah Templeton (1.John[1]) b. 18 Oct 1792, Iredell Co, NC,[1] m. abt 1818, in Iredell Co, NC, Rebecca Tyson Beall, b. 5 Feb 1800, Iredell Co, NC, (daughter of Horatio Beall and Elizabeth Harris) d. 15 Jul 1855, Coffee Co, TN.[2] Obadiah died 30 Jan 1875, Coffee Co, TN.[3] By 1860 Census only John W was still living at home, age 22, "grocery clerk." This was one year before start of Civil War. Rebecca had died (not shown.) In 1870 Obadiah was living with John W in Beech Grove. DOD from letter from his son Dr John W with whom he lived to his brother-in-law, Robt Carlisle dated 5 Feb 1875. Letter reprinted in Coffee Co Histor. Quarterly, Vol XX Rebecca: The 1880 census ref for "Jane Carson" in family of Dr John Wiley Templeton, stated as his mother should be disregarded as a definite error. Jane Carson could only possibly be mother of Dr. John W's wife Susan Jones, who was said to have been married 3 times after marriage to Susan's father Col Isaac Jones. Rebecca's YOB derived from 1850 census is 1797, 3 yrs bef DOB above, which she gave herself in her bible.

Children:

16. i Burgess b. 26 Jun 1819.
ii Jane Templeton b. 1820, NC, d. died?. Not mentioned in Rebecca Templeton bible Ref # 80. Though possibly she might not have been if she died shortly after birth.
17. iii Elizabeth b. 1 Sep 1821.
18. iv Newton b. 20 Dec 1823.
19. v Mary b. 18 Mar 1826.

vii Columbus Templeton b. 22 Nov 1830, Bedford Co, TN,[4] m. 23 Mar 1854, in Franklin Co, TN, Amanda Taylor. Another man of same name, not married, living in Tuscaloosa AL in 1860 census. Ref # 80. His marriage to Amanda listed in Franklin Co, however almost nothing further could ever be found about his family afterwards. A beautiful, detailed & highly accurate Templeton family tree made in 1935 by Ethel Lunn Templeton wife of Henry Templeton shows Columbus has 2 children: John Templeton & Addie Hamilton. However nothing further could be found about either these 2 or others in1995. REf # 128 p 536 marriage.

viii William Templeton b. 25 Jun 1833, Bedford Co, TN, d. 27 Apr 1835, Bedford Co, TN. Ref # 80

ix James Orin Templeton b. 7 Oct 1835, Coffee Co, TN, d. 24 Oct 1841, Coffee Co, TN. There are 3 James O Templetons. Will Templeton 1991 says this one was for Orin Ref # 80.

21. x Dr John Wiley b. 20 Feb 1838.

xi Lafayette Templeton. Not mentioned in Ref # 80 Rebecca's bible. There was an L Templeton age 36 mar to "Tempy" in 1860 Coffee Co Census. However it's unlikely he was a child of Obadiah & Rebecca, as no confirming record has ever been found. Yet some researchers have always listed him with this family. I have left mention of him only to provide opportunity to state I doubt he is related.

22. xii Benton Bell b. 5 Jun 1844.

xiii Allanta Templeton b. 5 Jun 1844, Coffee Co, TN, m. 1884, George Ashley, b. Nov 1836, TN. Allanta died 2 Feb 1920, Winchester??, Franklin Co, TN. In 1850 census she is listed as Allanta. Everyone assumed this was a mistake and gave her name Atlanta. However, there is a marriage record in 1884 for an Allie Templeton of her age,which we assume is her. George Ashley found 1900 with Allanta. In 1880 he is found with Catherine & 6 kids. A 7th boy born 1883 Looks as if Catherine died in 83 & George married Allanta, but had no children with her. Some say birth name was "Attalanta." In 1860 census she lived with her Aunt Lovey (Bell) Bailey & Alex in Lincoln Co TN.

Third Generation

6. Wiley J. Templeton (2.John[2], 1.John[1]) b. 9 Dec 1811, Iredell Co, NC, m. prob bef 1835, in Iredell Co, NC, Susan Drum, b. ca 1813, d. aft 22 Dec 1860, prob Alexander Co, NC. Wiley died bef Sep 1861, Iredell Co, NC. Ref # 14, letter of 9/26/95. Lois Schneider points out that many Iredell Co marriage records were lost. Land he bought in Iredell Co in 1838 fell in Alexander Co after 1847. His will dated 22 Dec 1860. Found on 1840 Iredell Co census & 1850 Alexander Co census. Data on his children found in his will provided by Larry D Coleman, researcher of James Templeton descendants.

Children:

i Amanda Templeton b. ca 1836, Iredell Co, NC.

ii Isabella Templeton b. ca 1838, Iredell Co, NC.

74. Dovey Rosalie Jacobs (17.Elizabeth[3], 5.Obadiah[2], 1.John[1]) b. 11 Apr 1842, Beech Grove, Coffee Co, TN, m. (1) 20 Oct 1859, in Coffee Co, TN, Alexander F Wilson, b. 20 Sep 1837, Rutherford Co TN, d. 9 Dec 1863, Courtsville, GA, m. (2) 8 Feb 1866, in Coffee Co, TN, W C "Bose" Yardley. Dovey died 20 May 1929, Denton, Denton Co, TX, buried: IOOF Cem, Denton. 1850 Census says this child was David R ?? 1880 census says the only David in Coffee Co was age 43, born 1837, which is 5 yrs before 1842 DOB given in both 1850 & 1860 census. Since DOB wrong, I assume David R has different parents, even though David in 1880 b 1837 has a daughter Narcissa, & David/or Dovey had a sister Narcissa. There was a Dovey, because we find her marriage & later her descendants. The David in 1880 had wife Harriet, plus children John, Narcissa, Thomas, Lanna, & Maggie. See note on husband Alex Wilson. Alexander: I have left the note on Dovey as originally entered, because it illustrates record & census problems with many Jacobs. In this case the child was definitely Dovey, as learned later from other sources. She married 2nd to W. C. Yardley in 1866 in Coffee Co TN and was living with him in Texas in 1887 and thought to have had at least a couple children living there as well (all but one of these were Bose Yardley's by previous marriage). Alex Wilson died as Confederate soldier in Civil War.

Theodore died 25 Dec 1992, Statesville, NC, buried: Iredell Memorial Gardens, Statesville,NC. Theordore Templeton attended Statesville City Schools. He was the owner of his own business in appliances sales and services. He was an electric and refrigeration technician. His last place of employment was Bryant Supply Co of Statesville. He was a former member of the Troutman School Board and worked for many years with the Boy Scouts. He was a member of Shiloh United Methodist Church, and for 64 years was a member of the Boulevard United Methodist Church where he held many offices. He was a charter member of the Methodist Men. Theodore and Nomarie Cash Templeton celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary on 23 Jul 1982 at Boulevard United Methodist Church, Statesville, NC. During the Summer of 1930, Theodore and his friend Tom Williams set out to tour the western US traveling in a T-Model Ford car and with a great deal of resolve. His stories of this trip were delightful. Theodore and Tom traveled as far as Utah and ran out of money. They worked at various jobs to get back home. They lived off canned beans, and orchard apples; used train station restrooms; slept under the car; helped harvest wheat and other crops; and saw a great deal of this country. His stories of their travels, the things he and Tom had to do to complete the trip, and the things he saw and experienced during this trip provided a unique picture of the US in the 30's. He repeated this trip later in life in a more tame fashion. Theodore contributed greatly to the Templeton Family Unity. He was the head of Samuel and Lela Templeton branch of the family and His home became the Templeton Reunion gathering place (and other times as well) for many years. The Templeton family and descendants have many fond memories of these gatherings and the fellowship and good times that all enjoyed. Nomarie: Nomarie Cash Templeton retired from the offices of Gordon Furniture Company.

Marie Templeton Coleman is a member of the Covenant Presbyterian Church, Oak Ridge,Tn. She raised a family of four boys. Her one daughter, Kathy Marie was born with cerebral palsy, and lived only five years. Her caring and devotion to Kathy, during this time, required extra ordinary effort. All of her boys went into service and her home was a beacon in the night, to sons, wifes and grandchildren, visiting during frequent travels. Marie is a true homemaker. Thomas: Thomas Haskell Coleman Sr attended Statesville City Schools. Thomas followed his father, grandfather, uncles and brothers in becoming a Master machinist. He started working for his father at the Turner Machine Shop in Statesville, NC. At one time Thomas worked with his father, his brother Jim and his Uncle Alvin, at Turners. He moved to Kingsport, TN March 1941 and worked for a number of years as General Foreman at the Kingsport Foundry and Machine Shop. I often visited there, while I was in school, and met many of the men who worked with my father. They were fine men, who took great pride in their work, and were more than willing to take the time to explain how the many machines worked, and to show their craftsmanship. In 1959 he moved to Oak Ridge, TN and worked as Machine Shop Supervisor at the Y-12 Plant for Union Carbide Nuclear Company and for Martin Marietta Energy Systems, Inc. when they took over operations at Oak Ridge. The Y-12 Plant is part of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, operated under the Atomic Energy Commission. During a slow down in production at Y-12, in May 1965 Thomas moved to Pittsburgh, PA and worked there until returning to Oak Ridge in August 1966. He retired for health reasons in 1976. He was a member of Covenant Presbyterian Church, Oak Ridge, TN. My father loved to fish and he cherished guns. As a young man he used to hunt, however his desire to hunt faded, although he still enjoyed shooting. When the fish were running, he spent many weekends on Cherokee Lake and other TVA Lakes in Tennessee, catching 'crappie'. He taught me to fish. On one occasion, he visited me in California. We went fishing outside the Golden Gate Bridge for Salmon. We had 15 people on the boat, and there was a limit of 3 fish per person. My father caught the limit for 10 of the people. He made many life long friends that day.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN MARKS TEMPLETON —Staff Photo.

Miss Judith Folk Is Bride Of John Marks Templeton

Wedding Saturday Afternoon at Christ Church Assembles Large Guest Company; Reception Follows at Belle Meade Club.

Wearing her mother's wedding gown, Miss Judith Dudley Folk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beaumont Estes Folk, became the bride of John Marks Templeton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Templeton, of Winchester, at a beautiful ceremony Saturday afternoon. The wedding at 4:30 o'clock, at Christ Church, Episcopal, was followed by a brilliant reception at Belle Meade Country Club.

Dr. E. P. Dandridge, rector of the church, officiated in the presence of a large guest company, and a musical program was given by Mrs. Thomas H. Malone, Jr., vocalist, and F. Arthur Henkel, organist.

For the occasion a white and green motif prevailed in the decorations of the church. The cross on the altar had for its background a mass of white snapdragons, and the brass altar vases were filled with calla lilies. In the background of the chancel were formal arrangements of huckleberry vine, starred with lighted white candles. Bands of plumosus fern were on the pew ends.

The bride's gown was of deep ivory satin, made with a square neckline, a fitted bodice, and short puffed sleeves. The skirt, [illegible] in front, had deep ivory [illegible] set in on each side, and the train, draped from the front panel, was banded with a ebirr[illegible]. The bridal veil of ivory [illegible] was surmounted by a veil of real lace falling from a draped coron[illegible]. She carried an arm bouquet of white orchids showered with lilies of the valley.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Mary Folk, of Inverness, Miss., attended her as maid of honor, and Mrs. I. Willard Crull, of Chicago, Ill., was the matron of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were: Mrs. George Hamman, of Houston, Texas; Miss Martha Henderson, of Knoxville, Miss May Buntin, Miss Edith Caldwell, Miss Emmie Keebie, and Mrs. Cobb Pilcher.

The gowns of the girl attendants were similar models in two shades of Pervanche blue mousseline de soie, fashioned to harmonize with the period of the wedding gown. The gowns of the maid and matron emphasized the lighter shade of blue, and the others were of a darker tone. Distinguishing the fitted bodices were elbow-length puffed sleeves, and square necklines. Girdles of two-toned blue ribbon marked the waistlines, and the skirts, which just escaped the floor, were bouffant. The girls wore picture hats of Leghorn straw banded in two-toned blue ribbon, and carried arm bouquets of straw-colored tulips.

Agnes Fort, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus E. Fort, Jr., was flower girl, and Robert McNeilly, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNeilly, was ringbearer. They wore matching costumes of pale yellow handkerchief linen trimmed in Irish crochet. The little

William Handly of Northern Ireland And His Descendants

With special thanks to Robbie Johnson Farley for her considerable help with this chapter.

Historians and generals have often written of the "Fog of War" by which they refer to the fact that in the past, and even to a lesser degree in the present, generals seldom could glean even an approximate notion of what was happening in a large battle, once the chaos of actual combat began. Battles extended beyond the vision of one man, there was appalling noise of yelling, crying of wounded, gunfire and cannonade, the tramping of thousands of foot soldiers and horses, the smoke from perhaps hundreds of cannon being fired repeatedly for long periods. Messengers sent between units were often killed, wounded, captured, or simply got lost or pinned down on the battlefield. This "fog" phenomenon varied with terrain and other factors. Generals attempted to find some high ground from which a large portion of the action could be viewed, and if there happened to be high ground available, and if the country were open, they might sometimes see something of what was going on. But often the country might be forested or mountainous, and sometimes battles were not stationary, so that often a general might not be able to discover for sometime whether he had won or lost a fight.

This same phenomenon applies as well to history in a broader sense. Many have cynically observed that history is largely written by the victors in a struggle. If you are dead, you obviously cannot tell your side of a story, and it is also very hard to do so if you are on the run. In Twentieth Century America we have all grown up with countless film images of the American Frontier. Moving pictures have been mostly available throughout the century, though the technology has improved continually from one decade to the next. The stories of certain mythic heroes such as Daniel Boone, Davy Crockett, Jim Bowie, and others have been told and retold so many times, with the characters being played by so many different actors at different times, that the kaleidoscope of images tends to blur together in our mind's eye. They say that art imitates life. However, when you attempt to read first-hand accounts of some of the events of the early frontier, you can easily be struck today by a reverse phenomenon in which life seems to be imitating art. A manuscript attributed to Bertha L Clark written in the 1940's, but which may be a transcript of an earlier first-hand account dictated in 1835, describes in twenty-five pages of detail the capture and captivity of Samuel Handly's sister, Margaret, who was held by the Indians for five years between 1779 and 1784. Such accounts often omit mention of which tribe of Indians was involved, but in this case it was most likely the Cree or the Shawnee. The beginning of this account describes how Margaret, Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's fourth-great Aunt, and her first husband, John Pawley, set out in the fall of 1779 with a half dozen couples from "Handly's Fort" at Monroe, VA (now WV), home of her brother John Handly, to travel to KY where they had acquired land. They could not have been very fearful of Indians, to be traveling in such a small party, even taking with them their infant children, though one wonders why not. En route, after only a couple days travel, they were attacked by Indians. Margaret was captured with her infant. Her husband attempted to rescue her, but was shot at close range. He was able to walk some distance to try to get help, but he died the next day. At the same time, the leader of the attacking Indians reportedly picked up Margaret's infant child by the heels and "dashed out its brains against a tree and flung it at her feet." In films, acts of lesser barbarity seem like exaggerations to us. But in first-hand accounts they can only cause us to ponder how different were the times not very long past in which some of our ancestors lived. Such acts can only horrify us, and yet throughout the next four years of her captivity, Margaret seems usually to have been treated with relative kindness by the Indians. There was obviously a complex system of social values among the Indians, which caused them sometimes to treat people regarded as outsiders in a relatively inhuman fashion, but which at the same time allowed them to "adopt" into their tribes certain people, whom they thereafter treated as "family" and would protect from all harm. Their outdoor existence clearly gave rise to a value system which placed a very high value on stoicism and physical courage in the face of pain. Captives seem often to be tested by the Indians, and those who could measure up to their standards were spared and adopted, while others met death in ways that seem unusually harsh and brutal by our standards, such as being beaten or burned to death.

In school in the late 1940's we read about captured "pioneers" sometimes being forced by Indians to do something called "running the gauntlet." This is a strange expression not yet explained, since a gauntlet was originally a medieval armored glove, and not a part of Indian culture. In any case, a captive was supposed to have to run some distance between two rows of Indians, who would then beat him with various implements as he tried to run between the rows.

Perhaps woman were spared this harsh treatment. My memory of the accounts from grade school is that it was usually the old women of the tribe, who used branches, and thus inflicted no serious harm. However, it seems in reality it was often the whole village, including young men, who often used war clubs, and sometimes captives died from injuries received while running the gauntlet. At all events several detailed accounts have survived of the capture by Indians of Margaret Handly's brother Captain Samuel Handly fourteen years later in 1793, when he would have been about forty-one years of age, in which he is made to run the gauntlet. He was beaten so harshly that he fell unconscious at the end, face down, and bleeding to the extent that it was said he would have drowned in his own blood, had not an Indian kicked him in the head, so that his head turned to the side. Since he was unconscious, it is hard to know how this detail could have been recorded. Nevertheless, he suffered to some extent from this beating throughout the remainder of his long life, and it is said that his brown hair turned completely white thereafter. For some time after this beating it seemed likely Capt. Samuel would be burned alive at the stake, as many apparently were. Regardless of the exact details, Capt. Handly was spared, largely, it seemed, because of his brave and stoical demeanor in the face of this harsh treatment, and eventually he was released.

History is very erratic in the way in which it records images of certain people and events, while taking no notice at all of the great majority of people. Incidents, often including many details, in the lives of certain individuals survive hundreds of years, while accounts of the lives of most people, if they are ever recorded at all in the first place, are quickly lost in time. One thing that helped Captain Samuel's historical image immeasurably was quite unusual. After his many military exploits in various ranks, mostly but not exclusively against Indians, he was one of the original conventioneers at the forming of the state of TN, as well as for many years after a member of the TN legislature from a number of different counties at different times, and for many years both a judge and a justice of the peace, yet not much has been recorded of this public service spanning several decades. However, apparently towards the end of his life he was somehow defrauded in a manner the details of which we have not yet learned. This made him very hard up financially, and caused him to apply for a pension in 1832, when he was eighty years of age. Our young country was in its earliest years also quite hard up for cash, so it did not get around to enacting pension legislation for Revolutionary War service until the very late date of 1825, by which time many veterans had understandably already "shuffled off this mortal coil," as the expression goes. Of course some fortunate veterans had already been partially rewarded for their service by land grants, and Capt. Samuel in fact received two of these in 1783 and 1787. But the majority went entirely uncompensated. It seems unlikely Capt. Samuel would have applied for a pension at the age of eighty, if he had not then found himself unexpectedly in straightened circumstances. In the absence of most military records, especially so long after the war, those applying for a pension were required to swear out a detailed affidavit describing their lives, relations, and military service in detail, as well as submitting testimonial letters from witnesses whenever possible. If a pension was granted, as it was in the case of Capt. Samuel, then the applications were kept on file by the government, and can document a wealth of historical detail often not available elsewhere. In the case of Capt. Samuel, it provides documentation for many other undocumented accounts of his various battles and campaigns. And it has yielded up one singular document found on microfilm by one unusually diligent descendant and genealogical researcher named Mrs. Robbie Johnson Farley of Idabel, OK.

Robbie Farley also provided a copy of the original hand-written recommendation above, and she has compared the signature against known signatures of President Jackson and found it unquestionably authentic. From the perspective of American history, the above seems about as good a testimonial as history ever affords.

Those people seriously interested in Handly family history will almost always be acquainted first with the story of Capt. Samuel's capture and seemingly harsh treatment by the Indians. Probably a much smaller number will also be acquainted with his sister Margaret's parallel experience mentioned briefly above. In fact it seems Capt. Samuel had yet another sister Nancy, who was also captured by the Indians at age seven and also held for five years. Little is yet known of her experience or later life. However, it is now thought she may have married after captivity, and there is at least one clue to her later whereabouts in Winch. SC. so more may eventually be learned about her. Learning of three such stories of Indian captivity in the same family history naturally arouses one's curiosity about such captivity and attendant reports of seemingly barbaric treatment. In fact there is a fairly extensive, though not widely known, literature of Indian captivity, including some excellent recent books. For those wishing to explore this subject further, "The Unredeemed Captive" by John Demos (1994) is particularly recommended. This book begins with an extremely detailed and incredibly well-documented account of an attack on the Massachusetts town of Deerfield in the winter of 1704, during the so-called French and Indian War. In this account some fifty Frenchmen and about two hundred Indian allies from several tribes traveled three hundred miles from Quebec to Deerfield and in a surprise attack killed quite a few people and took one hundred and twelve captives, with whom they set out to return to Canada. In this event also, many infants were summarily executed at the outset, and apparently such treatment was not unusual. Certainly it seems uncommonly brutal to our minds today, as it did also to the minds of the eighteenth century British settlers. However, in the context of the barbarity of war, it need not necessarily have been motivated by hate of the white settlers and a wish to wreak horrible vengeance upon them. There were several practical as well as cultural considerations, when viewed from the perspective of the Indians. These are far too complex to go into here in detail. But we should at least keep in mind that the Native American population was involved in a long, drawn-out struggle of survival with the encroaching Europeans who had not only a totally different cultural background, but who enjoyed considerable advantages in the power struggle. Not only did the Europeans have superior weaponry, strategy, and organization, but they had a major advantage in that they were biologically immune to the many lethal diseases which they brought with them, and against which the Native Americans had little resistance. As a result the military and political power struggle of the Native American populations against the Europeans was often hampered by their populations having been greatly reduced by disease. It seems many tribes had a long tradition of sometimes replacing their own members lost in battle, to disease, or to other accident by capturing members of neighboring "unfriendly" tribes. Once such captives were proven worthy of adoption in the eyes of the capturing tribe, they were absorbed into that tribe and made part of it, after which they enjoyed the same rights as other members born into the tribe. Of course the need for such outside population subsidy increased greatly after the arrival of the Europeans, so in hindsight it is not at all surprising that they should have stepped up the activity of taking captives for adoption, which was after all a practice long sanctioned by many of their cultures.

In some respects the taking of captives for adoption might be viewed as a more humane military practice than many more modern and more lethal military practices. As for the killing of infants, in the case of the Deerfield attack, the Indians knew that they had a three hundred mile winter survival trek ahead of them, during the first part of which they were greatly concerned by the probability of pursuit by the English-American settlers, and the likely prospect of many of the attackers and captives alike being killed if they were overtaken and forced to fight. In those harsh conditions it was doubtless felt that infants could not long survive anyway, and that carrying them would slow down the whole retreat, and weaken whoever was carrying infants, whether a parent or an Indian. It seems to have been a general practice of raiding Indians not to take infant captives. Raiding Indians were usually on foot and concerned to put distance between themselves and possible pursuers. From the perspective of the Indians, a lot of their practices, however harsh, were simply necessary, common sense, survival responses to wartime situations. Thus captive-taking by the Indians was quite commonplace throughout the American frontier, however poorly it was understood by the settlers at the time. Naturally the settlers were horrified by all these tactics and behaviors on the part of the Indians, and thus the barbarity of the Indians was greatly exaggerated in both the popular press of the period, and likewise in the popular mind. Naturally few made any serious attempts to understand the Indian side of the struggle. However, it is not only a struggle in which the Indians in hindsight had little chance to prevail, but also one in which the inhumanity of the encroaching Europeans at least equaled that of the Native Americans, whose general populations throughout the North American continent are estimated by many historians to have been reduced by as much as 90% in the relatively brief two and half centuries following the arrival of the first Puritans at Plymouth in 1620. Another recent book entitled "Captured by Texts: Puritan to Post Modern Images of Indian Captivity" by Gary L Ebersole (1995) explores captive-taking by Indians and the American reaction to this based on more than three hundred survivor accounts.

William and Margaret and Their Children

William Handly and his wife Margaret, whose maiden name is still thought by most to have been Christie, had at least four well-documented children in America. Capt. Samuel Handly discussed above stated in his Pension Application in 1832 when he was eighty years of age that any records of his birth had long been lost, if they had ever existed, but that he thought he had been born in Pennsylvania in about 1752 and been taken to VA as a child. Different researchers have used slightly different dates and different birth places. At all events he certainly grew up in VA. His sister Margaret, also discussed above was also supposed to have been born in PA. The other two children, Nancy and John, were born in VA. A lot is found about John and his wife Mary Harrison and their eleven children and many of their descendants. However, so far very little is known about Nancy. There are four other Handly's of approximately the same generation whose records are closely associated with those of William and his four children, and these have been thought also to be children of William, perhaps born in Ireland, just on the circumstantial evidence and on the recurrence of names among the descendants. These other four were William Jr., James, Alexander who married Mary Ewing and had children Martha and John, and Archibald who married Joan and had children Sarah, Griselda, Ann, Mary, and James. Little has so far been discovered about descendants of these other four, and there is so far no proof of their parentage, though many documents place them in close proximity to the rest of William's family.

Captain Samuel Handly

Samuel Handly is one of those whom history has remembered both favorably and extensively, and we include here multiple accounts of his exploits first of all to illuminate the character of one of Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's most colorful ancestors; secondly to illuminate conditions on the early Tennessee frontier where other of their ancestors also lived, including the Marks, Colyar, and Lashbrook families; lastly to show the variation even in more-or-less contemporary reports of events of this period. Several different authorities report that Samuel Handly participated in the Battle of Point Pleasant in 1774, sometimes also called "Lord Dunmore's War." This was most likely his first military experience. As you may read below, Samuel Handly is mentioned in the well-known Draper manuscript as being in the "Battle at the Junction of the Kanawha and Ohio Rivers, under Col. William Fleming, in 1774." The book King's Mountain Men by Katherine Keogh White states that he fought in the Point Pleasant expedition with his brother Robert, in 1774, though this is the only instance in which there is any mention of a brother Robert. Another Handly researcher, Mary Foster Ludvigsen, states that Samuel's brother, John Handley, fought at the Battle of Point Pleasant. Also the book Tennessee Cousins states he was one of the volunteer Wataugans who fought in Evan Shelby's company at the battle of Point Pleasant. Finally the Biographical Directory of the Tennessee General Assembly, Vol. 1, 1796-1861 also records Samuel Handly's presence in this little-known engagement.

> The town of Point Pleasant was the county-seat of Mason County, West Virginia, on the Ohio River, at the mouth of the Kanawa River . . .The Battle of Point Pleasant, the only important engagement in "Lord Dunmore's War," was fought here on the 10th of October, 1774 between about 1100 Virginia militiamen, under General Lewis, and about one thousand Shawnee, Delaware, Wyandot, and Cayuga Iroquois under the Shawnee chief, Cornstalk. Lewis had been ordered to meet Lord Dunmore here with a body of militiamen, recruited from Botecourt, West Augusta, and Fincastle counties, but when he reached the mouth of the Kanawha, after marching 160 miles from Fort Union (now Lewisburg, WV), Dunmore's force. . . had not arrived. Early on the morning of the 10th the Indians suddenly attacked, and the battle continued fiercely throughout the day. At night the Indians crossed the Ohio River, leaving behind many of their dead. The militia lost about 144 men killed and wounded. . . . In December Lord Dunmore concluded a treaty with the Indians, by which they surrendered their claim to lands south of the Ohio and agreed not to molest whites traveling to the western country. The battle, which over-awed the Indians, and the treaty, which was not seriously broken for three years, made possible the rapid settlement of the western country, especially of Kentucky, during the early years of the War of Independence. . . (Britannica, v. 21, p. 892 & World Book Encyclopedia - Indian Wars section).

> The earl of Dunmore [was the] . . . British governor of Virginia . . . appointed in 1771. At first he and his family were very popular. . . He strove with some success to organize the Virginia militia in order to safeguard the Virginia frontier against the Indians and to push its limits northward to the Ohio River. Though the campaign known as Lord Dunmore's War (1774) resulted in an Indian treaty highly favorable to Virginia, Dunmore's efforts gained him little but abuse, partly because of his personal holdings and seizures of frontier lands and partly because many colonists considered that the war was merely an attempt to divert their attention from the increasing tension with the mother county. (Collier's Encyclopedia, v. 8, pp. 426-7.)

Now follows the Draper Manuscript account of Samuel Handley's involvement in this fight.

"His mother toiled along and raised her children and at intervals sent them to a country school until about the year 1774 when Indian hostilities broke out. When Samuel at the age of 24. in obedience to the calls of an insulted country, left the maternal bosom of a beloved and fond mother, the peaceful scenes of the family circle. and the delightful enjoyments of a domestic life. and rushed to the field of battle. And under the command of the brave Col. William Fleming in the notorious and well-fought Battle at the Junction of the Kanawha and Ohio Rivers, he sustained the character of a soldier. The line of encampment was three square, that is up each river and then across from river to river. The General's Marque down at the point - the spies and piquet guards came rushing in with the news of Indians, Indians. A numerous body of Indians soon made their appearance lined from river to river. No alternative remained but to fight their way out. The battle continued eight hours, and the only way the whites could perceive the enemy were giving way in the least was by "gaining ground on them."

Here we will relate a circumstance which showed the great strength and presence of mind in the brave young Handley. The smoke of burnt powder condensed in such dark volumes in the low grounds of the rivers, and the Indians concealed themselves so closely behind the great timber trees that Handley could not see anything to shoot at, so he reserved his fire saying "If I shoot, I want to make a sure shot." At this moment a soldier by the name of Bennum called to Handley saying, "Come here, little man. Give me your gun, for mine is empty." Handley refused. Bennum then pointed to a large tree a little distance off, saying, "Don't you see that Indian?" Handley then deliberately aimed and shot the Indian down. Bennum exclaimed, "Well done, my little man, you killed him." By this time Bennum had loaded. He fired again and exclaimed, "Well, I have got satisfaction, for that is eight fair shots." With that Bennum fell, having received a ball in his heart. Meanwhile Handley had loaded, but for the first time Handley began to be scared - for Bennum fell on him and the Indian raised up to scalp him, but Handley, raising his piece, let him have its contents in his head.

Finally, after a long and well-contested battle, the Indians gave way in the utmost confusion, leaving upwards of four hundred of their warriors dead on the ground. The American loss was 15 (or 75?) killed and about 240 wounded. Amongst the slain were all the commanding officers down to 2nd Lieutenant."

Samuel Handly must have married his first wife, Mary Adams, about this time, following the above fight, since they are listed in court proceedings in Washington County, which was then still part of NC. Very little is known about her, except that she died about 1779 and apparently had no children. It is known that she was the daughter of John and Agnes Adams. In the Spring, 1978 Ansearchin' News (pp. 25-26) there is section on "Abstracts Washington County, Tennessee - Will Book A 1770-1860". The following information is included about the will of John Adams:

A-173 John ADAMS: no date, old and frail; daughters: Mary Handley, Janet Scott, Nancy; sons Samuel and William Handley; James Moore; wife Agnes. Executor: son Samuel Handley, William Adams, James Montgomery, signed John Adams. Witnesses: Abner Mathis, Samuel Mathis, John McConnel. Proved no date

During the engagement at Point Pleasant Samuel Handly was a volunteer. However, in the summer of 1776 he enlisted in the service and his pension application states that he was living in Wythe County, Virginia at this time. Wythe County is a small county in northwestern Virginia today, but in 1790 it was very large, extending into what is now West Virginia, Kentucky and northeastern Tennessee. The Battle of Long Island Flats occurred on the banks of the Holston River. Samuel's pension application states that he served three months as an orderly sergeant under Capt. John Campbell during the summer of 1776. The following account of the battle extracted from the Draper manuscript is unfortunately incomplete, as Robbie Farley did not have access to this portion of the original manuscript.

"June, 1776: At the Battle of Long Island Flats, Handley was a private. In the fight, Lt. Davis, discovering that the Indians were endeavoring to out-flank the whites, called out, his eyes glowing fire, "Boys, boys, we'll be surrounded, follow me," and led them off and formed them across the flat to the ridge and prevented the Indians from their intended movement and soon put them to flight. One Alexander Moore and Handley, seeing two Indians fleeing, agreed to pursue them, each designating his Indian. Moore first overtook his Indian, both fired at the same instant, both missed. Moore rushed up and struck the Indian with the breech of his gun and broke the breech off. A clinch ensued. Moore could by his dexterity throw the Indian, but the Indian from his great size and strength could rise with him. The Indian then endeavored to tomahawk Moore, who seeing his aim, knocked the tomahawk from his hand. Handley, in the meantime, pursued his Indian, who when he found Handley gaining on him, wheeled and fired but missed. Then the Indian stood still presenting his front to Handley and received the ball from the deliberate aim of his pursuer, and fell to earth. Handley then returned to aid Moore, and found Moore and the Indian still clenched, the Indian dragging Moore towards the tomahawk which Moore with a vigorous kick, would place beyond the Indian's reach, then would again drag the desired weapon and Moore again exercising his kicking powers . . .

Thus the contest continued, when Handley called to Moore to seize the Indian's knife in the scabbard upon the Indian's back. Moore seized it by the handle and the Indian caught the blade in his hand. . . cut to the bones when drawn through. Moore plunged it under the Indian's left arm the whole length of the blade, extricated himself from the dying Indian and sunk the tomahawk into his head. This Indian was called the Big Warrior from his great size. Moore, leaving his broken gun, took that of the Indian even though some Indians by this time were between them and the main army. Yet, by swift running Handley and Moore succeeded in soon rejoining the troops, escaping some shots fired at them.

The same day of the Flats Battle, the Watauga Fort was attacked. An express soon reached Heaton's Station for assistance. Shelby [Isaac or Evan?] marched with 100 men, Handley among the number, to their assistance. When they reached there, the Indians had left. They were out of provider and Handley volunteered to go back to Heaton's for a supply provided some one would join him. None would venture, so finally he mounted his horse, a fine animal, and reached the station without any interruption, got a small bag of provider and wended his way back. As he neared a small deserted improvement, about a dozen miles from the Watauga garrison, occupied by some frontier settlers before the Indian disturbances, he discovered a solitary Indian in a cabbage patch, dismounted and crept along to within shooting distance and shot him down. The report of the gun alarmed a body of Indians at a house, a fourth of a mile distant, who raised the whoop. Handley mounted his horse and dashed off to the Watauga Fort, and after having gone a mile or so, loaded and discovered an Indian in the trail behind him, stopped his horse, both fired, the Indian fell. Then dashed on, loaded again; by and by discovered another Indian in hot pursuit, exchanged shots, but Handley's proved fatal, bringing the Indian to the ground. At this moment he, for the first time, saw several Indians on each side of him at some distance, apparently endeavoring to close in upon him. He put spurs to his horse and soon outstripped them, and having gone some two or three miles, checked the speed of his horse and rode on more leisurely until within sight of the fort. When to his surprise he again discovered his Indian pursuers on either side, making a desperate effort to cut him off from the station, put spurs to his horse, at the same time giving the alarm, dashed in, the gate was opened ready for his entrance. He barely escaped being captured, and passed safely through a shower of balls from the guns of the despairing warriors. The Indian party proved to number about 60. The men in the fort with their new supply of ammunition fired upon the Indians and trailed some distance without overtaking them.

The book The Cherokees by Grace Steele Woodward provides some additional details of this fight. The war chief of the Cherokees in 1776 was named "Dragging Canoe," and he was strongly opposed to the settler's rapid encroachment on Cherokee land. When the treaty was struck in 1775 between the Cherokees and Richard Henderson, which ceded the great tract of land between the Kentucky and Tennessee rivers to the Transylvania Land Company, Dragging Canoe stalked out of the council to protest the signing of the treaty, allegedly pointing dramatically in the direction of 'Kaintuckee' saying "You will find its settlement dark and bloody." Afterward Kentucky was sometimes referred to as the "dark and bloody land." About two weeks beforehand the Watauga settlers were warned that Dragging Canoe intended to strike the settlements near the "Great Island" of the Holston and those in nearby Virginia on July 20, 1776, and by the day of the attack Ft. Caswell on the Watauga under the command of Col. John Carter, Capt. James Robertson, and Lt. John Sevier was filled to capacity with settlers' wives and children. Five companies of militia and 175 frontiersmen awaited the attack at Island Flats, five or six miles below the junction of the Holston's dual forts.

Unaware the settlers were prepared, the Indians approached to within about six miles of the Great Island of the Holston, when Dragging Canoe's advance guard sighted the settlers marching toward them in single-file and fired, whereupon the settlers scattered for the woods. Dragging Canoe apparently thought the settlers were in full retreat, so he urged his men on. However, the settlers had stopped once reaching the protection of the trees, while Dragging Canoe and his men were still exposed on the trail. Early in the fighting Dragging Canoe was shot through both thighs, and was carried to the rear on a litter, and soon ordered the Indians to retreat, leaving behind thirteen dead. In his pension application, Samuel Handley states that after the successful battle against the Cherokees at Long Island, he continued serving on the frontiers. In the fall of 1776, he stated that he served for three months on a campaign against the Cherokee Indians, under the command of Col. Christian and that he served as one of the Colonel's lifeguards. The Draper manuscript states that no fighting occurred in Christian's campaign of 1776, and Woodward verifies this when she states that "Col. Christian with his 1,800 Virginians took the Overhills Towns without a struggle."

The Battle Of King's Mountain

Although Samuel Handly fought in many engagements over a period of years, his reputation as a soldier and a Revolutionary War hero stems largely from his participation in the Battle of King's Mountain, considered by some to have been a turning point of the Revolutionary War. King's Mountain is located in what is now South Carolina. On Oct. 7, 1780, the Americans were under the command of Gen. Campbell and the British were under the command of Gen. Ferguson. Although there were at least one hundred American casualties in the battle, there were over three hundred British killed, which caused the British advance northward to be delayed. Most of the Americans who fought were not soldiers, but frontiersmen. Several sources disagree slightly regarding which group Samuel Handly fought with. However, most likely he was among the Wataugans who fought in this battle under Col. Sevier. The pioneer Wataugans assembled at the Watauga Fort near the mouth of Gap Creek. They organized into a small army under Col. John Sevier and Col. Jonathan Tipton, and marched across the rough country to King's Mountain. Samuel Handley fought under John Sevier in several battles. John Sevier later became the first governor of Tennessee, and served a total of six terms. Woodward, in The Cherokees describes John Sevier as the handsome, hard-riding, fast-shooting John Sevier, referred to by the whites as "Nolichuckey Jack", but by the Cherokees as "Little John."

Samuel Handley described the prelude to the battle many years later in his pension application. In October in the year 1780 he went under the command of Col. John Sevier, in company with Col. Tom Campbell and Col. Isaac Shelby, and crossed over the Gould(?) Mountain into Burk County, North Carolina, and there joined Col. Cleveland, Col. Williams, and Col. Joseph McDowel, in the whole six regiments, under the immediate command of Col. William Campbell. Thence on through Rutherford County by the way of Gilbert Town, and soon into South Carolina, at which time the battle was fought on King's Mountain. There have been a least two books written about the Battle of King's Mountain. One of these, King's Mountain and Its Heroes by Lyman C. Draper, describes an interview with Samuel Handly's son, Samuel Handly Jr. in Pontotoc County, Mississippi in July, 1842.

> "My father was a private under Campbell at King's Mountain in 1780. The British would fire with the breech of their muskets at their breasts and would over-shoot, and when they fired, would by order retreat with great precision, loading as they retreated up the mountain. While the mountaineers with their rifles would take deadly aim and bring down their man at every fire."

The Draper manuscript, likely by the same Lyman C Draper, refers to the King's Mountain battle in part:

> "When the Provincials and Loyalists charged the Americans down the mountain, they seem to have reserved their fire till the termination of their pursuit; and having discharged their rifles, they retreated with great precision, reloading as they retraced their steps, as they had learned very skillfully to do by the example and instructions of Ferguson; but while they were thus deliberately retiring, the sharp-sighted riflemen below them, taking deadly aim, would pick them off at every moment . . . The forest-hunters often shoot too high when their object is below them. Be this as it may, the English shot whistled over the heads of the Americans, rattling among the trees and cutting off twigs, while the bullets of the mountaineers produced dreadful effect - the British losses having been nearly three times that of their antagonists."

Historical News for January 1993 stated the following about the "long rifles" used by the volunteers in this battle:

The pioneer's most necessary piece of equipment for defense and food was his long rifle. or his "Betsy" as he called it. Those rifles helped to turn the tide of battle at King's Mountain and at New Orleans. The "long rifle" was especially suited to the needs of the frontiersman. Lead and powder being scarce. the bore of the gun was reduced in size to fit bullets that required 70 or 80 to make a pound. Thus powder charges to propel the bullet were reduced. The rifle barrel was lengthened to measure from 45 to 50 inches. thereby increasing its accuracy. These guns were extremely accurate for 200 yards or more. Their barrels were octagonal in shape and about two and half times the bore in thickness. The best of them were bored by hand. It took the nerve and brawn of the hardy woodsman to handle one of these guns. their weight being from ten to twelve pounds."

A lot more can be said in comparing the long rifle and the British musket. Both used black powder. which left considerable residue after each shot. The rifled barrel of the long rifle. though much more accurate in skilled hands. was also much slower to reload. because great pressure was required to force the tight-fitting ball down the long. rifled barrel. Moreover. because of the tight fit required to allow the rifling to spin the bullet. the barrel clogged with powder residue much sooner. requiring cleaning much more often than the smooth bore musket. The typical British army recruit was young and had no previous skill with weapons. Thus. the British preferred the more reliable and simpler musket. which required much less skill and training to operate effectively. and placed more emphasis on the high volume of fire achieved by rapid reloading. as opposed to accuracy. In large unit encounters on mostly level ground such tactics were quite effective. However. against skilled marksmen in rough terrain. as here. they proved less effective.

Samuel Handley had attained the rank of Captain by Dec. 1780. That month he served under Sevier at the Battle of Boyd's Creek. described in Ramsey's Annals of Tennessee as "the best fought battle in the Indian wars of Tennessee." In his pension application Samuel Handly describes this battle:

"In the winter of [1780]. about Christmas. he went on a campaign against the Cherokee Indians under the command of Col. John Sevier. when the battle was fought on Boyd's Creek near Buckingham Island on French Broad River. which is now in the bounds of Sevier County. Tennessee. I camped there eight days when Col. Arthur Campbell came on with the Virginia troops. They struck the line of march on to the Indian's towns on Tennessee River. Thence on to Hiawassee Towne. Killing some and burning their towns and defraying their munitions and returned. Your applicant thinks these two last mentioned towns perhaps might be two months each."

Although he does not mention it in his pension application. several sources state that Samuel Handly served as a sergeant at the Battle of Cowpens. which took place on Jan 17. 1781 at Cowpens. South Carolina. and is also considered to be a pivotal battle of the Revolutionary War. The Draper manuscripts states that Handley fought in a great many skirmishes with the Tories in South Carolina. and then again joined the regiment under Col. Sevier in 1781. It was during 1781 that he met his second wife. Susannah Cowan. Draper states this occurred while he was under Sevier in South Carolina fighting Tories and taking British forts. He says that Handley was on one occasion sent out with a little scout of five men and chanced to stop at Robert Cowan's. a noted Whig. who prevailed upon Handley and his party to stay overnight. They consented and there he became acquainted and not a little smitten with Cowan's daughter. Susanna. After the close of the war. he went over into South Carolina and married to Miss Susanna Cowan. and shortly afterwards became one of the first settlers of East Tennessee (then North Carolina). Samuel Handley and Susannah Cowan were married February 4. 1782. probably at her home in South Carolina.

Samuel Handly After The Revolutionary War

During this period Samuel Handly settled in the same region of the Nolichuckey River also settled by other Templeton ancestors. including William Colyer. father of Ursula who married John Lashbrook. Yet another short extract from the Draper manuscripts sheds light on this period.

"Near the close of 1782. he was under Col. Sevier. a sergeant in the Chickamauga campaign. Was so well pleased with the country that he determined on subsequently settling in East Tennessee. In February of 1782 he married Susannah Cowan and took his wife to Greenbrier with the understanding with his father-in-law, Robert Cowan, that they would meet on the Nolichuckey.

In April, 1782 he settled first on the waters of 'Chucky, selected a fine tract, cut his logs for a cabin, went for his neighbors to assist him in erecting it, returned and found to his surprise and mortification the logs all cut in two. Went off half a mile to where lived three Dutchmen, all brothers by the name of King, Abram, Isaac and Jacob, the two former married. Handley said he came to ascertain who had cut his house logs, intending to give the man a whipping who did it.

The two elder brothers who were at home informed him their brother Jacob did it, as he had intended to settle the lot and did not wish anyone to build on it, but they would send for Jacob, who was out in a field nearby, and he would doubtless give Handley a chance to carry out his threat.

Jacob came in - Handley gave him a blow and soon the fight became warm. By some chance Jacob's head was caught under Handley's left arm and got well pummeled. Jacob, all the while backing down towards a small rivulet into which Handley threw him and nearly drowned him. Then the two brothers came to his aid and a general fight ensued. Abram and Isaac's wives ran out with their shovels and began pelting their husbands most unmercifully, who by this time were getting rather the better of Handley. Abram got two of his ribs broken with his good wife's shovel, who seemed to think that three upon one was not fair play.

Handley in the affray got a severe gash over his right eye and the upper eyelid fell down and prevented him from seeing, and the other eye was much swollen. So with difficulty, by holding his eyes open in part, and partly by feeling, he made his way back. When he recovered, he one day met Jacob and proposed to have the fight out. Jacob considered himself whipped and if Handley was bent on fighting him again, he should make no resistance, after which Handly concluded to waive his intentions.

He went home and built his cabin without further interruption. The next spring he made a more eligible settlement lower down a few miles and directly on the bank of Nolichuckey River in Washington County. Here he lived until early in the year 1797, when he moved to Little River, probably in Sevier County. Made three crops and in the summer of 1800 he removed to Blount County, and settled on B_____ Creek, twelve miles west of Marysville. In 1809, he removed to Franklin County in West Tennessee, ever and ever on to the frontiers."

Aside from revealing once again the martial character which stood Samuel Handly in such good stead in these frontier times, Robbie Farley explains that the above anecdote, together with other sources, helps to prove that Samuel Handley lived in Blount County from 1800 to 1809. Since census schedules for 1790, 1800 and 1810 for many counties were burned, it is often difficult to verify where people lived on the frontier. Another source which can be used for this purpose is the land grants, which many states awarded to Revolutionary soldiers. North Carolina Land Grants in Tennessee, 1778-1791 states in Section I that Samuel Handley was issued grant #380, in 1783 for 200 acres, in Washington County, on a branch of Sinking Creek, the waters of Holston. In Section IV it states that Samuel Handly was issued grant #19, in 1787, for 100 acres, on Cobbs Creek, waters of Richland Creek. This second award was probably in Sullivan Co. In 1790 there were only four counties in Northeastern Tennessee: Sullivan, Washington, Hawkins and Green. In his pension application, Samuel states that after the close of the Revolutionary War, "he rendered a great deal of service [in the Indian Wars] that he cannot bring into view, living on the frontiers and well equipt with a good horse and well armed, he held himself always in readiness at a minute's warning." At this point, we can provide another relevant passage from the Draper manuscript:

"From the time he settled on 'Chucky' till the Indian war of '88, he cleared up his farm, was a justice of the peace, and was chosen to the command of a company. Soon after the war broke out, the people 'forted,' and Handley's family among the number. His mother, then living with him, was quite aged. In the night he, with the family, moved to the fort and passed silently an Indian camp without discovery. The next night his mother was taken dangerously sick, from the fatigue of moving and the excitement of the occasion. Handley, against his mother's wishes, concluded to go to a neighboring house a mile off for some medicine. Took his gun and started, the moon shining brightly, passed through a lane nearly half the distance, in great silence, under the shade of a row of peach trees by the road side. He reached the house unmolested, the window was unbarred and he crept in,

got the desired medicine, and commenced his return. He feared the road, lest it might be waylaid, and finally determined to run the whole distance at the top of his speed. When he reached about half the distance, three shots were at the same time fired at him, but he reached the fort in safety, medicine furnished the recovering relief to his aged mother and she outlived the Indian wars and died in 1800 at nearly a hundred years old. . .

. . . At the commencement of the war of '88, Handley commanded a company of horse, another mounted [company]was commanded by Capt. John Mapp, a volunteer company from the _____ counties, now Green County. Went out under Sevier to Chilhowee, near which between the Chilhowee Mountains was a narrow pass through which the Indian trail led. It was thought a dangerous passage. A council of officers was held. It was decided unanimously, Captain Handley excepted, to go around the mountain and come in on the side of the town. In going around the next day an Indian spy was taken, who gave information that some picked marksmen were stationed at the pass first to pick off the officers and then the men, had the army passed. Sevier turned to Handley, and with a triumphant air exclaimed, 'Well, Captain Handley, if you had your way in the council yesterday, where would you have been now?' Handley said he did not know. 'In Hell!' roughly rejoined Sevier. They marched to town, a skirmish took place on and around the mountain, thirteen were killed, the town taken and burnt, and the army returned without loss.

In another campaign that year, related by Haywood, Handley was out with his company, saw the Indian with his forefinger shot off, the blood from which wetting the powder so he couldn't shoot, and was himself killed. In the campaign of Gen. Martin in '88 in the summer, to Lookout Mountain, Handley was not along. Was, however, with Sevier in September in his campaign just after the taking of Gillespies' Station. In '89-90-91, no fighting in East Tennessee, it is believed. In '92 war broke out, and then marched about 1st of November for S.W. Point."

Capt. Handly's Capture By The Cherokee

From the above it is clear that Samuel Handley had a long military career. However, one of his greatest adventures, and the one perhaps best known of him did not occur until the late fall of 1792, when he was captured by the Cherokee Indians. Three separate accounts of this encounter survive, and we shall include them all, as each has its own details, even though one account may have borrowed from one or both of the others. Probably the best known source of this story is in Ramsey's Annals of Tennessee, which follows.

"Captain Handley's Defeat, Handley's Captivity at Will's Town, and His Restoration (pp. 571-3)

Captain Handley, when marching with his company of forty-two men, two hundred miles, for the protection of the stations on Cumberland, was attacked near the Crab-Orchard by Middle Striker. The party consisted of Cherokees, Creeks and Shawnees. When the attack was made upon his company, a panic seized most of them, and they fell back. Handley labored in vain to rally them. He believed that if this could have been done, the Indians would have been defeated. He saw one of his men, named Leiper, in a most hazardous position, at a little distance from the Indians, and unhorsed. Handley conceived the design of rescuing him instantly, by seizing the horse's bridle and running him to the place where he was, to give the soldier an opportunity to re-mount. In doing this, he ran too near the enemy, and his own horse fell under him, pierced with wounds. Handley was immediately surrounded by Indians; furiously brandishing their uplifted tomahawks, the signal of death or submission. He jumped behind a tree, and was met by a warrior, who held over him a tomahawk, in the act of striking. He arrested the stroke, by seizing the weapon, with the cry "Canawlla" - friendship. "Canawlla" was responded by the Indian, who instantly began to seek his rescue. This he at length effected, by hurrying the captain around, till he brought him to the principal chief, where, for a short time, he was free from danger. While the Indian was thus drawing him off, Handley received numerous licks from other Indians, some of which seemed to be inoffensive, being made with the flat side of the hatchet. One was made by his own sword, from which he narrowly escaped. In another instance, a gun was fired at him, the muzzle not ten feet distant, which was only escaped, by some other Indians striking the gun upwards at the moment of its discharge. The efforts of Handley to rally his men, and in laboring for the escape of Leiper, seem to have drawn off the attention of the enemy from his men, and to have concentrated it nearly on himself. Only three of them were killed. The rest all escaped. Poor Leiper was seen by Handley lying scalped and lacerated with wounds. He exclaimed, "Dear

Captain," to one who could no longer command nor protect, who was hurried away by his Indian captors, and never saw him more.

Captain McClelland was, at this time, at South-West Point, and, with his company of light horse, was dispatched to the scene of the discomfiture, to bury the dead, and to rescue the survivors, if possible, from their captivity, and cut off the enemies' retreat. The first report was, that Captain Handley was killed, as the last time he was seen by his men, he was fighting hand to hand, surrounded by a crowd of warriors. But the light horse, in pursuing the Indian trail, found that wherever they had encamped, there were left the fixtures used by the Indians in securing a prisoner. Along the trail, too, at different places, they found slips of torn paper, which, on being put together, were found to be parts of Handley's muster roll, which he had considerately torn and dropped along the path, hoping thereby to furnish those who might attempt his rescue the means of ascertaining the route his captors had taken. The pursuit was, however, unsuccessful, and the light horse returned to South-West Point.

Captain Handley was taken to Will's Town. On his way, he was confined carefully at nights, and watched closely by his captors through the day. Arriving at the end of their journey, the Indians debated three days whether he should be killed or permitted to live. At length, he was adopted into the Wolf Tribe of the Cherokees, and treated like one of them, from November till March. Before his adoption into the tribe, he received repeated insults and injuries. He was made to run the gauntlet. Another mode of torture, was that of tying his hands and feet fast, and then hurling him over their heads, at the imminent hazard of dashing his nose and face against the ground.

During his captivity, the Cherokees became tired of war, and requested their prisoner to write a letter for them to Governor Blount, at Knoxville, proposing conditions or preliminaries of peace. He obtained liberty, at the same time, to write a letter in his own behalf, to his brother-in-law, Colonel James Scott, which is preserved and is here given:

Wills Town, Dec. 10, 1792

Dear Sir: - I am a captive in this town, in great distress, and the bearer hereof is a runner from the Upper Towns, from the Hanging Maw, and is now going up with a Talk from Col. John Watts, with the Governor, on terms of peace. These people are much for peace, and if Governor Blount sends a good answer back to the Talk they have sent up by the runner, I am confident their Talk is true and sincere; and, upon the whole, we are not ripe for war with these people, for they are properly fixed for war; but Watts is entirely for peace, at this time, and wishes for a good answer to their Talks. Dear Sir, I have been much abused, and am in great distress. I beg that you and John Cowan, and every good friend, would go to the Governor, and try all you can to get him to send a good answer, so that I can get away - for if an army comes before, I am sure to die. Send word to my wife, and send me a horse down by the Hanging Maw's runner, for I am not able to come without. Dear friends, do what you can, for I am in a distressed way. No more, but -

s/Samuel Handley

N.B. - John Watts sends to the Hanging Maw to send Calaka, the Hanging Maw's nephew, and another young fellow, down with the Governor's Talk and the horse for me, for he is a safe fellow, and if they come I am sure to get home, but if not, I expect never to get home; and I once more beg you to do your possibles for me, and do them soon as you can.

To James Scott, Nine Mile, Henry's Station. These.

This letter was favorably received by Gov. Blount, and though the Cherokees did not come to an adjustment till after another bloody struggle and ruinous defeat at Etowah, they commissioned eight of their Braves to escort Captain Handley in safety to his friends, in Blount county, with no other ransom than a keg of whiskey given them as a present. Capt. Handley resided some time after near Tellico Block-House, where the Indians frequently came for the purpose of traffic. When any of his Indian acquaintances from Wills Town came there, they crossed over to see him, share his hospitality, and repose upon his premises, as with a genuine brother of their own order." [101]

The Draper account of the same engagement, capture, subsequent captivity, and eventual release now follows.

"At the Crab Orchard defeat one Lieutenant Hale evinced cowardice. The Indians from the poplar branches in a big cove attacked Handley's unit while crossing the stream and there killed all who were slain, except Leiper. Handley ordered his men to retreat back to the bank in the trees. The Lieutenant and some of the men went out - Handley brought them back and . . .

Some of the warriors started in pursuit of Cowan, he was swift-footed and soon outstripped his pursuers. Just before Cowan is shot, General Garland shoots one of the four with his own gun, then picks up Martin's gun (who had been killed) and killed another. At this moment, Handley, who had not yet disengaged his leg from its confinement, called out to his men to take care of themselves as best they could. Garland runs and saves himself. Just after Lieper shot his Indian, Capt. Handley extricated himself from under his horse, and jerked away from the death grasp of Leiper, whose prints were perceptible on Handley's arm for three weeks. While some were trying to kill others to preserve him, he drew his sword, aimed it at one of his captors who warded it off with his gun barrel, striking the sword so near the hilt as to throw it out of his hand. He instantly knocked an Indian down with his fist and darted off, a number close behind him, and intending to gain upon them he dodged around a large oak to take another direction. Here an Indian standing behind the tree caught Handley by the collar and instantly raised the tomahawk. Then Handley spoke in Indian that he surrendered. His captor took a legging string and tied him, stripped him of his clothing and gave him an old bloody shirt which they had taken from some unfortunate white man (but it was not Cowan's) who they had killed, gave him a pair of leggings and an old blanket. Just as he was thus arranged an (Indian) came up within a few feet of him and presented his loaded gun at his face and just as he pulled the trigger, the Middle Striker struck the muzzle of the gun with his tomahawk and knocked it up so the bullet passed over his head, the powder burning him slightly. Then set off for _____, barefooted and illy provided for the _____ Red Bird who was wounded was carried in a litter by four young warriors.

...route passed through the _____ Valley crossing the _____just above the mouth of _____ Creek, taking down the Lookout Valley to Will's Town; situated on Will's Creek, a tributary of Coosa, and in what is now DeKalb County (Alabama?). This distance was about one hundred miles, and five days were employed in accomplishing the march. Each night on the march, he was confined in the "stocks," then his arms were pinioned, his hands tied fast, then laid upon his back, forked sticks driven into the ground over each ankle, each arm, and around the neck and well-guarded besides. On one occasion some of the pack horses in the rear becoming mixed, caused some of the Indians nearby to whoop, which led those to front to think that whites were at hand. Upon which a number rushed around their prisoner with tomahawks readied to kill him in case of an attack, fearing he might be rescued.

At Will's Town he was kept every night in the open and in the stocks. During the winter, exposed to the bitterest storms with a small fire at his feet, so close that the bottoms were burned to a crisp. His food was (gruel) of milk made from braised hickory nut kernels soaked in water, _____, and frog soup.

Twice he ran the gauntlet, three hundred yards each time. The first time he ran it alone, and got badly cut up, mangled with hickory switches, thorn bushes and clubs. The second time another white prisoner ran with him, who begged piteously to be let off, he was much mangled and was shortly afterwards killed for his conduct, the Indians comparing him to a woman. Handley asked no favors, knowing the Indians' character too well, ran as directed, though as in the other run his feet were too badly burnt to run with any comfort or much speed. He, however, executed himself to the utmost, and though most shockingly bruised, so much so that the moment he got through he fell helpless and senseless with his face in a small basin in the ground, into which the blood ran from his wounds in a sufficient quantity to cover his face; and, had not an Indian with intended cruelty, fortunately kicked his head out of the pool, he would have drowned in his own blood. Almost daily he would be taken out for some kind of sport. Sometimes they would make him stand firm and half a dozen of the best warriors would try to bring him to the ground at fist knocks. On one of these occasions he remarked to an interpreter close by, that the Indians couldn't knock him down, if he had as fair a chance as they, he could bring them down with ease. They agreed that he should have the trial, untied his hands; and a stout young Indian, called the Sparrow, who had come nearest to knocking Handley down, stepped forward, and Handley gave him a powerful blow and knocked him sprawling, which created an immoderate laughter among the bystanders at the Sparrow's expense. No more felt inclined to suffer the white prisoner to try his hand at fist-knocking.

At other times, a long rope was made fast to the prisoner and driven around the playground with one holding the end of the rope, while the others would attempt to jump upon the rope with their feet, and when they would occasionally succeed, it would throw the prisoner flat upon his back. Then anyone was at liberty to spring up as high as they could and strike their heels upon his abdomen or stomach, knocking the breath from his body, and seemingly killing him. At other times, with his hands tied, the squaws and children were permitted _____ his naked body with thorn bushes. On one occasion of this kind an old squaw had given him some severe blows with a thorn bush, he succeeded in giving her a powerful kick and landed her down a steep ten feet into Will's Creek, which raised a deafening shout of laughter among the chiefs and then assembled spectators. This same old squaw sixteen years afterwards went to Handley's residence in Blount County, Tennessee, a hundred miles from Will's Town, and tried one evening to kill Captain Handley, he shutting the door on her, she endeavored to stab him with a knife through the logs of the house.

When about three months of his captivity had expired, the Indians fearing, perhaps, he might escape, concluded to hold a council and decide upon his case. He was tied to a stake, and the light wood placed around him, ready to set on fire the moment the council should so decide. Capt. Handley was not afraid to meet his fate, for he had sought an interest in the Redeemer's blood some years previous, and was willing to yield upon his life whenever the heavenly mandate required it. Every moment he expected to see the torch applied, and often said in later life he thought he should never be more resigned to death than on that occasion. The council continued nine days, the Middle Striker contending that the prisoner was his priority, he having purchased him off the captor, paid 5 scalps for him, he being a chief among the white men was established, of five times the value of a common soldier or common scalp, and a common scalp was frequently reckoned at $100. As the council could not agree unanimously, it was finally agreed to leave it to John Watts, the principal chief of that town, who took three days to consider the matter, the council sitting all the time in death-like silence. Watts in the midst, covered with his blanket as if in deep study, finally burst into a cry. The interpreter seeing Watts crying went to Handley and told Handley that he need hope no longer, for his time (would come) within a few minutes.

Watts rose and exclaimed that the prisoner should be saved on condition of his joining the tribe. All rushed to the stake, unloosed him, and showered upon him their congratulations, saluting him as brother, cousin, and other kindred, being adopted. When he heard their shouts and they rushed from the Council House, he mistook it for the death-shout, and when set free, so suddenly, he could scarcely realize his own senses. For three months after his adoption he was treated very kindly, and was suffered to live with a white man of the tribe who had an Indian family, where his feet and wounds were dressed, and enjoyed very good fare. They tried to prevail upon him to take an Indian wife, but he evaded the subject or pleasantly promised to think about it at some future time. He attended some of their dances, but did not participate in them, probably from the condition of his feet. Before his adoption, Gen. Sevier, notwithstanding the contrariety of reports respecting Handley's fate, was inclined to think him alive, and sent word he would give $1000 and a good horse to Watts if he would sent Capt. Handley to him in safety. This offer was declined; they telling Handley that they were fearful if they released him that he would come back upon them with an army and take satisfaction. Then Sevier sent a threatening message, that if Capt. Handley was not sent in by a certain specified time, he would raise a powerful army and lay waste the whole Cherokee nation, sparing neither man, woman nor child. Watts returned for a reply that he was willing to make a general exchange of prisoners with Gen. Sevier, including Capt. Handley. To this proposition Sevier agreed, and about the first of June he was sent in with a guard of six warriors. When of a Saturday evening they came near the fort, Handley told the guard that he would proceed to the garrison, and if no danger he would conduct them in; but if danger he would give the war whoop that they might escape. Recollecting Handley's sufferings, the soldiers in the fort were in a great rage and were for rushing out and killing the Indian guard without a moment's delay. Handley, seeing their enraged condition and finding his efforts to pacify them useless, gave the promised war-whoop greatly to the regret of the garrison. From the fort he proceeded to church the next day, where he had a joyous meeting with his wife and neighbors, and joined with them devoutly in thanking that good being who had preserved him through so many dangers and restored him once more to the bosom of his family and friends.

He never fully recovered from the cruel treatment received while with the Indians. His sufferings and intense feelings consequent upon his (captivity) caused his hair to change within that period from black to silvery gray.

Yet a third account of this engagement now follows, which is said to have been found in the archives of the Tennessee Historical Society in 1924, among files "furnished by Gen. Rogers of Rock Island, Van Buren County, TN, with additions by A. W. Putman." I received a poorly typed transcript by K. Kenbite and dated June 1, 1924. However, Robbie Farley states that the same account was reprinted in American Historical Magazine, (Univ. of Tenn.), Vol. 2, (1897), p. 86. These early accounts are obviously slanted against the Indians. It is hardly fair to say, for example, that the Cherokees were "infesting" the Cumberland Mountains, when they had doubtless been living there for perhaps many thousands of years until invaded by European-American settlers. History tends to be written by the victorious side in a struggle. Unfortunately there are no contemporary accounts from the Indian perspective.

"In the year of 1793 the Cherokee Indians were infesting the Cumberland Mountains, when Gov. Sevier ordered Capt. Samuel Handly of Blount Co, TN to proceed with a company and scour the country over the mountains and through the wilderness, as it was then called. The Captain with a company left South West Point (Kingston, TN) Nov 5th, and proceeded by way of Crab Orchard, following what was then known as Walton's Trace leading in the direction of Blount, Manscoe's Lick, and Nashville. The company, consisting of some sixty men, encamped at the foot of Spencer's Hill. The following spring morning was beautiful and cheerful. The company had to cross a small creek or run which makes into Daddy's Creek about four miles West of Crab Orchard. The terrain was flat and beautiful, interspersed with Ivy which is common to that part of the mountain. As the company was marching carelessly along, the Indians made a furious attack, overcoming and dispersing the whole company before it could be drawn into a defensible position by the officers. Some forty of the men escaped on their horses, while about twenty were taken or killed by the Indians, and the Captain was made a prisoner as well. Lt. William Cowan drew off the balance of the company and made safe his retreat. There were reportedly some three to four hundred Indians involved in the attack.

As Lt. Cowan was retreating, he was called by one of the men not to leave him. He turned his head and saw a small man, one of the soldiers who had had his thigh broken, rise and fall. Lt. Cowan wheeled his horse around and rode furiously up to the man, taking him by the hand and pulling him up behind him, thus saving his life. All the while he was pulling him up, the Indians were firing at him, shooting several holes through his clothes. During his effort to pull the soldier up, his saddle turned under his horses belly, in which situation he galloped away with the wounded man.

As soon as the battle was over, the Indians, who had suffered only a few wounded men, set off for the "Nation," overjoyed at having captured Capt. Handly, whose reputation next to that of Gov. Sevier they well knew. When they arrived in the Nation, a general assembly of the Indians was called near Tellice Plains, New Monroe County, TN. After much consultation, the Indians decided to burn Capt. Handly on a given day, or on a day designated by John Watts, a distinguished Cherokee Chief, who was at the time convalescing from a wound received during an earlier attack on Buchanan Station near Nashville. The Indians further agreed that Capt. Handly would be made to run the gauntlet, a military punishment in which the prisoner or criminal was obliged to run between two rows of Indians, who would try to beat him on the head, shoulders, or elsewhere with sticks, stones, knives, or tomahawks. After this punishment, Capt. Handly was so badly hurt that the Indians postponed further action until he could recover.

In the meantime, while recovering, Capt. Handly went to see Chief John Watts, and had frequent conversations with him, in the course of which he grew rapidly in Watt's esteem. However, as the Council had decreed that the Captain was to be burnt, no one seemed to have sufficient authority to set aside this decree. So as soon as the Captain had recovered sufficiently, the town was summoned to see the Captain die. A stake was made fast in an open piece of ground, he was stripped naked, and chained with his back to the stake. In this position he found himself unable to move. And while some two hundred Indians went off to gather armfuls of faggots for the fire, the children and squaws gathered round him, offering all sorts of indignities to his person, spitting, and throwing sand and filth in his face. At length, finding all hope of rescue gone, Capt. Handly began to call the squaws and children cowards and thieves. And when the men returned, they so surrounded him with flammable missiles, that he began to call the men cowards, and told them if they were brave, they would shoot him like a warrior would treat a warrior. He resorted to all means he could to taunt them to try to make one of them shoot him. The Captain later explained that as it happened, about the time the first Indians returned with their faggots, the keenest peel of thunder that he ever heard rent the air, announcing that a very heavy storm was pending, and before the faggots could be set fire, the rain fell in torrents, thus suspending the operation for the day.

The news of the defiance Capt. Handly had maintained at the stake in the hopes that somebody would shoot him was reported to Chief Watts, as well as the fact that none would shoot him. In another three or four days it was deemed that the weather was again favorable, so the Indians once again tied him back up on top of the wood pile, but this time without stripping him naked. Once again, the Indians had scarcely made him fast, when a distant roll of thunder was heard. The Indians then all stopped their preparations, and soon Chief John Watt came out. He took his position near the Captain, who began a conversation with him, in the course of which he told the Chief he was a brave man, and they all loved him, and regretted they had to fight him. He further told the Chief how he and Gov. Sevier often talked about the brave John Watts. But, said the Captain to Watts, you have a cowardly set of warriors, who are all old women. If they were not, said Capt. Handly, they would shoot another warrior, not burn him. Soon Watt's eyes filled up, and he hollered out how it was a damn shame for a brave man to die, and they should both live to kill cowards, whereupon he instantly ordered that the Captain should be taken aloose and brought to him, which was done. Watts took him by the hands and told him he must go home and tell Gov. Sevier he loved him a heap big love. Instantly all the Indians came up and shook hands most cordially. Watts took him to his tent and fed him, and gave him a good place to sleep, and the whole population seemed to treat him well. For a week he did little else but sleep, and recover from the contusions on his head from running the gauntlet. He had the camp fever, and all his hair came out. When it grew back in it was white as cotton.

Capt. Handly was in many hard battles with the Indians, perhaps fifteen or twenty of them. He was a member of the convention that formed the state of Tennessee in 1796, and he was for many years in the Tennessee legislature. Capt. Handly was not a debater, but a man of extraordinary sense. On one occasion, an opposition candidate raised the objection against Capt. Handly that he was too old and gray to serve further, the Captain became excited, and raising his feeble voice, exclaimed, "Fellow citizens, the objection has been raised against me that I am too old and gray to serve. I am gray it is true, but how did I become gray? Why by having my head chopped at in wanton sport by those savages who brandished the scalping knife over the heads of our fellow citizens, and whose midnight yells awoke the tender infant and the sleeping mother!" These sentences seemed to electrify the audience, and that objection was never heard again, and the whole audience shook the old man by the hand, until the writer of this article was only relieved by a real schoolboy yell."

Captain Samuel Handly's Children

Capt. Samuel and Susannah Cowan Handly had at least seven children, including William Claiborn Handly, father of Robert Clinton Handly, great grandfather of Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton. The eldest was probably Sarah, born about 1783 who married Thomas Ross. Next was John born 22 Feb 1786 who married Nancy Cowan. Then Lucinda, called "Betsy" born 1788 who married John Bell, Tobert Cowan born 6 Jul 1792 who married Elizabeth Bell. Samuel Carroll Jr. born 1794 who married Mary Mapp, and then William Claiborn born 25 Jul 1803 who married Nancy Reeves. There was also a daughter, probably named Nancy who married a man named Hall whose first name we have not learned. Finally, some researchers gave Samuel an eighth child named Mary who was supposed to have married William Foster. It seems William Foster did marry a Mary Handly, but Mary Handly Foster's birth date is well known to be 22 July 1824, at which time Capt. Samuel's wife Susannah Cowan Handly was sixty three years of age. It happens that there is a descendant of Mary Handly Foster named Mary Foster Ludvigsen, who has researched her own ancestry thoroughly, but has been unable to prove the parents of her ancestor Mary. She suspects Mary's father was George C Handly, who was born in Franklin Co. TN in 1778, but proof of this has not been found, nor is it known who was the father of George C. Mary Ludvigson speculates George C might have been a child of Capt. Samuel by his first wife, Mary Adams. However, this also is not proven. If it were proven, then Mary Handly Foster would be a granddaughter of Capt. Samuel. Though it seems clear she is not a daughter of Samuel, she is being left in the genealogy for the present so as not to "forget" about her, since she is a well-documented early Handly, even though we are not sure if she is part of the same family, though it seems likely she will eventually be shown to fit in somehow.

William Claiborn and Nancy Reeves Handly's Children

William Claiborne Handly married Nancy Reeves who was born 5 Aug 1804. They Lived in Winchester, TN and had seven children. The eldest was William Claiborne Jr. who was born 1828 and married first Sarah Matthews, and second her sister Frances Matthews. Next was Sarah Ann born 1831 who married James N White. Next was Samuel Avery born 1833 who married Mary Cunningham, and then Robert Clinton born 17 Feb 1837 who married Elizabeth Marks. Next came Jonathan Reeves born 11 Jan 1839 who married Pattie Caldwell, the Susan Rebecca born 10 Jan 1841 who married Marsh Patrick, and finally Claiborne Ross born 5 Aug 1844 who married Lizzie Browning Caldwell.

Robert Clinton and Elizabeth Marks Handly's Children

Robert Clinton Handly married Elizabeth Marks on 27 Jan 1869. Elizabeth was born 2 Jun 1845 near Owensboro in Daviess Co, KY. Robert Clinton fought in the Civil War in Company B, Rock City Guards, Maney's 1st Tennessee Regiment, CSA. Another ancestor, Matthew Barrow Pilcher, fought in the same unit, and they are both shown in a 1900 photo of the survivors of that unit. Elizabeth was the sister of Albert Marks, who was Governor of TN shortly after the Civil War. Robert Clinton and Elizabeth had five children. The eldest was John Marks Handly born 23 Jan 1871, who converted to Catholicism and became a priest. Next was Leila Jennings born 1872 who married Wensley Hobba Singellton. The marriage lasted only a few years and Leila did not remarry. Next was Oscar born 28 Mar 1875 who married Franklin Lubbock Miller. Oscar became a successful merchant. Fourth was Novella born 25 Jun 1877 who married Harvey Maxwell Templeton Sr, and attorney in Winchester. These were the grandparents of Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton. Youngest was Avery born 15 Mar 1879, who married Ellen Malone Fall.

Summary Of Handly Sources

The following is a brief summary of the main sources used in compiling the William Handly Chapter, as well as the genealogy that follows. This is by no means every source, but only a summary of the primary ones. Among all these a pre-publication copy of Robbie Johnson Farley's book "The Life & Times of Captain Samuel Handly" stands out. In it are gathered together a great many facts, as well as relevant, hard-to-find documents, which are presented in their entirety, some of which have been included here. In addition I have collected various wills, death certificates, land transactions, census references, and other documents too numerous to list separately. My research has focused primarily on the Templeton family. The Handly family is an allied family to the Templeton family. Since no one prior to 1995 seemed to have gathered together genealogical data on all the descendants of William Handly to provide an overview, it seemed worthwhile to publish for future researchers the data collected during this study, which seemed more than had been previously collected about the Handly family. It was not intended to document every line exhaustively, nor to include every last descendant, but rather to provide a foundation for future research, which I believe is both reasonably broad and reasonably solid. The first two generations of the family reflects the best information available up to 1995, and I think reflects the general consensus of most current Handly researchers. Written sources:

Karen Luebke Stewart 1979 DAR application
Mary Sue Rootes Murch 1947 DAR application
Alexander Erskine Handly 1895 bible
Vella Handly Templeton bible
Robbie Johnson Farley genealogy

May Folk Webb 1944 Folk genealogy
Franklin Co Cemetery Records
Franklin Co Historical Soc. 1976 Bicentennial booklet
Templeton-Handly Family Reunion Notes
John M. Templeton Sr 1976 Family Memoirs

In addition to the written genealogies listed above, we are indebted to the following Handly descendants living in 1995, who contributed extensive information about their families either by phone conversations, correspondence, or both: Laura Brock Doley, Robbie Johnson Farley, Margaret Fitzgerald, Herbert Handly, Opie E Handly, Nell F Handly, Gustave Handly Jr., Tom T Pace III, Nancy Scott "Bea" Preston, Nancy Miller, Preston Rothery, Mrs. Shirley "Mimi" Spence, Fletcher & Barbara Spence, Rebecca Handly Sutton, Jane Chappell Vining, Gertrude Handly Woodruff, Susan & Frank Hammer, Gustave "Bo" Handly, Jr., Owen "Buddy" Hughes, Mrs Jack Hannah Parten, Cary Fletcher Spence, Oscar Handly II, Dr. Jack Templeton, Sir John Templeton Sr, Ann Templeton Zimmerman, Jewel Templeton, Becky Templeton, and Jim Fleming.

We believe the accompanying genealogy of some descendants of immigrant William Handly born about 1720 in Northern Ireland is several times more extensive than any other published up to this time. As shown above, quite a lot is known about Capt. Samuel Handly. He lived long, was many years in the TN legislature, a judge, a justice of the peace, and seems to have been an effective publicist.

Initially we collected information only about descendants of Samuel Handly's son William Claiborn, whose descendants commissioned this book. However, in the process we eventually came into contact with a network of other Handly researchers who are descended from two different ones of William Claiborn Handly's siblings, John and Sarah. When one does genealogical research one cannot help being struck by the tremendous energy and time many amateur researchers put in to tracking down their own ancestors with varying degrees of skill and thoroughness, but often with a large degree of success. Yet the majority of these people never think to publish their findings. Consequently their work is often passed around within families, and passed down from one generation to the next, often being copied many times, not only by Xerox, but sometimes even by hand. Of course original sources are often lost sight of in such a process, and the original data is sometimes distorted as well. Nevertheless such information can contribute greatly to the overall record of a family, though many "professional" genealogists frown upon it as being "undocumented." In compiling the present record we have benefited from a considerable amount of such material, sometimes including sources. In publishing the Handly genealogy we intended to provide a "pulling together" of as many facts as could be found, without being overly concerned as to ultimate accuracy in all cases. This work can hopefully serve as a point of departure for future researchers, and as a guide to probable or likely genealogical connections. It is remarkable in the case of the Handly family how many distantly related Handly descendants have traced their own lines from William Handly down to the present, without having either published their results, or researched other descendants in their own branches. Thus, we receive a rather clear view of the tip of the iceberg, but can only guess at what still lies hidden. In the course of the Handly research for this book, I have spoken with many William Claiborn Handly descendants, and assembled from these contacts a relatively complete and I believe accurate picture of all his descendants down to the present. For the many other branches included here I have sometimes used contacts with a single descendant who was also a genealogical researcher, and sometimes used sources such as DAR applications, which though usually quite accurate, may nevertheless contain undiscovered errors.

Genealogy of Descendants of William Handly of Northern Ireland

1. William Handly b. 1720, Northern Ireland, m. Margaret Christie?, b. 1724, Ireland, d. 1800, Eastern TN. William died 1756, Augusta VA. Immigrant from Northern Ireland ca 1740. Indentured to group headed by Rev Tennant. His youngest 4 children are known to be born in America. Four other probable (though unproven) children probably born in Ireland, closely associated with his family in Botetourt Co on Staunton River, now Roanoke River, in Monroe Co WV. Ref # 88 p 6-12. It is thought he came to America with wife & one brother, John. DOB of Archibald shown as his son is 1730, and does not fit with William's DOB of 1720. Margaret: Living with son Samuel at time of her death.

   Children:

2. i Archibald b. 1730.
   ii William Handly Jr d. aft 1785. No marriage found. Served in revolution.
   iii James Handly Sr d. aft 1799. Prominent in Monroe. Was Justice & helped in formation of Monroe Co from Greenbriar in 1799.
3. iv Alexander Handly.
4. v John Handly b. 1746.
   vi Nancy Handly b. 1748, VA. Held captive by indians 5 years. Badly treated. Never married.
5. vii Samuel Handly, b. 17 Sep 1751.
6. viii Margaret b. 28 Feb 1753.

Second Generation

2. Archibald Handly (1.William[1]) b. 1730, Ireland, m. Joan _____. Archibald died 1796, WV. Ramsey's Annals of TN p. 116 says Samuel's brother Robert fought with him at King's Mt. However, if there was a Robert Handly there, it was brobably not a brother. See ref 88 p i Sarah Handly m. 1780, William Shanks.

   Children:

   ii Griselda Handly.
   iii Ann Handly.
   iv Mary Handly m. 1803, John Miller.
   v James Handly b. 1760, m. Isabel _____.

3. Alexander Handly Capt (1.William[1]) m. Mary Ewing. Alexander died 1781. Probably died as POW. Fought in revolution under Maj George Campbell at Cowpens. Left a will in Botetourt 6 Dec 1780. Ref 88 p 8.

   Children:

   i Martha Handly.
   ii John Handly.

4. John Handly Lt (1.William[1]) b. 1746, Augusta VA, m. 1768, in Berkeley VA, Mary Harrison, b. 1745, d. 4 Dec 1829, Monroe Co WV, buried: Huntington Cem, Cabell, Monroe Co WV. John died 13 Jan 1811, Monroe WV, buried: Greenhill Cem, Monroe WV. His residence in Monroe was called "Handly's Fort." It was not a government fort, but rather a fortified residence built bef 1779. As late as 1939 some of logs were still to be seen on site about 100 yards from County Infirmery. Fought under Capt. John Lewis in Battle of Point Pleasant in 1774, and later as Lt. under Gen. George Rogers Clark in 1782-83.

   Children:

7. i William b. 1769.
   ii John Handly Jr b. 1770, Monroe WV, m. 13 May 1794, in Rev Jacob Cook, Lewisburg WV, Preassie _____ (Elder). John died 1821/29. Settled in Kanawah Co WV iii Margaret Handly b. 1772, m. 28 Mar 1786, in Rev John McCue, Lewisburg WV, Samuel Clark. Margaret died aft 1811. Samuel: Ancestor of researcher Bertha Lewis Clark.
   iv Alexander Handly b. 1774, m. 27 Feb 1802, in Greenbrier WV, Anna Reynolds. Alexander died 1848. Found only in his father's will, 1811, Will Book I p. 183. No other records. Believed to have settled Greenbriar Co.
8. v Archibald Harrison b. 1775.

vi Samuel Handly b. 1776, Monroe WV, m. 10 Apr 1797, in Rev Benjamin Grigsby, Lewisburg WV, Sarah M Harman. Samuel died 1851. Settled in Kanawha Co WV

vii James Handly b. 1778, m. 12 Dec 1812, in Union, Monroe Co, WV, Mary (Polly) _____ (Burke), b. 1767, d. 1844, Monroe WV, buried: Greenhill Cem, Monroe WV. James died 29 Oct 1840, Monroe WV, buried: Greenhill Cem, Monroe WV.

viii Nancy Handly b. 1782, m. 5 May 1804, in Rev John Wiseman, Union WV, Thomas Akins. No other records.

ix Sarah Handly b. 1784, m. 21 Apr 1803, in Union WV, Humphrey Keys, b. of Botetourt/Jefferson Co. Sarah died 1846. Humphrey: They left Monroe x Elizabeth (Betsey) Handly b. 1786, m. 10 Jan 1804, in Union, Monroe Co, WV, Andrew Walker. Elizabeth died 15 Nov 1861.

xi Isaac Handly b. 4 Nov 1788, m. 1809, in Kanawha, Kate Wylie. Isaac died 1877. Went to Kanawha with his mother.

5. Samuel Handly, Capt (1.William[1]) b. 17 Sep 1751, PA, m. (1) 1795, Mary Adams, d. <1779, m. (2) 4 Feb 1782, in SC ?, Susannah Woods Cowan, b. 17 Dec 1761,[1] (daughter of Robert Cowen and Susannah Woods) d. Dec 1836, Winchester, Franklin Co, TN,[2] buried: Carl Dixon Farm, E. of Belvidere TN. Samuel died 4 Aug 1840, Winchester, Franklin Co, TN, buried: Carl Dixon Farm, E. of Belvidere TN. Other DOB Jul 1748 on original gravestone. However, his Revolutionary War pension application which Samuel Handly wrote himself states 1751/1752. Also, some say he was born on Staunton River, VA. However, letter from E W Morgan, Acting Commissioner of Revolutionary War Section of AWF/MLB dated June 2, 1930 states according to pension claim S. 1911 he was "born in PA & when young moved to Augusta Co, VA." Vella Handly's bible, Ref 81 states his middle name was James. However, this may be from his original gravestone, said to have had name James in error. Ref 69. Mary: No children. Daughter of John & Agnes Adams. Susannah: Ref # 69 & 81

Children:

9. i Sarah b. 1783.
10. ii John b. 22 Feb 1786.

iii Lucinda (Betsy) Handly b. 1788, m. 1819, John Bell. Ref # 88 p 56 Robbie Farley believes Lucinda married John Bell, but other researchers have said Robert Bell. Both these Bells were living in Pontotoc Co MS in 1840 according to census.

11. iv Robert Cowan b. 6 Jul 1792.

v Samuel Carroll Handly b. 1794,[3] m. Mary Mapp. Samuel died aft 1842, Pontotoc Co MS. Was in Pontotoc Co Miss by 1838. Karen Leubka Stewart 1980 DAR app says his wife was Annie Pierce. Perhaps he was married twice? Middle name Carrol from Jane Vining DAR application. Mary: Ref. Jane Vining DAR application.

12. vi William Claiborn Cole b. 25 Jul 1803.

vii Nancy? Handly m. Unknown Hall. Several records suggest Samuel had a daughter who may have been a Nancy who married a man named Hall. However, one of these says she was captured by indians at age 7 & held 5 years, suggesting this researcher may have confused his sister Nancy with his daughter. One record says the Nancy who was captured later married and lived in Winch, SC. This needs further research, since though his daughter, if she was named Nancy, seems unlikely to have been the Nancy captured age 7 by Indians, she may still have lived in SC. Ref # 88 p 65.

13. viii Mary P b. 22 Jul 1824.

6. Margaret Handly (1.William[1]) b. 28 Feb 1753, PA ?, m. (1) 1774, John Pawley, d. ca Oct 1779, Wood's Fort, Rich Creek, VA, m. (2) 1785, in Union, Monroe Co, WV, Michael Tridly Erskine, b. 1752, Stirling, Scotland, (son of Henry Erskine and Jean Thompson) d. 31 Aug 1812, Union, Monroe Co, WV, buried: Union Cemetery, Monroe Co, WV. Margaret died 3 Jan 1842, Lewisburg, Greenbriar Co, WV, buried: Union Cemetery, Monroe Co, WV. First husband John & infant son killed by indians ca Oct 1779, and she was held captive for 5 years. Bore second child John Pawley some months after capture. Died at home of her son Henry. Ref # 88 appendix p 23. Interviewed 1835 by Kercheval for his "History of VA." Karen Luebka Stewart 1980 DAR app # 654382 gives marriage date 1816, but no place. Another descendant Robert Cunningham Thompson gave marriage date of 1805, probably Blount Co, TN. Yet another descendant Ruth Maxwell states that Thomas Ross was living in Franklin Co, TN when he fought in the War of 1812, & after lived in Lawrence Co AL, & IN, before ending in MS Ref # 88 p. 67. Thomas: Went to IN for a while. A Thomas Ross who was a Rev War vet is buried in Monroe Co IN, & who was born in Albemarl Co VA 1755. Possibly he was the father of this Thomas, but this has not been researched yet. Ref #88 p 68.

CHAPTER 12

Reverend John and Uriah Marks of Loudoun Co, VA and Their Descendants

Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's earliest known Marks ancestor was the Reverend John Marks born in 1716, though it is not known where. Also John Marks' parents are not yet known. The earliest record of John Marks is that of his baptism on 10 Aug 1740 recorded in the "History of the Montgomery Baptist Church" found in the Historical Society of Philadelphia. The same source states that John Marks and his wife Uriah were "dismissed" to Virginia 12 Aug 1761, when John would have been about age forty-five. In Virginia, Rev. John Marks became a prominent figure, and a considerable amount was written about him during his long lifetime and after. Several of these writers recorded several decades after his death that he spoke with a thick accent or "heavy tongue." The origin of this statement about his accent is not known, but if true, it is a possible clue to John Marks' national origin, since the Montgomery Baptist Church was established 20 Jun 1719 by Welsh people, and presumably for some years services were in Welsh. It seems likely that to have been an early member of that church, John Marks would have had to speak Welsh, so it also seems likely he was either born in Wales, or that his parents were Welsh-speaking immigrants. However, John Marks did not join the church until twenty years after its founding, so perhaps by then the church was not so exclusively Welsh as in its earliest days. The church was established in Montgomery Township, which was at the time in Philadelphia Co, Pennsylvania. Later Montgomery Township became part of Montgomery Co. Some have reported that John Marks went out from the Montgomery Church to preach the Baptist ministry in 1748 at the age of thirty-two. However, the church records do not show him as being "dismissed" from the church until thirteen years later, when he went to Loudoun Co, VA. Very likely he was preaching in the vicinity of Montgomery Township for those thirteen years, since land records show he lived in the adjacent Bucks County, probably not far from the Montgomery Co line.

John Marks married Uriah Ledyard, daughter of John and Charity Ledyard of Moorland Manor, Philadelphia Co, PA sometime prior to 5 Apr 1748, when her father mentioned her in his will as Uriah Marks. The exact date of marriage is not known, though a good deal is known about the Ledyard family, and Uriah's brothers and sisters. John and Uriah had eight children, five boys and three girls, all born between 1742 and 1760. These were Mary, Elisha, Martha "Patsy," Uriah "Ury," John Jr., Isaiah, Thomas, and Abel.

John Marks probably left Pennsylvania in 1761 specifically to take charge of the Ketoctin Creek Baptist Church, which was established shortly before 8 Oct 1751, in Loudoun County, Virginia, near the present-day town of Bluemont. In any case, he was an Elder, and the leading figure of that church for the next twenty-four years. "Ketoctin" is an Indian word meaning "wooded area." In the first two years after arriving in VA, John Marks made several land purchases totaling five hundred acres. Historians have observed that John Marks appeared unusually well-to-do for a Baptist minister, whose salaries during the period were thought to be modest. Attempts were made to ascertain this salary, but records of the Ketoctin Church prior to 1776 had been lost. Whatever the source of his funds, in the last half of his life John Marks was a man of property.

John Marks became a prominent figure in his community, not only through his land holdings and his leadership in the church, but also through his patriotism, and much has been written about him as an important figure in Colonial Loudoun County. An important fact about religion in early British Colonial America prior to the Revolution, of which many today are unaware, is that in many places only the British or Anglican Churches were officially recognized, and in some places, including Virginia, this was the case by law. This meant that only Anglican Churches could be called churches, whereas the churches of other denominations were obliged to be called "Meeting Houses." This policy of the British Colonial government towards religious dissent in the American Colonies resulted in many leaders among the many various "other" religions becoming energetic supporters of the Revolution, which Reverend John Marks certainly was. It is said that as a result of his preaching, almost every man of military age in that part of VA joined the American Revolutionary Army, including his five sons and two of his sons-in-law.

During the time he was minister at the Ketoctin Baptist Church, Rev. John Marks helped found several other Baptist Churches in the surrounding area, including the Broadrun Baptist Church, Fauquier Co., VA, which was begun the year after his arrival on 3 Dec 1762; the Linville Creek Baptist Church in 1775; and the Buck Marsh Baptist Church in Sep 1775.

As recently as 1983, the house in which Rev. John Marks lived was still standing, although apparently not in very good condition, as it had not been occupied since about 1968, and it had suffered some damage from vandals. In addition, a small fire further damaged the building, which also had been previously modified architecturally from its original appearance. Reportedly, however, there were still some interesting original interior details.

Reverend John Marks died 3 Mar 1788 in Loudoun Co., VA leaving a will dated 31 Jan 1787, which was proved 14 Apr 1788. Rev. John Marks is buried at the Shorthill Cemetery, "in the shadows of the Shorthill Mountains," behind the present Ketoctin Baptist Church. His grave has a simple marker giving only the date of his death at age 72, from which his year of birth is obtained. One of his sons, Capt. Isaiah Marks, who died three years before him is buried beside him. Uriah Marks was still living at the time of her husband's death, though it is not known when she died, or where she is buried. Rev. John Marks was considered a Revolutionary War Patriot for his energetic support of the Revolution, despite the fact that he was too old to serve, and his name is listed on a plaque at the entrance to Shorthill Cemetery together with the names of six Revolutionary War soldiers buried there.

The descendants of Reverend John and Uriah L. Marks have swelled to a very large number by the present day, and very many are known due to the extensive research of Mrs. Ransill "Jean" Marks, Frances Jones, and others, much of which is included in the Marks Genealogy which appears in the following chapter of this book. To discuss these many lines of descent in detail is far beyond the scope of this book, and it is hoped that Frances Jones and her collaborators will before very much longer publish their work on this family as a whole. The basic genealogy and index that follow are offered as an interim source for the benefit of those wishing to check quickly their connections to this Marks family and/or the other families presented in this book. Many may find this helpful, as there were definitely other unrelated Marks families, not only in the South, but even in the same region of TN and KY, of which a little more is explained below.

The discussion here will be limited to that line of this family that includes the direct ancestors of some of the Templetons. As mentioned earlier, Rev. John Marks' five sons all served in the Revolution, and the service of four of them is well-documented. Of these, perhaps the best known was Capt. Isaiah Marks, who is not a direct Templeton ancestor, but who had a strong impact on the direct ancestors. Capt. Isaiah Marks joined the army as 2nd Lt. in the 11th Regiment VA Continental Line on 11 Nov 1776. He organized his own Company, probably on the Ketoctin Church grounds, and marched over the mountains to join Morgan's famous riflemen at Berryville, VA. He was promoted to 1st Lt. on 15 Mar 1777 and was badly wounded the same year at the Battle of Brandywine, PA on 11 Sep 1777. His Regiment was designated the 7th of the VA Continental Line on 14 Sep 1778. He was again promoted to Captain on 10 May 1779, this time of the 56th Regiment of the VA Continental Line. Two years later on 12 Feb 1781 he was transferred to the 2nd VA Regiment, where he served until 1 Jan 1783.

The impact Capt. Isaiah had on his family was largely due to his receiving Military Land Warrant # 1695 on 30 Aug 1783 for four thousand acres of land in KY, as a result of his military service. For reasons that are not yet clear, either because of the length of his service, or because of his wound, or perhaps because of his performance in combat, Isaiah seems to have been entitled to land for his service, whereas his three brothers, who also reportedly served, apparently were not. This may also have been because he served in the regular army, whereas his brothers were perhaps only in the militia. In any case, Capt. Isaiah died only two years after leaving the army. He was only thirty years of age when he died on 20 Jan 1785 at the home of his sister, Mary Humphrey, in Loudoun Co., VA. Since Capt. Isaiah had not yet married nor had any children, he made a will the day he died, which was recorded in Loudoun Co., VA on 8 Aug 1785, leaving his four thousand acres of land in KY to three of his brothers, Thomas, Elisha, and John Marks Jr., one thousand acres each, plus one thousand acres to the two eldest children of his sister Uriah Williams, Richard and Samuel. In addition, he left two hundred acres to his brother Abel Marks, plus he divided a considerable sum of cash saved during nearly six years of service among members of his family. It is important to note that Isaiah received four thousand acres in one Military Warrant # 1695, but the actual land was in four separate one thousand acre parcels, not all located in the same place, or even the same county. Elisha received Survey number 4558 # 1 on the waters of Tradewater, which Jean Marks noted was in Union County, KY. Thomas Marks received Survey number 4558 #2, also located on waters of the Trade Water, presumably also in Union Co. but apparently not adjacent the land received by his brother Elisha. It should further be noted that in 1830, Thomas Marks was in Henderson Co, not Union Co. so it may be that he sold his land in Union Co and bought other land in Henderson Co. But it may also be that Henderson Co was later formed out of part of Union Co., as today it is located adjacent to the eastern border of Union Co. This has not yet been researched. The one thousand acres received by John Marks Jr. was said to be very close to the present town of Cairo, in Henderson Co, Survey number not yet known. The fourth one thousand acre parcel inherited by the two nephews, Richard and Samuel Williams, was Survey number 6409 located along the Ohio River at the mouth of Highland Creek, also thought to be in Union Co., KY, though part of Highland Creek today forms part of the boundary between eastern Union Co. and western Henderson Co, KY.

Capt. Isaiah's brother Capt. Elisha Marks was born 26 Dec 1744, probably in PA. He married Sarah Smith in PA. She was born 18 May 1751 in NC. Sarah was the daughter of George Smith and Christiana Johnson, originally of NJ, then of NC, and then of Montgomery Co. PA. Capt. Elisha lived another twenty years after the death of his brother Capt. Isaiah, and made his will 27 Jul 1805 in Loudoun Co., VA, which was recorded in Loudoun Co., VA on 9 Dec 1805. In it he stated that he had "lately" had his land surveyed, meaning apparently his land in VA, and laid off in lots, which he specifically left to each of his four sons John, Isaiah (nephew of Capt. Isaiah, ancestor to the Templetons, and father of Elisha Smith Marks who married Elizabeth Lashbrook), George, and Thomas.

Because Capt. Isaiah was granted the four thousand acres, which he left to his brothers and nephews in 1785, many descendants of the Marks family went to KY to take up this land, but ironically not any of Capt. Elisha's descendants. Capt. Elisha inherited from his brother Capt. Isaiah one thousand acres of land in Union Co., KY, on the waters of Tradewater, as mentioned above. However, it is not known yet what Capt. Elisha did with this land, though presumably he must have sold it, as there is no record that he or any of his children ever left VA to live on this land.

Capt. Elisha's son Isaiah Marks, nephew of Capt. Isaiah Marks, was the eighth born of Capt. Elisha and Sarah S. Marks' twelve known children. He was born on 28 Mar 1785 in Loudoun Co. VA, only about two months after the death of his namesake Uncle Isaiah. He married Elizabeth Daniel in Loudoun Co., VA on 29 Jan 1806. Elizabeth was born 9 Nov 1783 in VA. Twelve years after his marriage, at the age of thirty-three, Isaiah left Loudoun Co., VA in 1818 and went on a flat boat to Owensboro, KY, where he bought six hundred and fifty-six acres of land, which he farmed. It is not known why he went to the Owensboro, KY area, but it could have been because he had other relatives in the region as a result of his Uncle Isaiah's land grants in Union and Henderson Counties just to the west of Daviess Co., where Owensboro is situated. Isaiah died 15 Apr 1821, probably in Daviess Co., KY, only three years after first settling in KY. He and his wife Elizabeth D. Marks had five known children, Elisha Smith, Lucinda D., David D., John D., and Sarah Daniel, all born in Loudoun Co., VA.

When researching a line of ancestry like this one, it is unusual to be able to find three detailed wills, to prove the first two generations, as is the case here with the wills of Rev. John and his two sons, Capt. Isaiah and Capt. Elisha cited above. Capt. Elisha's son, Isaiah, who went to Owensboro, KY may also have left a will, though it has not been found. However, the courthouse in Owensboro was destroyed at one point, possibly during the Civil War, and many records were lost. In any case, Elisha Smith Marks' descent from his father Isaiah is verified by family Bible records, the 1850 Census showing him living with his mother Elizabeth Marks age sixty-six, plus the fact that he appears to have inherited his father's land, being the eldest son.

Although we have not found a will for Isaiah in Daviess Co., we have found an alternative proof for the first three generations of Rev. John Marks' family in the form of a military pension claim filed by Thomas Marks in 1830 in Henderson Co., KY on behalf of the siblings of Capt. Isaiah, who died forty-five years before in 1785, and their descendants. In 1830, Thomas, the brother of Isaiah and Elisha, who made the pension claim for Isaiah's descendants, was age seventy-four, and was the only sibling of the original eight still surviving in 1830. As explained in the previous chapter on the Handly family, after the Revolution the infant American government was very short of money, and as a result delayed a very long time until 1825 before passing the Revolutionary War Pension Act. This accounts for these seemingly very belated applications. Because it was so long since the war at that point, pension claims had to be substantiated in detail by sworn affidavits, because documentary proof of service had often been lost, and witnesses who might have testified had either died or been lost in the frontier. The fact that this long delay often resulted in the requirement for detailed affidavits, means that when pensions were granted, the affidavits were recorded, and these are often an excellent source of documentary evidence about families, as in this case. Capt. Isaiah's pension application, filed by his brother Thomas, lists all eight of Rev. John Marks' children, as well as the married names of his three daughters, plus the names of thirty-nine of his grandchildren.

While the extreme tardiness of the Revolutionary War Pension Act explains the otherwise surprising delay in the filing of Capt. Isaiah's claim, it leaves unresolved the obvious question of why, if the Thomas Marks of Henderson Co., KY in 1830 was filing a posthumous claim based on the service of his brother, Capt. Isaiah, who died in 1785, he did not also file another claim based upon the service of his other brother, Capt. Elisha, who died in 1805, or for himself, for that matter. Capt. Elisha was definitely an officer in the Loudoun Co Militia in 1778, and DAR membership number 706464 was granted to Mary Marks Powers on 6 Feb 1987 based upon his service as Capt. in the Loudoun Co Militia. All five of Rev. John Marks' sons were reported to have served in the Revolution. We do not know the answer. Apparently service in the militia did not entitle one to a pension according to the Pension Act of 1825.

The picture of this Marks family presented here and in the genealogy in the following chapter is extensive and clear, but it should not be forgotten that this is based on the fortunate discovery of many detailed records made possible by the diligent research of many family members over many decades. Without the discovery of these records it would be almost impossible to distinguish members of this Marks family from the many other Marks families in Colonial VA and KY. There are ten other Revolutionary War pensions awarded to men named Marks or their descendants, besides the one for Isaiah cited above, and none of these Marks are related to Rev. John Marks. Moreover there are twenty-one veterans named Marks accepted by the DAR, and there may be other soldiers named Marks who fought in the Revolution, for whom no one has yet filed a DAR application.

In case anyone in the future should seek to research this family independently, they would in all likelihood discover the only previously published Marks genealogy entitled "Marks-Barnett Families and Their Kin," first published by Marion D. Pettigrew in 1939, and updated in 1981. This book is five hundred pages and purports to offer details of many Marks lines. However, the details pertaining to the Templeton line described above are mostly entirely wrong, and could send one on a lengthy wild goose chase. Correspondence is quoted from several descendants, the first of which on page seventy-five is a letter from Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's grandfather, Harvey Maxwell Templeton Sr., dated 1911, and explaining the connection to Elisha Smith Marks, his wife, Vella Handly's grandfather. A second correspondent, Mrs. W.T. Brown, of Winston-Salem N.C. states quite definitely on page eighty-one that the Elisha Marks mentioned previously was the grandson of Hastings Marks and Ann Scott Jefferson. This informant states that Elisha's father, whom she does not name, who was presumably the son of Hastings and Ann, immigrated to Owensboro, KY. These are intriguing clues, since they correctly point to Owensboro, though unfortunately they are totally wrong. Mrs. Brown's information also contains other errors not worth belaboring further, as does the book as a whole. This book and some of its information are mentioned here for several reasons. First it emphasizes that published genealogies can contain egregious errors and must always be documented and checked. Further it emphasizes that there were other prominent families bearing the surname Marks, and even Marks families who had members documented to have served in the Revolution, and who afterwards had members who immigrated to KY and TN.

Many have reported beyond doubt that Hastings Marks Jr., son of Hastings Marks Sr., did marry Ann Scott Jefferson, sister of President Thomas Jefferson, in Albemarle Co, VA in Oct 1788. She was born 1 Oct 1755 daughter of Peter Jefferson and Jane Randolph, and granddaughter of Thomas Jefferson Sr. and Mary Field. Hastings Marks was one of the seven proven children of Hastings Marks Sr., who married Mary Unknown and died after 5 Nov 1761, though his ancestry is as yet unknown. A lot is known about several of these children. Hastings Marks lived in the Ragged Mountains section of Albemarle Co, VA. Sometime after his marriage he moved to the "tidewater" part of the state, exact location unknown, and therefore it is hard to look for further information about his children, who are not yet reported by other researchers. However, these unnamed children of Hastings Marks and Ann Jefferson are said to have moved on to KY. Specifically, the son who was supposedly the father of the Templeton ancestor Elisha Smith Marks was said to have moved to Owensboro, KY, where Elisha at least resided, so apparently some connected the two without having any documentary evidence for doing so. Hastings Marks Jr. was said to have been a Col. who fought in the Revolution. Perhaps he was in the militia. At all events his brother John was a Capt. in the Revolution, for which his widow Lucy Meriwether (Lewis) Marks was awarded in 1836 a few months before her death one of the eleven pensions awarded to the Marks surname, for the service of her husband John who had died forty-five years before.

Further proof that there were early settlers with the surname Marks in KY almost certainly not related to Rev. John Marks is found in early KY records. The state of KY was formed from part of VA in 1792. Before that, there was a very large county called Nelson Co., VA, which became a very large Co in the new state of KY, and which included perhaps thirty of the present counties of KY. Records of quite a few Marks are easily found in Nelson Co in 1790 and 1800 and after, and the list below could probably at least be doubled with additional research. The first two records of Marks in KY were in 1789 when George Marks and Benjamin Marks and about one hundred other men petitioned the Virginia Land Commission to improve some roads and build a warehouse to facilitate bringing their crops to market. Between 1790 and 1820 there were at least the following Marks according to marriage and probate records for Nelson Co: two Benjamins, probably father and son, George, Isaac, Jacob, and John, and also Susannah, Mary, Nancy, William, Bluford, Sally S, Davis, James, Elizabeth, Margaret, and others, but no Elisha until the 1830 census in Henderson Co. The following actual records from early KY are only intended as a sample, and to show the difficulty of matching a person of a particular name with a family without exact knowledge of dates and/or places, or at least some corroborating evidence. Even without the benefit of present knowledge, we might have guessed that the first two records were too early. In any case, the only Benjamin in Rev. John's family was son of John Jr., and he married Rachel, not Sarah. We have no Jacob, Nancy, William, or Susanna, daughter of George. Only Capt. Elisha had a son George, and we believe he stayed in VA. If one continues down the list one will find a couple later records of people who were in fact known descendants of Rev. John. But by and large these records are for people of Marks families not related to Rev. John Marks.

1 Nov 1794	Benjamin Sr. married Sarah Birkhead, Nelson Co (probably same Benjamin as d 1818)
5 Aug 1794	Jacob Marks married Anna Crume, Nelson Co (or 18 Dec 1804?)(possibly also son of Benjamin Sr above)
15 Apr 1802	Nancy Marks married Abraham Weekly, Nelson Co
20 Sep 1803	Susannah Marks daughter of George Marks married Henry Miller (prob dtr of George son of Capt Elisha)
1804	William Marks d. wife Mary; childr: John, James, Elizabeth, Jane, Margaret, Sarah, Mary (son of Benj Sr abv)
1808	George Marks d. wife Sarah; child: Davis, George, Susannah (only Capt Elisha had a George & he stayed VA)
25 Mar 1812	Elizbeth Marks married Jonathan Holbert, Nelson Co
1818	Benjamin Sr d. wife Sarah; chil: George, Isaac, William, John B, Susannah C, Benj., Bluford B,Jacob C,Sally S
18 Jun 1819	George Marks married Nancy Crume, Nelson Co (this could be either of 2 Georges)
15 Jun 1821	Isaac Marks married Betsey Bishop, Nelson Co (probably the son of Benjamin Sr above)
9 Oct 1824	Luncinda Marks married Thomas T Thompson, Daviess Co (Rev. John's descendant via Capt Elisha)
2 Aug 1826	John Marks married Rebecca Weekly (could be son of Benj Sr or William)
20 Jan 1832	Benjamin Jr married Mary Ann Bishop, Nelson Co (probably Benj Jr of above)
11 May 1835	John D Marks married Judith A Leaman, Davies Co (Rev. John's descendant via Capt. Elisha)
15 May 1844	John C Marks married Mary Jane Dickerson, Nelson Co
7 Dec 1844	Mary Jane Marks married Edw C Thompson, Nelson Co
9 Sep 1847	Miranda Jane Marks married James T Potorf, Nelson Co
31 Oct 1850	Phoebe Ann Marks married George S Mock, Nelson Co
1850	Sarah Jane Marks, daughter of Benj (Jr?) died, leaves to sister Susannah C, exec brother George

So where did all these early Nelson Co Marks come from, and where did they live in KY? In the period following the statehood of KY in 1792, the original gigantic Nelson Co of Virginia was subdivided many times into 20-30 much smaller counties. Before these smaller counties were formed, people of the same surname might be listed in Nelson Co. but in fact live a hundred miles apart. Later frontier KY became a very complex arrangement of small counties. Henderson Co where Thomas was in 1830 was formed in 1799. At that time Nelson Co was still gigantic. By 1830, Nelson Co had shrunk to only perhaps three to five percent of its original size, and it was not located especially close to either Henderson or Daviess Counties, and that is where George, and also an Isaac, and a Nathan were to be found in the 1830 Census. And in the 1850 census, there are still quite a few Marks in Nelson Co. including a George, who is doubtless not still the same George of the road petition of 1789 and several others at the end of the list above after 1844. So this group of Marks people is living quite some distance from Rev. John's descendants in Union, Henderson, and Daviess Counties. Whether or not some of these "other" Marks people might have been descendants of Hastings Marks we cannot say. We can only say that there were many people with the surname Marks who were not related to the family described here.

Elisha Smith Marks, son of Isaiah Marks, and grandson of Capt. Elisha Marks, was born 1 Nov 1807 in Loudoun Co., VA, and would have been age eleven, when he likely accompanied his father to Owensboro by flatboat in 1818, and only age fourteen, when his father died in 1821. He grew up in Owensboro living on his father's farm with his mother, and appears to have obtained the farm himself when he came of age. He is found living on the farm in the 1840 census, and in the 1850 Census together with his mother, Elizabeth (Daniel Marks 66), his wife Elizabeth (Lashbrook Marks 33) and their eight children. Elisha Smith Marks married Elizabeth Lashbrook on 15 Mar 1833 in Daviess Co., KY. She was born 9 Mar 1815 in Daviess Co., KY, the daughter of John Lashbrook and Ursula Colyar. Elisha Smith Marks died on 7 Aug 1851 or 1854 in Daviess Co., KY without leaving a will. However, his children are proven by court documents after his death relating to the minority of his children and the disposition of his estate. Just as he, Elisha Smith, had been left at age fourteen by the death of his father Isaiah in 1821, so Elisha left his own eldest son, Albert Smith Marks, in turn at the age of only sixteen (or nineteen). Elisha S. Marks' eldest son, Albert S. Marks went on to become perhaps the best known of all Marks descendants. He left the farm in Daviess Co, KY in 1855 at about age nineteen and went to Winchester, TN where he studied law under the guidance of his first cousin (once removed), Arthur S. Colyar, his Great Uncle Alexander Colyar's son. Alexander was his grandmother Ursula Colyar Lashbrook's brother. When the Civil War began he joined the Confederate Army and was rapidly promoted Captain, and commander of E Company of the 17th Confederate Infantry Regiment. In May of 1862 he was promoted Major and only a month later was again promoted to Col. and commander of the 17th Regiment. In Sep 1862 he was appointed to the honor of receiving the surrender of the Federal troops, which were defeated at Mumfordsville, KY. Later the same year he was badly wounded at the Battle of Murfreesboro on 31 Dec 1862, as a result of which he lost his right leg below the knee. After recovering from his wound, he was made Judge Advocate of Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest's cavalry division. After the war he was elected judge twice, though he did not serve his second term because he ran for Governor of TN in 1878 and won, serving as the twenty-fourth Governor of TN from 1879 to 1881. For some reason he declined to run for a second term. For the rest of his life he returned to the practice of law, first in Franklin Co. and then in Nashville. He died 4 Nov 1891 at age fifty-five.

Elisha Smith Marks' daughter Elizabeth, sister of Gov. Albert S. Marks, and ancestor to many of the Templetons, was born on 2 Jun 1845 in Daviess Co., KY. Elizabeth married Robert Clinton Handly in 1869 at "Hundred Oaks," the estate of Albert S Marks, which was later extravagantly expanded by his elder son, Arthur Handly Marks. Elizabeth and Robert C. had five children, John Marks Handly, Leila, Novella "Vella," Oscar, and Avery. John Marks Handly converted to Catholicism and became a Catholic priest. Elizabeth Marks Handly died 30 Apr 1934 in Winchester, TN, at the age of eighty-eight, and is buried in the Winchester City Cemetery.

Vella Handly was born 25 Jun 1877, and married Harvey Maxwell Templeton. Vella and Harvey had two children, Harvey Maxwell Templeton Jr., and John Marks Templeton Sr., and they were Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's grandparents. Vella Handly Templeton died 29 Sep 1950 in Winchester, TN, and is buried in the Winchester City Cemetery.

Genealogy of Descendants of Reverend John Marks of Loudoun Co, VA

1. John Marks, Rev b. 1716, ?Montgomery Co, PA, m. bef 5 Apr 1749, Uriah Ledyard, b. ca 1720, PA, (daughter of John Ledyard and Charity Unknown) d. aft 1788, Loudoun Co, VA. John died 3 Mar 1788, Loudoun Co, VA, buried: Short Hill Cemetery, Ketoctin Church. His gravestone at Ketoctin says he was age 72 at death, thus born 1716. John was baptized at the Montgomery Baptist Church in 1740 when he was age 24. It is recorded he spoke with a thick accent. The Montgomery Church was founded in 1719 by Welsh people, and the services were probably in Welsh. Thus it seems likely John Marks was either born in Wales, or to Welsh speaking immigrants. However, neither his place of birth or parents are known.

Children:

2. i Mary b. 24 May 1742.
3. ii Elisha Marks, b. 26 Dec 1744.
4. iii Martha "Patsy" b. ca 1745.

Moved to Henderson Co, KY late in life ca 1812 to live on 1000 acres inherited from his brother Capt Isaiah in 1785. In his will he left 1600 acres in KY. The cemetery he is buried in used to be called the "Old Marks Cemetery." It is on the original 1000 acres. In 1777 he signed an oath as Ensign in Revolutionary Army, but no other records survive of his service. Seems likely he was in Loudoun Co Militia, if he actually served, since had he served in Regular Army, his children would have filed for his pension.

Children:

31. i Ann.
32. ii John b. ca 1770.

21. Mary Marks (3.Elisha[2], 1.John[1]) b. 24 Nov 1775, Loudoun Co, VA, m. 14 Dec 1796, in Loudoun Co, VA, Jonathan Ewers, d. 7 Mar 1839. Mary died 1 Dec 1834, Loudoun Co, VA, buried: Ebenezer Cem, Bloomfield, Loudoun Co VA.

    Children:

    i William Ewers d. bef 23 Oct 1868, Snickersville, Loudoun Co, VA. The book "Snickersville" by Jean Herron has a little about the end of William's life. Snickersville is now called Bluemont. It was much destroyed in the Civil War. In 1868 his heirs advertised a farm 2 mi from town for sale to pay debts of $244. Two years later the adjoining farm was sold by Jonathan Ewers, who may have been William's son.

22. Milly Marks (3.Elisha[2], 1.John[1]) b. 4 Nov 1780, Loudoun Co, VA, m. _____ Kent. Milly died 23 Jan 1811. Milly mentioned in her father's will of 27 Jul 1805 as Milly Marks, not Kent, as is a daughter named Mariah Marks. This is hard to understand, as two of her children by Kent were born before the will was written. Perhaps her father did not recognize the marriage, or perhaps the dates of her Kent children were reported wrongly. In any case she seems to have had six children.

    Children:

    i Mariah Marks b. bef Jul 1805. Father unknown, probably not Kent.

Olvin died 12 Dec 1878. Said to have been raised by his "Uncle" Isaiah Marks, & to have gone with him from Loudoun Co, VA to Owensboro, KY in 1818. Olvin's name, dates & children seem documentable in KY. However, Frances Jones searched hard for record of his birth in VA & was unable to find any. She feels strongly that he is unlikely to have been child of this John, despite family tradition he was Isaiah's nephew. He is shown here because he is likely a Marks of this family & for computer reasons he couldn't be included without having some parents.

Children:

Elisha died 7 Aug 1851, Owensboro, Daviess Co, KY. Some researchers have said his year of death was 1854. Marriage on Automated Archives CD #229. Best proof known to date that his father was Isaiah is the 1850 census showing him living with his mother Elizabeth, age 66, born VA. The DAR has accepted this as of 1987 in the application of Mary E Marks Powers, a descendant of Elisha Smith's son Albert Smith Marks, Gov. of TN. Elisha's will has not been found. However, court records name his children. Elizabeth: Court records regarding a dispute over payments to the court appointed guardian of Elisha & Elizabeth's minor children prove the names of their children. Presumably Elizabeth, though still living, could not be legal guardian, since she was female.

Children:

i Nell Summers.

152. Sarah M Marks (68.George[4], 25.George[3], 3.Elisha[2], 1.John[1]) b. 1843, Lewis Co, MO, m. Henry J Bash. Reportedly her daughter Jenny was the 1st wife of James Milton Marks, b 18 Sep 1839, son of John Neal Marks, also of Lewis Co, MO, & Jenny's 1st cousin once removed. However, Sarah's daughter Jenny, who died at age 19 according to cemetery records, was 30 years younger than James Milton Marks, and died too soon to have born the 4 children ascribed to her. Perhaps there was another Jenny Bash in Lewis Co MO. Further research required here.

Children:

261. i Jenny M b. Jun 1868.

153. James Martin Marks (68.George[4], 25.George[3], 3.Elisha[2], 1.John[1]) b. Jan 1846, Canton, Lewis Co, MO, m. 22 Oct 1868, in Canton, Lewis Co, MO, Lucy Ann Lynch, b. 25 Oct 1841, MD, (daughter of John Lynch and _____) d. 27 Mar 1915, Sonora, Tuolumne Co, CA, buried: Old Sonora Cem, Sonora, CA. James died 4 Feb 1919, St. Louis, MO, buried: Mt. Mariah Cem 5 mi NW Canton, MO.

Children:

i George Murrey Marks b. 11 Mar 1870, Canton, Lewis Co, MO, m. in Sonora, Tuolumne Co, CA, Ann _____ (Owens), d. 7 Nov 1950, Sonora, Tuolumne Co, CA. George died 9 Jan 1955, Sonora, Tuolumne Co, CA, buried: Columbia Cemetery. No children. Ann: Ann had 2 children by first marriage to ____ Owens. They were Mabel A Owens 1892-1969 & Lee E Owens 1898-1957.

ii John Melvin Marks b. 1872, Canton, Lewis Co, MO, d. 27 Mar 1890, Canton, Lewis Co, MO, buried: Mt. Mariah Cem 5 mi NW Canton, MO. Never married.

262. iii Mary Adell b. 21 May 1874.

154. Elijah Smith Marks (68.George[4], 25.George[3], 3.Elisha[2], 1.John[1]) b. 12 Dec 1848, Lewis Co, MO, m. 6 Feb 1872, Sarah Gaines, b. 14 Jan 1852, d. 18 Sep 1926. Elijah died 26 Jan 1924, Lewis Co, MO, buried: Forest Grove Cem, Canton, Lewis Co, MO.

Children:

263. i Martha Demaris b. 21 Mar 1878.

155. James Milton Marks (69.John[4], 25.George[3], 3.Elisha[2], 1.John[1]) b. 18 Sep 1839, MO, m. (1) Jenny M Bash, b. Jun 1868, (daughter of Henry J Bash and Sarah M Marks) d. 8 Dec 1887, Lewis Co, MO, buried: Lewis Co, MO, m. (2) Sarah F "Sally" Fuqua, d. Apr 1929. James died 18 Feb 1919, ?Lewis Co, MO, buried: Forest Grove Cem, Canton, Lewis Co, MO. His 1st wife Jenny was apparently his 1st cousin once removed. However the Jenny whose cemetery record provided these dates died at age 19, making it unlikely she could have born the 4 children ascribed to her. Also she was 29 years younger than James. Perhaps there was another Jenny Bash? Further research is required here. Jenny: She was apparently her husband's 1st cousin once removed through her mother Sarah M Marks, though she was 29 years younger than James Milton. Also, this Jenny, according to Lewis Co, MO cemetery records, died at age 19, so it seems unlikely she could have born all the 4 children ascribed to her. Perhaps some or all the children were from James' 2nd marriage. More research is required here. Sarah: No children with James Milton Marks.

CHAPTER 14

The Lashbrook, Colyar, and Sherrill Families

Elizabeth Lashbrook was Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's great great grandmother. She lived near Owensboro, KY, and married Elisha Smith Marks. They were the parents of eight children, among them Jack, Anne, and Christopher's great grandmother, Elizabeth Marks who married Robert Clinton Handly, and Albert Marks, Governor of the state of Tennessee after the Civil War.

Elizabeth Lashbrook was the daughter of John Lashbrook, a farmer of Daviess Co., KY who died before 15 Sep 1833, leaving a will, which mentions Elizabeth, his wife, and seven of his nine children. For the names of these children, see the notes for Ursula Colyar in the genealogy in the following chapter of this book. Unfortunately almost nothing has been learned of the birthplace or parents of John Lashbrook. In 1996 considerable material was obtained from Michael Collier of Wyoming, a long-time Collier family researcher, which gave the parents of John Lashbrook as William Lashbrook and Effy Ethelridge. However, no dates were provided, nor any place of residence for the parents, and so far these parents have not been proven.

Study of the Colyar and Sherrill families was begun in order to explore the ancestry of Elizabeth Lashbrook's mother, who was not mentioned by name in her husband's will, so initially neither of her names was known. The first information we received about Elizabeth's mother was from a Templeton relative, Mrs. Gertrude Handly Woodruff, who told us she thought that Elizabeth Lashbrook's mother's maiden name was "Collier," that her grandfather was Alexander "Collier," and that her grandmother was a Sherrill, daughter of Samuel Sherrill, and also that her great grandmother was a St. Clair, daughter of Gen. Arthur St. Clair. This information had been passed down by her father.

In the course of researching these connections many people eventually were contacted who provided help, with the result that several complex connections between these families were discovered. There was in fact an Alexander Colyar in Winchester, TN, whose wife was Catherine Sherrill, daughter of George Davidson Sherrill and granddaughter of Samuel Sherrill. We have been able to piece together a rather extensive picture of four generations of this family with various help from many people, and especially with the help of Mary Sherrill in Texas, author of a two volume genealogy of the Sherrill family published in 1995.[111] Details on the Sherrill family are not included here, since they are only tangentially relevant, and those interested in Sherrill genealogy should refer to Mary Sherrill's 1995 book. However, it should be noted that the Sherrill name was highly regarded in early TN, first because Samuel Sherrill and two of his sons fought against the British at the Battle of King's Mountain, and secondly because one of Samuel's daughters, "Bonnie Kate" Catherine Sherrill, became widely known and highly regarded as the popular second wife of Gen. John Sevier, the first Governor of TN. People often felt proud, if they could claim a connection to one of these early, popular families. The only Templeton family connection to the Sherrill family is that Alexander Colyar's wife Catherine Sherrill ("Bonny Kate's" niece) was Jack, Anne, and Christopher's Fourth Great Aunt by marriage.

Information on several generations of the Colyar family are provided in the next chapter of this book, as an aid to future research, because in the course of researching the present book no comprehensive source on this family was found. In addition to the help of Mary Sherrill mentioned above, much help was provided by several other Colyar family researchers, including Virginia Wurtz in AZ, Janis Ragar, a Colyar descendant living in MO, and Mike Collier of WY, who published for some time a newsletter of genealogy relating to various Collier families. But after all this effort we have not found any direct Sherrill connection for Elizabeth Lashbrook, other than the one by marriage of her Uncle Alexander, plus the fact that two of her brothers married two of her Uncle Alexander Colyar's daughters, who almost certainly were their first cousins, and whose mother was a Sherrill. Therefore descendants of those particular Lashbrooks would have Sherrill ancestry.[123]

Research on the Colyar family would never have proceeded this far, except that unusual difficulty was encountered ascertaining the identity of Elizabeth Lashbrook's mother, who was supposed to be a Colyer, and in fact turned out to be so. Elizabeth's father was relatively easily proven by his 1833 will, but for a long time nothing could be found on her mother. Eventually, at first through court records surrounding her death in 1843, we learned quite a lot about this woman, whose first name was Ursula. She died about eight years after her husband John. Quite a lot is known about the many descendants of their nine surviving children, though we have not traced them beyond the next generation.

Two of their sons married two daughters of Alexander Colyar and Catherine Sherrill, whom researchers believe would have been their first cousins.

Elizabeth's mother's first name was Ursula as proven in several court records from Daviess Co, KY following her death. However, no proof that she was a Colyar has been found, though the circumstantial evidence is quite strong, and it seems nearly certain that this Ursula was born Ursula Colyar, sister and not daughter of Alexander Colyar of Franklin Co. One secondary source was found for this on page seventy-six in "Sketches of Prominent Tennesseans" by William S. Speer: "Gov. Mark's father, Elisha S Marks . . . married Elizabeth Lashbrook whose mother was a Miss Colyar, sister of the father of A. S. Colyar" (i.e., sister of Alexander Colyar). [95]

Alexander Colyar was the son of William Colyer of Washington Co., TN and his wife Ann/Nancy St. Clair. This is proven by a record of a $450. payment from his brother John as a portion of Alexander's inheritance from his father William's estate, and the record states that Alexander is a son and heir of William. Alexander was the only one of his generation to use the spelling with the letter "a." Unfortunately there is so far no similar documentary proof that Ursula was Alexander's brother, though she is generally accepted to be by all Colyer researchers. Land records prove that George Davidson Sherrill, father of the Catherine who married Alexander Colyar, owned land abutting that of William Colyer in Washington Co, TN between 1801 and 1809, which helps explain how Alexander and his wife probably came to know one another. Court records from Coffee Co in 1876 relating to disputes between the heirs of George Davidson Sherrill Sr prove that his daughter Catherine was in fact the wife of Alexander Colyar. Furthermore, it is documented that two of their daughters raised in Winchester married sons of Ursula Lashbrook and went to live in KY. However, it cannot yet be said to be proven that Ursula and Alexander were siblings, despite the circumstantial evidence. Sometimes the proofs we would like to have simply no longer exist, if they ever did.

Alexander and probably also Ursula's parents, William and Ann/Nancy St. Clair Colyer, were true pioneers, whose origins have not yet been discovered, though they likely were born in Virginia, possibly Fauquier Co, according to one researcher. They were farmers, and lived their adult lives in a cabin on the Nolichuckey River in Washington Co, TN near present-day Greenville, where Samuel Handly also lived for a time. The Handly connection to the Colyers is still unclear, if in fact there ever was one, beyond the fact that various members of both families undoubtedly knew one another first in the Nolichuckey River region, and later in Winchester, and very likely elsewhere. Alexander Colyar was born in this same cabin, according to several sources, as were Alexander and Catherine's first children, including Arthur St. Clair Colyar, who grew up there until age eleven (ca 1829), when his parents moved West to Franklin Co, reportedly because their own house (not William's) in Washington Co was destroyed by a tragic fire. Of course, according to these assumptions, Ursula would also have been born in Washington Co. From the available records, including the Census of 1850, Ursula and Alexander must have been quite close in age. Two other children of William and Ann/Nancy are proven, including William Jr. a co-administrator of William's estate, and John, one of William Sr's heirs. In addition, there is Dorcas who married John Calvert, for whom strong circumstantial evidence exists, though as yet not proof. Finally, many researchers believe William Sr and Ann/Nancy's eldest surviving child was Arthur St. Clair Colyer, who would have been Uncle to Alexander's son Col. Arthur St. Clair Colyar. However, so far no evidence is found for the senior Arthur St. Clair Colyer. Several reported that two other children were killed by Indians.

Quite a lot is known about William Colyer Sr and his wife Ann/Nancy St. Clair. They are thought to have come to Washington Co. TN prior to 1787 and settled down to farm along the Nolichukey River. At the time TN was not yet a state, and the area was part of NC. They came possibly from Fauquier Co, VA. The time of their arrival is fixed by NC Land Grant #232 in Green Co Deed Book 1B, p. 151 (and also p. 270-1), 20 Sep 1787 when Andrew Sleeper received 250 acres on the North side of the Nolichukey River adjoining William "Caliar." William Colyer himself received four different NC land grants along the Nolichukey River: first in Green Co Deed Book 1B p. 270, Grant # 2203 of 11 Jul 1788 for 130 acres adjoining land he bought from John Byrd & William Hogan; second NC grant # 882 1788 William Colyer receives 200 acres in Wash Co on Bumpass Creek on South side of Nolichukey River; thirdly NC land grant in TN # 903 in 1790 William Colyer receives 150 acres on Bumpass Creek on South side Nolichukey River; fourth NC land grant in TN # 965 1790 William Colyer receives 200 acres in Washington Co on both sides Nolichukey River; then on 16 Nov 1796 in Washington Co Deed Book 6, p.19, William Colyer buys 100 acres from Walter King, of which in same book p. 16 he a week later sells 62 acres to Jesse Bond and Walter King; then same book, p. 30, Sep and Nov 1796 William Colyer buys 175 acres from John England of Montgomery Co VA. These transactions over eight years gives William a net of 893 acres on both sides of the Nolichukey River in Washington Co. It is reported that William Colyer earlier had a lead mine on the Bumpass Creek land, the production of which was used to make bullets used in the battle against the British at King's Mountain. If William indeed rendered significant service to the war effort, this might help explain why he received four NC land grants in the space of two years. In addition to the six children attributed to William Sr. several secondary sources report that a couple of his other children were killed by Indians. Of the six reported, only three can be said to be proven. Alexander and William Jr. were administrators for William Sr's estate when he died intestate, as recorded in Washington Co Inventory Book 00 p.410, recorded Oct 1819.

Of William and Ann/Nancy's six children we know by far the most about Alexander from several detailed secondary sources, which focus on Alexander's well-known son, Col. Arthur St. Clair Colyar. Biographical sketches of A. S. Colyar relate that he lived in his father's cabin on the Nolichukey River until age ten (ca 1928), when the cabin burned down. After that the family decided to move to Winchester, TN. Alexander had twelve children all born and/or raised in Winchester. Most of these children are listed with Alexander in the 1850 census for Winchester.

A minor mystery remains regarding the exact number and names of Alexander's twelve or thirteen children. The birth order shown in Chapter 15 came from the 1850 Census. This partially disagrees with other researchers, as well as two detailed articles about Martha Colyar Roseboro, one of Alexander's children, and her daughter Viola by Gilbert Adkins writing in the "Franklin County Historical Review," Vol. XVII, Number 1, 1986, which states that Martha was the twelfth child of thirteen. This does not correspond with the birth dates in the 1850 census. Also, only twelve children are found in the 1850 census, unless Catherine Colyar is counted, who appears in the census as a head of household under her own name with two infant children. If she is a child of Alexander's, why is she listed in the census under her birth name, since she must have been married to have two children? It seemed more likely she was the wife or widow of Elbert F Colyar, about whom we so far know almost nothing, except that Elbert was supposed to have married Harriet Unknown prior to 1854 and had three children, Lewis b. 1855, George b. 1857, and Alice b. 1859. In addition, there is a later marriage in Green Co for an Elbert R Colyar to Mary F. S. Orr on 9 Jan 1868. Finally, there is a marriage for Catherine Colyar in Franklin Co to Adam Hyder 6 Jan 1848. This could account for Catherine's two small children in the 1850 Census, but not for her being listed under her own name, unless Adam Hyder died soon after marriage, though in that case one would expect Catherine to be listed as Catherine Hyder. If Catherine were indeed a daughter of Alexander, as many researchers state, then we would have the alleged thirteen children. Of course none of this is especially important to the issue of Elizabeth Lashbrook's ancestry.

William and Ann/Nancy's son, John Colyer, was born in 1781, nine years before Alexander. John can be said to be proven by another land transaction to Alexander from John as a disbursement of part of the settlement of William Sr's estate. John appears in LDS records as having a son named William, a son or daughter named St. Clair Colyer, and a granddaughter named Ursula Colyer born in 1864. The names Ursula and St. Clair are rare in the South, especially as first names, so these children, if proven, would support other evidence that John is a son of William Sr and Ann/Nancy.

William and Ann/Nancy's daughter, Dorcas Colyer, who married first John Calvert, received land from William abutting his own, so most researchers believe she was his daughter. This is further supported by the recurrence of the name Dorcas among the descendants of those assumed to be her siblings. For example, Ursula named a daughter Dorcas.

William and Ann/Nancy's son, William Colyer, was a Justice of the Peace in Washington Co who married Lydia Nelson, and who was co-Administrator with Alexander of William Sr's estate. There are many references to the fact that two or possibly more of William and Ann/Nancy's other sons were killed by Indians, which may explain why there do not appear to be more of their children in the records.

Finally we have no record at all of one son of William's listed by some researchers, Arthur St. Clair Colyer, who would have been the uncle of the Col. A S Colyar of Winchester. Yet despite the absence of some proofs, a picture emerges of a prosperous farmer and land speculator who lived at least thirty years along the Nolichukey River not far from present-day Greenville, TN.

It is also not yet proven that William's wife's maiden name was St. Clair, although the repetition of this name in the family is strongly suggestive. Moreover, Virginia Wurtz, who has researched the Colyer family, remembers often hearing her grandfather speak of Nancy St. Clair, and the name Nancy repeats a couple times in the first generations of this family. Nothing further is known of the ancestry of either William or Nancy at this time.

The fact that William's wife's maiden name was said to be St. Clair was especially tantalizing because there was a persistent family legend that one of Elizabeth Lashbrook's ancestors was General Arthur St. Clair of the Revolutionary War, after whom Arthur St. Clair Colyar of Winchester was said to have been named. Many people not otherwise strongly interested in family history become fascinated by the possibility that one of their ancestors might have been famous in some way, and when true, this increases the likelihood that additional ancestry can be found, since historians usually record the ancestry of famous people. In this instance, however, although some minor questions remain unanswered, and some highly likely connections remain unproven in the strictest sense, we can say with a very high degree of certainty that General Arthur St. Clair was not related in any way to the Colyars.[119]

General St. Clair was a very capable man, who was not only a Major General in the American Revolution, but also President of the Continental Congress for a year after the Revolution, and Governor of the Northwest Territories for many years. Though he attained a considerable fortune, he lost it all and died in relative poverty and obscurity. However, several chroniclers who visited him in his last years reported that he was still an impressive figure, who seemed unbowed by his decline in circumstances. He was treated shabbily by his country. He probably deserved major credit for the winning of the Revolution, not by winning battles, but once for saving an army, and on another occasion by suggesting to Washington, his close friend, that he make the famous winter crossing of the Delaware. He is credited with considerable bravery in battle, but he probably paid a price for his close relationship with Washington, who persistently overshadowed him, and probably stole some of his glory on occasion. Characteristically, he seems not to have been a man who sought personal credit. His fortune was largely lost by his paying emergency costs of the revolution out of his own funds, and later loaning money to friends, none of which were reimbursed. For these and other patriotic services he received scant credit during his life, or after. However, his ancestry and descendants are well-documented, and all are accounted for, and none married any Colyer. There is a hard-to-find 1882 two-volume work by William Henry Smith containing his papers, comprising some 1250 pages, as well as an extensive 1896 genealogy of Sinclair Families by Leonard Allison Morrison.[118, 119, 120, 121]

As a genealogist it took me quite a while to learn the extent to which many people quixotically seem to desire to claim for themselves famous ancestors they never had. The more famous and high born the figure, the more people will try to claim him. Thus, something like three-quarters of all claimed royal descents turn out to be spurious when examined closely. This phenomenon seems even more common in the American South, and causes genealogists much frustration barking down false trails. A related instance of this is noted in a footnote to an article about Martha Colyar Roseboro, one of Alexander's children, and her daughter Viola by Gilbert Adkins writing in the Franklin County Historical Review, Vol. XVII, Number 1, 1986 page 42: "The Colyar family persistently ignored the fact that Martha's mother was a niece of John Sevier's second wife, and therefore not related by blood to Governor Sevier."

It is worth emphasizing in conclusion that there had long been a family belief that there were Lashbrooks whose grandmother was a Sherrill. Since we believe as explained above that Ursula and Alexander were brother and sister, and that two of Alexander's daughters married sons of his sister Ursula, who were Lashbrooks, and their first cousins, then any children from these two marriages would both have Colyar mothers, whose mother was a Sherrill. Such Lashbrook children would have a blood connection to both Colyar and Sherrill, as is in fact reflected in the Coffee Co court document of 1876 mentioned above, which mentions both these Lashbrook couples as heirs of George Davidson Sherrill, because of their connection to him through his daughter Catherine. Perhaps this might be the source of the "legend" about the ancestral connection between the two families, although these connections were formed much later, in the 1850's, than was originally reported to me. Prior to that there is only the Alexander Colyar connection with Catherine Sherrill, probably from about 1815 (their first child, George, born 1816), though this has no direct bearing on the Lashbrooks. That these four families, Colyer, Handly, Sherrill, and Lashbrook all knew each other well from early times, first in Washington Co, and later in Coffee Co, Franklin Co and Daviess Co, KY is quite certain, despite having only two relatively early genealogical connections.

The Colyar research has been frustrating, because the objective was always to learn more about Elizabeth Lashbrook's ancestry, and yet despite having expended a large effort we have only learned about one more generation, part of which cannot even be proven, i.e., that Ursula was in fact a Colyar. Further we have some suspicions about the next generation, none of which can so far be proven either. Really, the most that we have achieved with the Lashbrook ancestry is to provide a fairly detailed and circumstantially supported context for further research.

Genealogy of Three Generations of William Colyer's Descendants

1. William Colyer b. ?1750, ?Fauquier Co VA, m. Nancy/Ann St Clair. William died 1819, Washington Co TN. Quite a lot is known about William Colyer Sr and his wife Ann/Nancy St Clair. They are thought to have come to Washington Co TN prior to 1787 and settled down to farm along the Nolichukey River. At the time TN was not yet a state, and the area was part of NC. He came possibly from Fauquier Co VA according to undocumented reports of other researchers. The time of their arrival is fixed by NC Land Grant #232 in Green Co Deed Book 1B, p. 151 (and also p. 270-1), 20 Sep 1787 when Andrew Sleeper received 250 acres on the North side of the Nolichukey River adjoining William Caliar. William Colyer himself received 4 different NC land grants along the Nolichukey River. First in Green Co Deed Book 1B p. 270, Grant # 2203 of 11 Jul 1788 for 130 acres adjoining land he bought from John Byrd & William Hogan. Second NC grant # 882 1788 William Colyer receives 200 acres in Wash Co on Bumpass Creek on South side of Nolichukey River. Thirdly NC land grant in TN # 903 in 1790 William Colyer receives 150 acres on Bumpass Creek on South side Nolichukey River. Fourth NC land grant in TN # 965 1790 William Colyer receives 200 acres in Washington Co on both sides Nolichukey River. Then on 16 Nov 1796 in Washington Co Deed Book 6, p.19, William Colyer buys 100 acres from Walter King, of which in same book p.16 he a week later he sells 62 acres to Jesse Bond & Walter King. Then Same book, p. 30, Sep & Nov 1796 William Colyer buys 175 acres from John England of Montgomery Co VA. These transactions over 8 years gives William a net of 893 acres on both sides of the Nolichukey River in Washington Co. It is reported that William Colyer earlier had a lead mine on the Bumpass Creek land, the production of which was used to make bullets used in the battle against the British at King's Mountain. If William indeed rendered significant service to the war effort, this might help explain why he received 4 NC land grants in the space of 2 years. William Sr is thought to have had 6 surviving children. In addition several secondary sources report that a couple of his children were killed by Indians. Of the 6 reported, only 3 can be said to be proven. Alex and William Jr were administrators for William Sr's estate when he died intestate, as recorded in Washington Co Inventory Bk 00 p. 410, recorded Oct 1819. John can be said to be proven by another land transaction to Alexander as a disbursement as part of the settlement of William Sr's estate. We know the most about Alexander from several detailed secondary sources about both Alexander and his best known son, Col Arthur St Clair Colyar. Biographical sketches of of A. S. Colyar relate that he lived in his father's cabin on the Nolichukey River until age 10 (ca 1928), when the cabin burned down. After that the family decided to move to Winchester, TN. Alexander had 12 children all born &/or raised in Winchester. We also have a secondary source stating Ursula Lashbrook's maiden name was "Miss Colyar, sister of Alexander Colyar." There are many records for Ursula Lashbrook in Davies Co, KY relating to the estate of her husband John, and later to her own estate. We have no record at all of one son of William's, Arthur St Clair Colyer, who would have been the uncle of the Col A S Colyar of Winchester. And finally we have only strong circumstantial evidence for Dorcas. Nonetheless, a picture emerges of a prosperous farmer and land speculator who lived at least 30 years along the Nolichukey River not far from present-day Greenville. Ref # 111 has details of Alexander who married Catherine Sherrill, daughter of George Davidson Sherrill. Nancy/Ann: Ref # 111 Definitely NOT! related to Maj Gen Arthur St Clair, despite many rumors to contrary. No definite origin for either Nancy/Ann of William prior to Wash Co TN. Thought by most they cam from VA prior to 1788, but no proof found as yet. Records of them in Washington Co TN are extensive.

   Children:

   i ?Arthur St Clair Colyer b. ca 1780. Several researchers have reported this son as definite, uncle to Alexander's son of same name Col A S Colyar, spelled with "a." No further information available yet.

   ii William Colyer Jr b. ca 1780, m. Lydia Nelson. William died aft 1821. Named as co-Administrator with Alexander in inventory of debts owing William Colyer's Estate found in Washington Co TN Book 00 page 410 & 411, dated Oct 1819. Wiliam Jr's will probated Washington Co TN 1829.

2. iii John b. 20 Aug 1781.
3. iv Dorcas b. 20 Mar 1785.
4. v Alexander b. 1790.
5. vi Ursula b. ca 1792.

Second Generation

2. John Colyer (1.William[1]) b. 20 Aug 1781, TN, m. (1) ?Polly Blevins/Martha Minus, m. (2) 6 Jan 1818, in Pulaski Co KY, Lydia Purvis. John died aft 1850, ?Pulaski Co KY. That he was son of William & brother of Alexander nearly proven by 18 Oct 1821 land record in Washington Co TN 1821 Book 17 p 210 "John Colyer of Pulasky Co, KY to Alexander Colyer of Washington Co, TN $450. his distributive share as one of legatees of William Colyer his father. Parts of 3 tracts (abt 60 ac) in Washington Co TN S.S. Nolachucky River etc." Data on children mostly from LDS IGI.

Children:

i Alexander Colyer b. 26 Feb 1811, Pulaski Co KY.
ii John Colyer b. 1 Apr 1815, Pulaski Co KY.
iii Harriet Colyer b. 27 Sep 1818, Pulaski Co KY. iv St Clair Colyer b. 15 Dec 1819, Pulaski Co KY.
v Lindsey R Colyer b. 27 Apr 1821, Pulaski Co KY.
vi Elizabeth Colyer b. 15 Nov 1822, Pulaski Co KY.
vii Cyrenus b. 23 Jun 1824, Pulaski Co KY.
viii Manerva Colyer b. 31 Aug 1825, Pulaski Co KY.
ix John Colyer b. 24 Feb 1827, Pulaski Co KY.
x Martin Colyer b. 19 Aug 1830, Pulaski Co KY.

6. xi James Perry b. 6 Dec 1828.

xii Garnade Colyer b. 8 Aug 1832, Pulaski Co KY.
xiii Wesley Colyer b. 8 May 1834, Pulaski Co KY.
xiv Stephen Colyer b. 22 Jul 1836, Pulaski Co KY.
xv Samuel Colyer b. 20 Jun 1838, Pulaski Co KY.
xvi Nathaniel Colyer b. 21 Mar 1840, Pulaski Co KY.

3. Dorcas Colyer (1.William[1]) b. 20 Mar 1785, Washington Co TN, m. (1) 14 Oct 1802, in Washington Co TN, John Calvert, b. 19 Oct 1781, d. 13 Sep 1839, Cooper Co, MO, m. (2) 25 Nov 1841, James Mahan. Dorcas died 1 Jun 1843, Cooper Co, MO. Not proven dtr of William & Ann/Nancy. However she was a Colyer, and William sold them land abutting his own. Repition of her name in other branches further suggests her belonging to William. Many dates from Ragar family bible, confirmed by group sheet of descendant Janis Cameron Ragar, Sedalia, MO. John: Dates from Ragar family bible.

Children:

i William Calvert b. 15 Sep 1803.
ii Ursula Calvert b. 5 Jul 1805, m. Charles Allen Carson.
iii Leonard Calvert b. 1 Oct 1807, m. 4 Dec 1829, in Cooper Co, MO, Roxey Morley. Leonard died 5 Aug 1874, Pettis Co MO, buried: Hickory Point Cem, Pettis Co MO.

Third Generation

6. James Perry Colyer (2.John[2], 1.William[1]) b. 6 Dec 1828, Pulaski Co KY, m. Mary Susan Silvers.

Children:

i Ursula Colyer b. 1864, Pulaski Co KY.

7. Arthur St.Clair Colyar (4.Alexander[2], 1.William[1]) b. 23 Jun 1818, Washington Co TN, m. (1) 9 Dec 1847, in Franklin Co TN, Agnes Erskine Estill, b. 1828, (daughter of Dr Wallace Estill and Eleanor Thomas (Crabb)) d. 1886, m. (2) Mary Collier, b. Louisville KY. Arthur died 13 Dec 1907, Davidson? Co TN.

Children:

i Wallis Colyar b. 1848, Franklin Co TN.
ii George T Colyar b. 1850, Franklin Co TN.
iii John Colyar b. aft 1850.
iv Henry Colyar b. aft 1850.

vii F. B. Colyar b. aft 1850.
viii Four other kids.

8. ?Catherine Colyar (4.Alexander[2], 1.William[1]) b. 1830, m. Unknown. Found living alone in Winchester in 1850 Census. Possibly NOT a child of Alexander & Catherine, more likely a daughter-in-law, possibly a 1st wife of Elbert Colyar about whom we know little. Elbert married Mary F S Orr 9 Jan 1868 in Franklin Co. However, there is also a marriage of a Catherine in Franklin Co for 6 Jan 1848 to Adam Hyder. This would not explain her being in Census under her birth name. Also, unless census was off by a year, her first child would have been conceived before marriage?

Children:

i William Unknown b. 1847.

ii Zac Taylor Unknown b. 1850.

9. Martha "Mattie" Clarissa Colyar (4.Alexander[2], 1.William[1]) b. 20 Apr 1834, 1850 Census DOB & order = 1837, m. 8 Jan 1857, in Franklin Co TN, Samuel Reed Roseboro, d. 1896. Martha died May 1893, Rochester NY. Ref # 111.

Children:

i Viola Roseboro b. 3 Dec 1857, Pulaski, d. 29 Jan 1945, Staten Island NY.

10. Elizabeth Lashbrook (5.Ursula[2], 1.William[1]) b. 9 Mar 1815, m. 23 Mar 1833, Elisha Smith Marks, b. 1 Nov 1807, Loudon Co VA, d. 7 Aug 1851, Owensboro, Davies Co TN. Elizabeth died 1859, Owensboro, Davies Co TN.

The Folk Family of North Carolina and Tennessee

Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's great grandfather was Henry Bate Folk, born in Bertie County, North Carolina on 12 May 1828, and was grandfather of their mother, Judith Dudley Folk. Henry married Martha Cornelia Estes at her home where she was born 21 Aug 1812. The Estes family was prominent in Haywood Co. TN, and lived in a large house on a hill built by Martha's great grandfather, Captain Joel Estes, who served in the War of 1812. The marriage took place on 7 Nov 1855. Martha's father Moreau gave the newlyweds a farm not far away, about three miles south of Brownsville, where Henry built a school and taught for four years. In the beginning of 1859 Henry sold the farm, bought a store in Brownsville, and moved his family to Memphis, where he joined a prominent law firm. Several years later the Civil War broke out, and Henry moved again to Durhamville, TN where he taught school. In 1865 Henry moved again, this time buying a home in Brownsville, where he lived the rest of his life, practicing law in Brownsville, and owning the gas company there. He was frequently chosen special judge, and consequently was known as Judge Folk throughout the rest of his life.

Henry and Martha had ten children, two of whom died in infancy. A third son, Henry Bate Jr., was brilliant academically, and began an extremely promising professional career as a journalist. However, he died tragically young at the age of twenty-two, without having yet married. This left five boys and two girls in the family. All these children were extremely successful. Perhaps the best known of the sons was Joseph Wingate Folk who was an attorney elected governor of Missouri from 1904-1909. Later he was chief counsel of the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington from 1914-1918. Edgar Estes Folk was a Baptist minister, as well as editor for twenty-eight years of the well-known journal, "Baptist and Reflector." Moreau Estes Folk, Jack, Anne, and Christopher Templeton's grandfather was first a journalist, and later clerk of the TN House of Representatives from 1893-1899, and State Treasurer of TN from 1901-1911. Following that he was manager for East and Middle TN of Equitable Life Insurance Co. Carey Albert Folk was President of Brownsville Female College from 1894-1899, and President of Boscobel College for Young Ladies in Nashville from 1899-1912. He was also a writer, the founder of C.A. Folk Co. a general Insurance and loan company in Nashville, and deacon in the Immanuel Baptist Church in Nashville. Humphrey Bate Folk began his professional career as a Baptist minister for ten years and then became secretary and treasurer of the Life and Casualty Insurance Co of Nashville. One daughter, Mathesia "May" Bell Folk Webb raised a family and found time to do extensive genealogy. Much of what is presented here and in the next chapter is based on her unpublished genealogy of the Folk family completed in 1952 after several decades of research. She is also co-author with Patrick Mann Estes of a genealogy of the Cary and Estes families published in 1939.[54] The second daughter, Lucille Cornelia Folk Cox lived with her physician husband in Helena, AK where she raised a family and was prominent in very many social, church, and patriotic organizations, including being Regent of the DAR in Helena, and state secretary of the Arkansas DAR 1924-1926.

Sir John Templeton, at the beginning of the portion of Chapter 7 of this book, which he wrote, reflected wistfully that he wished his grandparents had long ago sat down and written all they could remember about their families. It seems like so little to do, both to respect the memory of one's forebears and also to perhaps someday partially satisfy the curiosity of one's descendants. Yet how rarely people do actually do this. Henry Folk was one who did, and his two short essays written five years and two years, respectively, before his death in 1899 at the age of seventy-two, were lovingly preserved by his daughter May Webb. Since such family documents from a hundred years ago, relating to life a hundred seventy years ago are unusual in and of themselves, and since these are so well-written, illuminating, touching, and in places moving, they are included here verbatim, with only a few redundancies removed.

The Folk Family

Written by Henry Bate Folk in 1894. He died August 20, 1899 at his home in Brownsville, Tennessee

"[My] father was Benjamin Folks born in Virginia and one of a large family of brothers and sisters. The name was called Fulks or Folks in Virginia. One of the brothers settled in Vicksburg, Mississippi and was Mayor of that city. He spelled his name Fulks.

When my father moved to Bertie County, North Carolina, where he spent his life, he dropped the "s" from the name and was called Folk. He first married in said county, November 4, 1797 to Jemima Spivey Kittrell. The Spivey family was one of the best in North Carolina. Of this marriage with Jemima Spivey there was born William Kittrell Folk, Sabrina Folk and Jemima Folk. They all survived their father and mother.

William married Betsy Jordan and died in 1867 leaving one lovely daughter, who married a Mr. Sutton and died leaving two children. Jemima or Jennie, as she was called, never married. She died in Bertie County in 1854. She was one of the best women I ever knew and as near perfect in her life as mortals ever get to be.

My father survived his first wife, Jemima, and married my mother, who was Sallie Bate, daughter of James Bate and Mary Spivey and widow of John Garrett, sometime in 1825. She was a niece of his first wife. There were only two children of this marriage, Benjamin and Henry, named above. In 1831 my father died at his home in Bertie County of abscess of the liver, as I have heard said. I have no distinct recollection of him as I was only three years old when he died. He was spoken of by all who knew him as a remarkably good, conscientious, courageous and honest man. The text taken by Rev. Reuben Lawrence, a Baptist minister, who preached his funeral sermon, is found in Psalms 37, 37th verse: "Mark the Perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

He was a consistent and active member of the Baptist Church, now located in Windsor, the capitol town of Bertie County, North Carolina. I have understood that he was a deacon in the church. He was not what is called a money making man. He was too indulgent to his slaves of whom he owned a goodly number; but he was industrious and frugal and left a comfortable estate.

My mother was Sarah Bate. Her father was James Bate. Her mother was Mary Spivey. The Bate and Spivey families were the best blood in that state.

She was one of several children born to her parents; another was Henry Bate, who settled in Sumner County, Tennessee, now living in Nashville. Dr. Humphrey H. Bate, living at the old homestead in Sumner County. William W. Bate living near San Augustine, Texas. Mrs. Eugene Bertinatti, residing in Italy, and Mrs. Agnes Wright living near Murfreesboro.

Uncle Henry Bate, also, left many grandchildren surviving him. Among them, General William B. Bate, who was twice elected Governor of Tennessee, and twice elected United States Senator. The second term he is now serving (1894). [He was reelected to the Senate in 1899 and again in 1905 and only served one day of the new term when he died. JN]

After the death of my grandfather, James Bate, my grandmother, Mary Spivey Bate, married John Mhoon of which marriage were born James Mhoon, William, John and Patsy Mhoon, all now deceased, but many children and grandchildren are living.

Uncle William Mhoon was elected treasurer of North Carolina. When his term was out he moved to North Alabama with his brother James where both died at an early age. My grandmother survived her last husband, John Mhoon, many years and reached the ripe age of fourscore years and died at the home of her son James Mhoon in Alabama, near Tuscumbia, in 1845.

My mother first married Thomas West. Of this marriage there was one child, Eliza Penelope West, who afterwards married Felix Lowell and settled in San Augustine County, Texas, where the eldest of their children, Texana Burrus, and several grandchildren now survive their parents.

Thomas West died and my mother married John Garrett. To them were born Caroline Garrett, Ann, Harriet and James Garrett. Caroline first married William Spivey who died in 1836, leaving her and the two children surviving. Both of the children soon after died of scarlet fever, and my sister, Caroline, married Thomas Owen of Haywood County, Tennessee. They are both dead and only two of their children survive them. John Owen and Betty Owen, who married Ed Tyson of West Tennessee. The other Garrett children of my mother are all dead without issue.

My mother was left a widow at second time and then married my father, Benjamin Folks. Of this marriage there were only two children, my brother, Benjamin, and myself. My father died, as stated before, in 1831. My mother was thus left a widow the third time. She survived only about three years. She died in 1834 or 1835 at her home in Bertie County, and she and my father were buried in the private graveyard on the place. He reached the age of 57 as well as I can ascertain, and she that of 49. She was an active and pious member of the same church with my father. 1 have some recollection of her. She was always calm, serene, self possessed, dignified, kind and loving. I have heard the cause of her death was pulmonary consumption. Her funeral was at my grandmother's. 1 remember the occasion. The sermon was preached by the same minister who preached the funeral sermon of my father. The text was taken from Revelation 14th Chapter and 13th verse. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

My brother and myself were thus left orphans in early childhood. We had a small patrimony consisting of some Negro slaves with the homestead, which was sold for a division, and the share of the proceeds that fell to each of us was barely sufficient for an education.

We went to live with our sister [actually half-sister: JN]. Caroline, then married to William Spivey.

In the Fall or Winter of 1835, he moved his family to Fayette County, West Tennessee, taking my brother and me along. In 1836 he died, leaving the estate involved. It was sacrificed and broken up.

My brother and I were left homeless in a land of strangers at a tender age when e'r so much kind and attentive care is needed from loving relatives. We were dependent and went from pillar to post amongst strangers and had to earn our victuals and clothes, which were scant. Our treatment was rough. We had a hard time but were kept together until the Fall of 1839 when we first separated, he going to live with a man named DeRoach, and I with a man name Askew, 15 miles apart. I remember the separation almost broke my heart. We lived apart this way until the Fall of 1841 when our brother (half), William Folk, who had qualified as our guardian in Bertie County, North Carolina, sent for us.

There were no railroads in Tennessee in those days and we went all the way from Tennessee to Eastern North Carolina a foot, with a family moving back, camping out at night. It took all of the month of December, 1841, to make the journey.

We were then sent to school by our guardian and were together. In 1845 my brother desired to return to West Tennessee and our guardian permitted him to do so. I remained at school. He bade me good-bye in 1845 and I did not see him any more until 1847. He returned to N.C. and when he was of age, sold his slaves and his portion of the estate and again started West. I was then going to school at Wake Forest College, N.C. where I graduated in 1849. He came by the college and spent a few days with me. I went with him as far as Raleigh, 15 miles from the college. 1 there bade him good-bye as he entered a stage coach that bore him from me, no more to see him on earth.

He was more hardy and robust than I. He could stand hardships and rough treatment and come up smiling and serene, as few persons I ever knew could. His powers of endurance were great, much greater than mine. He was brave and fearless, but never overbearing. He suffered no boy at school to impose on him nor on me, neither, yet he would submit to the rules of the school, even if doing so led to punishment. He was noble, unselfish and self sacrificing.

I was more of a literary turn of mind than he; he was more fond of outdoor sports, adventure and deeds of daring. He was larger and more perfectly developed than I was and always enjoyed better health. He never complained of pain nor sickness. He never suffered from tooth ache, which 1 did for many years. He had not an unsound tooth in his head and they were regular and beautiful. He used tobacco from my earliest recollection, chewing it. 1 have thought that it preserved his teeth. He had an amiable disposition. Few persons in this world excelled him in all the qualities that constitute nobleness of character.

I remember an incident in our early boyhood that may be of interest. We were sent to a neighbor's, a few miles away, on foot on an errand, when 1 was about nine years old and he was ten and a half. We climbed over a pair of bars and were approaching the house, when a big vicious dog rushed out at us. I took to my heels and ran for the bars. Brother bravely stood his ground and kept the dog at bay. Neither of us were hurt. Had he not stopped the dog I would have been caught and torn to pieces.

Brother enlisted in the Mexican War in 1845 or 6, with the famous Texas rangers, and served under Generals Taylor and Scott before he was twenty years of age. He, also, enlisted in the Confederate Army in the Civil War of 1861-5, and died, as 1 have been informed, in a hospital in Little Rock, Arkansas." [134]

Henry Bate Folk. Brownsville, Tennessee, 1894.

Recollections Within the Last Three Quarters of the 19th Century

Written by Judge Henry Bate Folk, about 1897, two years before his death.

It was on the 12th of May, 1828 at Locust Grove in Cashie Neck, a fertile district in Bertie county, North Carolina, that I was born. I have no personal knowledge of that event, but my earliest and fondest recollections are of that locality, a few years subsequent to it.

My father was Benjamin Folk who died in my early infancy before I had opportunity to have any distinct recollection of him. I was just three years old when my father died.

He was a thorough Baptist in religion and a deacon in the Cashie Baptist Church, and was, universally, spoken of as a good conscientious, upright, honest man, beloved and highly esteemed by his neighbors and acquaintances.

My mother was Sallie Bate, daughter of James Bate and Mary Spivey. She was a grand and noble woman. My earliest recollections of her was as my loving mother. Sedate, quite, self-possessed, kind, firm, wise, cautious, prudent, beautiful in form and features with piercing black eyes. This picture will never fade from my memory.

I was about four and a half or five years old when they bore her from the room in which she used to cherish me in her bosom, as her baby boy, and laid her noble form in the open grave near that of my father who had preceded her but a few years, and I was left fatherless, motherless and homeless.

Our God, our wise Heavenly Father, Thou knowest the trials and troubles and afflictions of a fatherless and motherless child of tender years left alone in this cold world.

May these children not plead in vain to Thee to remember them in mercy according to the years wherein they have seen evil. When death strikes down the innocent and the young, for every fragile form which He lets the panting Spirit free, Dickens, in writing on the death of Little Nell, says a hundred virtues rise in shapes of mercy, charity and love to walk the world and bless it. But when He strikes down from the innocent and the young, their stay and support, their mother and father, he dooms them to walk the world with no guiding hand to shield them from the devious ways of evil and the hardships of orphanage.

The grave-yard was just across the road, East of the Mansion House, in a cluster of locust trees. I have often paid a pilgrimage to that sacred spot in later years, and gathered the strength of piety and devotion from the contemplation there arising and a greater determination to be worthy of so noble parents.

I pity the man whose religion does not grow stronger amid the broken arches of some ancient Cathedral, or whose piety does not grow warmer in the contemplation of the ruins of Iona, or the spirit quickened when lingering over the tombs of his parents.

Bertie County where I was born and mostly reared is one of the most delightful and desirable counties in Eastern North Carolina. It is of an oblong, rectangular shape, bounded on the North by the county lines of Northampton and Hereford, and extending from the Roanoke River on the West to Chowan River on the East, a distance of some fifty miles.

It is bounded on the East by that magnificent river, the Chowan until it is merged into the Albemarle Sound, thence by that great inland seat to the south of the Roanoke, thence up the Roanoke with its meanderings to Northampton County. It is bounded on all sides except on the North, by navigable water supplying abundance of the most palatable fish.

There is a river called the Cashie that rises in the Northwest of the county and after traversing the central part becomes a deep navigable river for sea going vessels as far as Windsor, the capitol of the county, which is pleasantly located on the right bank, some twenty five miles from its mouth. Cashie Neck, the district referred to in which I was born, is flat and fertile country lying south of Windsor and between the Roanoke and Cashie Rivers. It, also, has a notable stream within its bounds, known as Roquewhist Swamp. It is clear, limpid running water fed by springs spreading out from foot hills a distance of from 100 to 150 yards wide. It is about two feet deep in the deepest part.

The trees through which the water ran have been cut out from the road way for foot passengers. The road way is sandy and firm, never mirey nor muddy. How dear to my heart is the earliest recollection of my childhood in crossing that beautiful water with my dear, noble, now sainted mother.

She was driving her favorite horse, Old Stubbs, going to the monthly meeting of the Cashie Baptist Church, of which she was a member. The juniper, pine and other trees standing in the water, some ten feet deep in the deepest parts, had been cut and cleared way by the earliest settlers and a firm way for wheeled carriages, covered with the transparent water, 150 yards wide and two feet deep, made a safe and easy crossing.

To see the clear water splash and splash and sparkle when the faithful horse made his way slowly through it, and to see it eddy and ripple around his legs and through the spokes of the wheels, was to me a joy, a delight never equaled; and there was a sense of restfulness and security as I nestled close to that dear mother which nothing in after life could give. Thomas Moore, the Irish Bard, has beautifully described the meeting of the waters in the vale of Avon. Could he have witnessed the meeting of the waters in the vale of Roqueqhist he would have made that strange Indian name as romantic and charming as the "Sweet Vale of Avona." The natural growth of Bertie County is the pine interspersed with oak, hickory, mulberry, ash. In some parts, called "Piney Woods", the long leaf yellow pine more abounds. Pine tar and turpentine are the products of the long yellow pine, and staves for barrels and hogsheads for sugar and molasses are products of the white oak.

The natives grow corn, cotton, wheat and oats. They transport their turpentine in barrels and staves in two wheel cars to Windsor to ship on the sea going vessels that come to that market. Sometimes 40 or 50 of these wheeled carts laden, as stated, may be seen in a long row winding their way to Windsor. Their drivers always found a ready sale for their tar and staves and would return to their homes before night, each with a jug tied to their cart, in like procession as they went. Some of the jugs contained molasses and some contained distilled product of molasses _____ rum. Truth to tell, some of the natives, were uneducated and very ignorant. That was seventy or one hundred years ago, and just as in every locality, were uneducated as was the case everywhere, at that time among laboring class of people.

I have heard a story told of one of these ignorant backwoods men who went to a country store in Woodville to buy molasses and he could not think of the name of the thing he wanted. He was familiar with tar, for he had often helped to make that from the fat pine knobs and light wood, she he said to the clerk in the store: "Mister if you have got anything here black like tar and sticky like tar, and "taint tar neither, and it is good sweetening. I want to buy a yard or two of it."

But no such dense ignorance prevails in Bertie County now for some of the most influential citizens of North Carolina and other states where her sons and daughters have gone to live, have reflected credit and honor on the dear old county of Bertie, the best in the World.

Some of the long yellow pines are very straight and tall and tough. They are sought for masts for great ships that go to sea. I remember that Mrs. Carson, a good man who boarded at my mother's, while she was a widow, superintended the getting out of large stocks of these pine trees for masts off of her land. Mrs. Carson had a great many men in camps working under him. They brought the great stocks right through my mother's yard, along the road, on their way to the Roanoke River, a few miles distant, to float them down the Albemarle Sound and thence to the Navy yard at Norfolk. It took 20 yoke of oxen or 40 steers to haul one stock. The butt end was fastened under the two wheels with a long lever to which was attached a strong rope, held by a stout man in the rear, to guide and direct it.

My recollection is that Mr. Carson had the great logs cleaned of all bark and hewed on four sides, tapering the little or top end. In the navy yard these stocks thus squared, are rounded to the proper dimensions. All mast of ships are round but they are not so large as the trees in the woods.

Each yoke of oxen had a driver at their sides and such a hurrah and racket as they kept up, popping their whips and exclaiming "gee Buck, haw, Darling." made a lasting impression on my childish mind.

I said, Mr. Carson was a good man. He was the superintendent. My reason for so saying is that he would read a chapter in the Bible at morning prayers before breakfast.

There were two marriages in the old homestead during my mother's last widowhood. One was the marriage of my half sister, Caroline Garrett, and the other marriage was my half sister, Ann Garrett. I have an indistinct recollection of these interesting events.

My half sister, Caroline, was married to a well-to do farmer named William J. Spivey, and Ann married a prosperous farmer in Martin County across the Roanoke River from Bertie Co. His name Turner Pierce. They married very well.

Their departure from the old home left in my father's family my half sister. Eliza Garrett. my half sister, Harriet Garrett and Sabrina Folk (my father's daughter by his first marriage), my own brother Ben. just 18 months older than I, my mother and myself.

Note: My father was married twice and my mother three times, hence the different names mentioned in this history. My father, Benjamin Folk, born May 31, 1772, died 1831 in Bertie Co. Married (1) Jemima Spivey Kittrell, November 4, 1798; Children; William Kittrell, Sabrina and Jemima Folk. Married (2) to Sarah Legate (Bate) Garrett (widow of John Garrett) in 1825: Children; Benjamin Thomas and Henry Bate Folk.

My mother had some good and trusty slaves, named Big Ben, Dan, Anthony, Gus, Phaeton, Cherry, the cook, Zilpha my nurse, and Chelsea. With these and a white man, as overseer, named Carl, she managed to make a good support off of the land for her family. I loved all of these colored people as members of the family, with an affection born of their kindness. I have been told that heaven was the final home of the good and believed that it was for white people only, but in my youthful imagination believed that an exception ought to be made in favor of my Mother's colored servants, and that they, too, would have a home in heaven with the whites.

I did not know then that "God is no respecter of persons" but in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted by Him" and that He looks not upon the skin, whether black or brown, yellow, red or white, but upon the heart of men and women. If that is right in His sight the person whether of low or high degree is the child of God and heir of heaven. This I know now but did not know then.

My mother's mother, Mrs. Mary Bate Mhoon (Mary Spivey married 2nd John Mhoon) was living on a large plantation some six miles away in a district of Bertie Co. called "The Indian Woods". My good grandmother was in her second widowhood, also.

Often did my mother take me, as her baby boy, in the double top gig with her favorite horse, and drive over to Grandma Mhoon's on a visit. It was always a delightful occasion. Grandma was so loving, kind and considerate it was a pleasure to stay there.

On one occasion my Mother left me there for several days or weeks. Once I remember I was there with my Grandma in the Spring of the year and she had a great many young chickens. One day I was in the house with Grandma, sitting near her while she was knitting away, when I had a bad spell of hic'coughs. In the midst of the hic'coughs Grandma turned to me and said seriously, "Henry why did you catch and kill one of my little chickens" I was very much surprised and said, "I never did. Who told you Grandma that I did?" She said, "Nobody. I only charged you with doing it to scare away the hic'coughs, and they are all gone and there was nothing to it."

Often in after life I have remembered this incident and by a similar ruse have stopped the unpleasant hic'coughs in others. It is curious that it is so, yet so it is, any sudden alarm in the midst of unpleasant hic'coughs will cause them to change.

Another occasion at my Grandmother's I remember seeing her slaves beating apples in a large trough with wooden mauls, to make cider. The cider was strained into vessels and after fermentation it became vinegar, the best of its kind of domestic use.

A remarkable phenomenon occurred in November 1833, when I was five years old. It was the wonderful meteoric shower. It was called the falling of the stars. The whole heaven was brilliant with apparently shooting stars which fell like snowflakes and produced phosphorescent lights along their course, intermingled with large fire balls which darted forth at intervals. These left behind..... "[134]

The story ends with this unfinished sentence. Whether the story was ever finished or whether the pages were lost or misplaced will never be known. An interesting note to the above history is that Henry relates seeing his beloved brother Thomas for the last time about 1849, and not seeing him again before his death in the Civil War in Arkansas fifteen years later in about 1865. During his Mexican War service Thomas met Katherine Hart in Texas, whom he married in 1858. They had one daughter Sarah Legate Folk born 1860 in TX. When Thomas died in the war, his widow had some difficulty managing and raising her daughter, who grew up knowing nothing of her father's brother Henry in TN or of her relatives there. In fact it was not until after her marriage to Horace Harvey in 1885 that she received news of these relatives from a distant cousin. She eventually got in contact with them and actually exchanged visits with both her Uncle Henry and others of his family, so the sad story of the two orphan brothers eventually had a somewhat happy ending. Sarah Harvey's daughter Katherine Roger related in a letter how when her mother first got in contact with her father's relatives, it was one of the happiest days of her life.

Concerning Henry Bate Folk's ancestry some more must be added. Henry says his father was Benjamin Folks born in VA of a large family. Considering that Henry and his brother were orphaned at a very young age, and thereafter obliged to travel to a different state eventually to live amongst a succession of strangers, it is not surprising that Henry should not have been very well informed about his own ancestry. May Webb's extensive research in Bertie Co. NC developed the fact that Henry's father Benjamin was not born in VA, but in fact born in Northampton Co, NC, a part of the larger Bertie Co cut off and made a separate county in 1741. Henry's father Benjamin was born 31 May 1772, one of ten children of William Folks and Martha Gilliam. Henry's grandfather William was also born in Northampton Co, NC about 1752. Several definite records survive from this period, including the wills of both William and his wife Martha, recorded at Jackson, Northampton Co, NC and located in NC Historical Commission, Raleigh, NC. Wills 1770-1808 CR 71, 19. Certified copies of these wills (spelling "Fulks") are reproduced in entirety in May Webb's genealogy. Benjamin Folks' will was proved Dec 1795, and his wife, Martha's, was proved Dec 1821.

William, according to May Webb, was not born in VA, but in Northampton Co. NC. He and Martha had ten surviving children, eight sons and two daughters. One of these two daughters, Mary, may not have survived, as May Webb gives no record of her marrying. Henry's father, Benjamin, stayed in the region of his birth, dying in Bertie Co, NC in 1831, when Henry was just three years of age. The other seven brothers appear to have all removed to Mississippi, where the son of one of the brothers, Miles Carter Folkes became mayor of Vicksburg for about ten years. Many years later May Webb and her brother Edgar E Folk traced several descendants still living in MS in 1914 and afterwards. May and Edgar tried to track down these relatives to try to ascertain where their ancestors were from, but this was inconclusive, as the MS relatives thought William had come from VA, though he appears to have been born in NC. This extensive correspondence is included in May's genealogy.

This takes us farther back to the question of who were the ancestors of William? May Webb conducted extensive correspondence to try to prove this parentage, but was unsuccessful. Nevertheless, she came to believe very strongly that William's father was Benjamin Fowke (Fooks) of the Quaker family of Talbot Co, MD, and previously of Accomac Co, VA, descended from the English immigrant James Fowkes, Jr in VA ca 1676, who married Rachel and had three sons named James, Thomas, and Daniel.

James Jr.'s son Thomas Fowke (Fooks) born Mar 1666 in Accomac Co. VA married Elizabeth and had nine children (see genealogy in Chapter 17), including a son William who married Mary Foster in 1704, with whom he had six children, the last three of which, including Benjamin, supposed father of William of Northampton Co. NC, were minors at the death of their father, as stated in Thomas' will, proved 23 Oct 1741. Thomas' will is located in MD state archives at Annapolis under name Fooks and dated 4th mo. 15th day 1740. Apparently it was Thomas who converted to the Quaker faith, while his ancestors had not been Quakers.

May Webb provides seven additional generations of ancestry for James Fowkes Jr, whom she said was of Staffordshire, England before immigrating to VA, supposedly himself a seventh generation descendant of William Fowke of Brewood born 1403, died 1438, married Anne Eyton. This William was said "To be a man of eminence in Staffordshire." However, this additional ancestry is not included here since it has not been verified, and because it seems impossible to prove beyond doubt that the TN Folk family is descended from the Accomac Co. VA Fowke family, however likely this does appear.

May Webb also researched the family of Humphrey Bate, who was the great grandfather of Judge Henry Bate Folk, and this genealogy is provided in Chapter 18.

Genealogy of Some Descendants of Thomas Fowke of Accomac Co, VA

Note: the First Three Generations on This Page Have Questionmarks Because the Parents of William Folkes # 4 Are Not Proven.

1. ?Thomas Fowke b. 18 Mar 1666, Accomack Co, VA, m. Elizabeth Anderson. ?Thomas died bef 15 Oct 1722, Accomack Co, VA. Will made 25 Oct 1720 found in folio 176. Ref # 134. His children given here found by May Folk in book "Fowke (Fooks) Family in America" by Herbert Clarence (Fowke) Fooks, Baltimore, MD, page 13.

Children:

i Daniel Fowke d. bef 1740, Accomack Co, VA, buried: Onacock VA.

2. ii ?William b. ca 1685.

iii James Fowke.

iv Benjamin Fowke. Will recorded in book "Fowke (Fooks) Family in America." Ancestor of Herbert Clarence Fooks, author of book.

v Naomi Fowke m. ____ Edmunds.

vi Rachel Fowke m. _____ Pritchard.

vii Sarah Fowke m. _____ Idlet.

viii Mary Fowke m. Thomas Warrington.

ix Elizabeth Fowke m. _____ Cripin.

Second Generation

2. ?William Fowke (1.?Thomas[1]) b. ca 1685, Accomack Co, VA, m. 2 Jun 1704, in Accomack Co, VA, Mary Foster/Forster, (daughter of John Foster and Mary Kennerly). ?William died bef 23 Oct 1741, Talbot Co MD. Ref # 137 p. 64 Quaker marriage record, 4th Haven. But not proven that he was the father of the Benjamin who was the father of the William who married Martha Gilliam. Insufficiant records found to date regarding Benjamin father of William. Marriage records for this family also in Caroll's "Quakerism on the Eastern Shore." John, Benjamin, & Margaret mentioned in will as being in minority at date of will prior to 1741.

Children:

i Elizabeth Fowke b. ca 1706, m. John Bolling.

Third Generation

3. ?Benjamin Fowke (2.?William[2] , 1.?Thomas[1]) b. ca 1721, m. ca 1741, unknown. Ref # 134 states that proof is lacking that this Benjamin was the father of William who married Martha Gilliam, though May F Webb believes it on basis of circumstantial evidence. However records for this Quaker family of VA are extensive, & it seems well established that this Benjamin was son of William of Accomac Co VA, grandson of Thomas, & great grandson of James Jr who immigrated to Accomac Co VA ca 1676 from Staffordshire, Eng. May Webb gives 7 more gen of anc of James Jr to Wil'm Fowke of Brewood b1403 d1438 m Ann Eyton

Changed name to Folk, dropped "s." Ref # 134. Ernest L Folk Jr, an important contributor to May Folk's genealogy gave Benjamin's 1st marriage year as 1797, not 1787 in a letter dated 9 May 1924. He also says he found records in Bertie Co that Benjamin first bought land there in 1806, when he would have been in his middle 30's. Jemima: Record of this marriage found in Bertie Co NC Marriage Bonds typed 1938 by Genealogical Society of Utah (p. 23) and available on film from LDS sources. CHAPTER 19

The Estes, Cary, and Noel Families

The Estes family is a large and distinguished Southern family who lived in America since Colonial times. We mention them here only relatively briefly, because two excellent genealogies have already been written about them. The first of these by May Folk Webb and Patrick Mann Estes was first published in 1939 and contains voluminous documentation and some nice photographs.[54] The second of these books was published by Helen Estes Seltzer in 1981 and contains very many excellent photographs.[55] Both these books are quite detailed and well-documented so anyone wishing more details of this family should refer to them. Both books, and especially the 1981 book allude to connections between this family and the well-known medieval European family of the same name whose history can allegedly be traced back to the 4th Century. However, the documentation for this connection is essentially non existent. May Webb mentions the family of one Robert Este of London who died in 1606 leaving a will. The next mention in the book of the documented appearance of a similar name was that of one John East found in James City, VA seventy-six years later in 1682, being mentioned in the Journals of the House of Burgesses of Virginia. No connection whatever is shown between the two men. Of course, John East and Abraham Estes I below who died forty years later in King and Queen Co. VA might have been contemporaries, though no relation between them is given. It seems likely that there were many families named East, Este, Estes, etc. in England, and possibly also in the American Colonies, but in the absence of specific documentation it is pure speculation to imagine a connection to the noble Estes family of the Middle Ages.

Below is a brief sketch of the first five American generations of this family down to Martha Cornelia Estes, who married Henry Bate Folk, whose family is discussed in Chapter 16. Only Martha's direct line is shown, and not those of her very many Estes ancestors and cousins.

1. Abraham Estes I m. Barbara Unknown. Abraham died 21 Nov 1720, King & Queen Co, VA. He owned 200 acres of land in King & Queen Co, VA in 1704. Parentage unknown, except that there was a John East in James City in 1682, whom some modern Estes genealogists have claimed was the connection to the prominent Estes line of Europe dating back a thousand years, though proof of any kind seems lacking.

He had 9 Children of whom one was:

2. i Abraham b. 1697.

Second Generation

2. Abraham Estes II b. 1697, probably King & Queen Co, VA, m. Elizabeth Unknown, d. 1774. Abraham died Jul 1759, Caroline Co, VA.

He also had 9 Children altogether, of whom the next to youngest by his second wife was:

3. i Benjamin b. about 1753.

Third Generation

3. Benjamin Estes b. about 1753, probably Spotsylvania Co, VA, m. 1777, in Bedford Co, VA, Cecelia Rebecca Thorp, (daughter of Thomas Thorp and Sarah Triplett). Benjamin died aft 8 Jun 1816, Bedford Co, VA. Cecelia: Granddaughter of Thorps said to be personal friends of George Washington.

He had 15 Children of whom one was :

4. i Joel b. 22 Jan 1780.

Fourth Generation

4. Joel Estes, Capt. b. 22 Jan 1780, Bedford Co, VA, m. 13 Oct 1801, in Chesterfield Co, VA, Sarah Langhorne Bates, b. 1781, Chesterfield Co, VA, (daughter of Daniel Bates and Elizabeth Cary Bell) d. 1825, Haywood Co, TN, buried: near Brownsville, Haywood Co, TN. Joel died 16 Aug 1833, near Waverly, TN. He was a Captain in the War of 1812, and he died while returning home to Haywood Co, TN. His grave was never found, though his son Moreau offered a $1,000. reward for it's location, which was a fortune in those days. Joel was Captain of a Company of Volunteer Riflemen in the 43rd Regiment of the VA Militia, attached to the 4th Regiment of the VA Militia. Ref # 55 p 22. Sarah: Ref # 124.

He had 8 Children of whom one was:

5. i Moreau Pinckney b. 14 Nov 1806.

Fifth Generation

5. Moreau Pinckney Estes b. 14 Nov 1806, Bedford Co, VA, m. 10 Nov 1836, Mary Quarles Noel, b. 13 Nov 1820, Hanover Co, VA, (daughter of Ewell Noel and Lucy Quarles Hilliard) d. 16 Apr 1859, Haywood Co, TN, buried: Estes Family Cemetery, Estes Estate, Haywood Co, TN. Moreau died 17 Oct 1871, Haywood Co, TN, buried: Estes Family Cemetery, Estes Estate, Haywood Co, TN. A prominent, influential, prosperous plantation owner in Haywood Co, TN

He had 10 Children of whom one was:

i Martha Cornelia Estes b. 21 Aug 1837, Haywood Co, TN, m. 7 Nov 1855, in Haywood Co, TN, Henry Bate Folk (see Chapter 16 of this book on page 501), b. 12 May 1828, Bertie Co, NC, (son of Benjamin Folkes and Sarah Legate Bate (Garrett)) d. 20 Aug 1899, Brownsville, Haywood Co, TN, buried: Oakwood Cemetery, Brownsville TN. Martha died 22 Apr 1913, St. Louis, MO, buried: Oakwood Cemetery, Brownsville TN. Ref.s # 54, 55, 86, & 124. Henry: Res in 1880: Haywood Co, Brownsville District, Main St. Soundex Code F420, roll T772 #25. Census ref for 1880: Vol 15, ED 72, Sheet 17, Line 8. Ref # 86, 124, 133, 134. He was left an orphan at age 5. Completed college, became a teacher, & practiced law in Nashville & Brownsville. Repeatedly a special judge in Brownsville. Known as "Judge" Folk. All his children distinguished, and included ministers, journal editor, College president, Governor of state of Missouri, business & social leaders, genealogist, etc.

The Cary family was connected to the Estes family by marriage, and is discussed extensively in the same two genealogies by Webb and Seltzer mention above. The Cary line is generally much better documented than the Estes one, and is mentioned extensively in other sources. They trace their descent directly back to William Cary born in 1500, who became the Mayor of Bristol, England. William Cary's ninth generation descendant Elizabeth Cary Bell was the mother-in-law of Captain Joel Estes mentioned above, and the great grandmother of Martha Cornelia Estes who married Henry Bate Folk discussed in Chapter 16. A brief description of this direct line is also given below, and those wishing further details can refer to the above two genealogies, as well as to the other sources given.

1. William Cary b. 1500, Bristol, England, m. Unknown. William died 28 Mar 1572, Bristol, England. Sheriff of Bristol 1532, & Mayor of Bristol 1546. Ref # 54 p. 16. Many if not all the children of William, his son Richard, his grandson William, & his great grandson John are known, as well as in some cases their other wives. All are recorded in Cary-Estes Genealogy. Parents of this William not known, though many prominent Cary's are recorded in England as early as 1086 in the Domesday Book, which records Manor Kari in Devonshire, & Castle Cari in Somersetshire. First person recorded was Adam de Carye about 1186.

Children:

2. i Richard b. 1515?.

Second Generation

2. Richard Cary b. 1515?, Bristol, England, m. Anne Unknown, d. before 1561, Bristol, England. Richard died 17 Jun 1570, Bristol, England, buried: St. Nicholas Church, Bristol, England.

Children:

3. i William b. 1550.

Third Generation

The Noel family was not researched for this book. However, the mother of Martha Cornelia Estes, mentioned several times above, was Mary Quarles Noel who married Moreau Pinckney Estes. Mary was the grand daughter of a Cornelius Noel, born 1757, who was said to be the descendant of Cornelius Noel who immigrated to Old Rappahannock Co. VA prior to 1665, and who died in Essex Co. VA in 1699. That they have the same name is not itself proof of any relation. However, since this is a prominent early VA family, the possible connection is noted in the hope that future research may establish a link.

1. Cornelius Noel b. 1757, m. Sally Ewell, (daughter of Thomas Ewell and Mary Bennett). Cornelius died 1821, Bedford Co. VA. Said to be descendant of Cornelius Noel immigrant to Old Rappahannock Co. VA prior to 1665 & his wife Elizabeth. This immigrant Cornelius died 1699 in Essex Co VA. shortly after Essex Co formed from part of Old Rappahannock Co. This Cornelius' ancestry or connection with immigrant Cornelius not yet known.

Children:

2. i Ewell b. 1782.

Second Generation

2. Ewell Noel b. 1782, Hanover Co. VA, m. Lucy Quarles Hilliard, (daughter of ____ Hilliard and Mary Quarles). Ewell died 1856, Maury Co TN.

Children:

4. i Martha Cornelia Estes b. 21 Aug 1837.

CHAPTER 20

The Pilcher, Barrow, Childress, and Hickman Families

Matthew Barrow Pilcher was Jack, Anne, and Christopher's great grandfather. He was born in Nashville, Tennessee on 1 Apr 1840, and married Judith Dudley Winstin, whose family and ancestors are discussed in Chapter 22. Matthew Pilcher was a popular and successful man in his community. He served on the confederate side in the Civil War, and was known as "The fighting quartermaster," because though not a front line soldier, he apparently managed to participate in many battles, and was badly wounded several times. He was a deeply religious man from an early age, and always carried a Bible, even in his youth. This Bible was said to have saved his life, when it stopped a bullet during one battle, which otherwise would have killed him. He attained the rank of Captain and served in Company B of the Rock City Guards, which was part of Maney's 1st Tennessee Regiment. Another of Jack, Anne, and Christopher's great grandfathers, Robert Clinton Handly, also served in the same company, and the two of them can be seen together in a photograph of the survivors of this unit, which was taken in 1900. After the war Capt. Pilcher was active in business, became president of the Nashville Real Estate Exchange, and served on the Nashville City Council. He was also very active in Immanuel Baptist Church, and was Superintendent of its Sunday School for twenty-five years. Beyond this he was credited with being instrumental in starting numerous Baptist Churches in Nashville.

Matthew Pilcher was a great grandson of Joshua Pilcher who was born in Culpeper Co, Virginia in 1743, and who had very many descendants. Since no genealogy of this family seems to have been published before, many of Joshua's descendants are listed in a Pilcher Genealogy in the next chapter of this book. The Pilcher family and other families related to it covered in this chapter have in common that they all descended from very early American Colonial immigrants, although in some cases the first immigrant has not yet been determined with certainty. It seems likely that Joshua himself was a third generation American, although authorities disagree on his ancestry. Several Pilcher researchers who have contributed their findings to the Mormon Church of the Latter Day Saints and others say that Joshua's grandfather was Robert Pilcher born in Wales who married Phoebe Chapman, and had a son named James who also married a Phoebe with the maiden name of Fielding, and that this couple in turn had four sons: James Jr., Robert, Daniel, and Joshua. However, Catherine Avery[131] says Joshua's grandfather was Richard born in Wales who married an unknown woman and also had four sons, namely: Benjamin (Joshua's father), Robert, John, and Caleb. Kathryn S Pilcher, a living relative of Jack, Anne, and Christopher's, who is also a genealogist, agrees with the first ancestry above, i.e., Robert and James Sr. Further research will be required to prove Joshua's ancestry with certainty. However, there does seem to be a strong family tradition that its forebears came from Wales.

In any case, like many of his contemporaries, Joshua "went West," as was the saying, and ended his life in Lexington, Fayette Co, KY. From there, his grandson Merritt Scott Pilcher Sr. eventually made his way to Nashville, TN, where Matthew Pilcher was born. Dates and other details of the people discussed briefly in this overview can be found in the ancestry section of this book, Chapter 3, or in the Pilcher genealogy following this chapter.

Matthew Barrow Pilcher's mother was Nancy "Patsey" Barrow, the daughter of Matthew Barrow, who was born 1784 in Green Co, NC. Matthew Barrow was evidently a prosperous planter, as he owned his own plantation called "Barrow Hill" near Nashville. Matthew Barrow's ancestry has not yet been discovered. However, he married Martha "Patsey" Childress, the daughter of John Childress and Nancy Hickman, and both of these families are descended from early immigrants to America. John Childress was born in 1740, probably in Lunenberg Co, VA. So far no primary documents prove that the John who was father of Martha was the same John born in Lunenberg Co, VA, though there was a family tradition that he was. There was a Henry Childress II in Lunenberg Co, VA who had a son John. Henry II was born 1706 in Henrico Co, VA, son of Henry Childress Sr, born 1686 also in Henrico Co. Henry Childress Sr was the son of Abraham Childress Jr., who died in Henrico Co in 1698. Abraham Jr. was born in 1655, though it is not known where. He was said to be the son of Abraham Childress Sr., who also died in Henrico Co, VA before November 1680. In Colonial America, the use of the suffix Jr. and Sr. in records did not necessarily mean two men were father and son, but only that of two men living in the same local, one was older than the other. So it cannot yet be said to be proven that Abraham Sr. was the father of Abraham Jr., though it would seem likely. Also whether Abraham Sr. was the immigrant, or whether he and his son were both immigrants together is not known. But to help keep these early dates in perspective it is useful to remember that the Pilgrims first landed in Plymouth in only 1620, and that by that same date only perhaps one thousand five hundred Englishmen had immigrated to Virginia. Abraham Childress Sr.

and Jr. were in Henrico Co at least as early as 1686, when Abraham Jr.'s son Henry Sr. was born there, and very likely for a decade or more before then. Thus, they were in America a full century before the American Revolution, and possibly earlier, which places them among the very earliest Americans. Abraham Childress Jr., Henry Sr., and Henry II all left wills in Henrico or Lunenberg Counties, so the ancestry of this family is well-documented.

John Childress above married Nancy Hickman, the daughter of William Hickman Sr. born in 1730 in Spotsylvania Co, VA, and who died in Davidson Co (Nashville), TN in 1787. William Hickman Sr. and his wife Ann Unknown had at least twelve children about whom a great deal is known, including all their spouses. In addition, there is a DAR membership based on this line. William Hickman Sr.'s father was Edwin Hickman who was born about 1695 in VA and married Eleanor Webber. Edwin died 1769 in Albemarle Co, VA leaving a will mentioning his son William Sr. William Sr. also named one of his twelve children Edwin. William Sr.'s grandfather was Thomas Hickman born 1660 in VA, who married Martha Thatcher in 1693. So this Hickman family is also a very early Colonial Virginia family.

Genealogy of Some Descendants of Joshua Pilcher of Culpeper Co, VA

1. ?Robert Pilcher b. abt 1708, Wales, England, m. Phoebe Chapman, d. after 1776, Surry Co, NC. ?Robert died after 1776, Surry Co, NC.

Children:

2. i ?James b. abt 1729.

Second Generation

2. ?James Pilcher Sr (1.?Robert[1]) b. abt 1729, Culpeper Co, VA, m. bef 1749, in Culpeper Co, VA, Phoebe Fielding, b. ca 1700, Culpeper Co, VA, d. aft 1790, Surry Co, NC. ?James died York District, SC. The relationship between James and his wife Phoebe and the Joshua who is generally agreed to be the ancestor of the Pilcher family related to the Templetons must be regarded as speculative at this time. It is offered here as a possible clue to future research because it has been believed by some family historians in the past. However, I do not believe it has been proven yet by anyone.

Children:

i James Pilcher Jr b. abt 1742, Culpeper Co, VA, d. 1820, York District, SC.

3. ii Joshua b. 1743.

iii Robert Pilcher b. 1750, Culpeper Co, VA, d. 1828, York District, SC.

iv Daniel Pilcher b. 1760, Culpeper Co, VA, d. 1830, Surry Co, NC.

Third Generation

3. Joshua Pilcher (2.?James[2], 1.?Robert[1]) b. 1743, Culpeper Co, VA, m. bef 1768, in Culpeper Co, VA, Nancy Ballard, b. bef 1749, Culpeper Co, VA, d. aft Aug 1810, KY. Joshua died Aug 1810, Fayette Co, KY. Ref # 131 Moved to Lexington KY in 1793. Pilcher researchers disagree on Joshua's ancestry. Several LDS sources and others say his grandfather was Robert b. Wales who married Phoebe Chapman, & they had a son James who married also a Phoebe with maiden name Fielding, & these had 4 sons James Jr, Robert, Daniel, & Joshua. However, Catherine Avery in Ref 131 says his grandfather was Richard b. Wales who married unknown & had Benjamin (Joshua's father), Robert, John, & Caleb. Kathryn S Pilcher agrees with first theory above, ie Robert & James Sr.

Children:

4. i Shadrach b. 27 Feb 1768.

CHAPTER 22

The Winston, Dudley, Caldwell, and Trabue Families

Jack, Anne, and Christopher Winston Templeton's great grandmother was Judith Dudley Winston who married Matthew Barrow Pilcher and died in Nashville in 1909. Judith's ancestry extends back through eight generations of male Winstons to Colonial times. The Winston family was a distinguished Southern Colonial family of Virginia, with connections to many other equally distinguished early American families, some of which we will examine in this chapter. Discussion here of the Winston family itself will be brief, because this family has been heavily researched by at least five other people, two of whom have published excellent genealogies. One of these was the 1927 work by the distinguished genealogist Clayton Torrence, which can be looked upon as a classic example of genealogy at its best.[67] A second book by Alfred S Winston was published very recently in 1992 and extends Torrence's work somewhat, as well as providing an excellent discussion of differing views of early records. Alfred Winston's book documents the Templeton ancestral line all the way down to Judith D Winston mentioned above.[82] Those wishing further details should refer to these excellent books.

The earliest and also the best documented Winston was the William who was probably an immigrant, usually referred to as of Saint Peter's Parish, New Kent County, VA, to distinguish him from other early William Winstons. Nothing so far is known of his ancestry in England, although research on this continues at the present time. He was in VA prior to 1686, and very likely for at least several years prior to that time, since his first land patent was for land on which he had been dwelling. This William received seven land patents between 1687 and 1701 totaling 6,412 acres[67] and purchased at least some other land as well. These holdings established the fortunes of the Winston family in America. This William died in New Kent County before 1702.

The above William is thought to have had several children, one a proven son named Anthony, and another generally accepted on circumstantial evidence, also named William, and generally referred to as William Winston of King William County, VA, whose wife's name was Sarah. This William died sometime after 20 Feb 1706.

Then there is a third William, son of the above, usually referred to as William Winston of Essex and Hanover Counties, VA. His birth date is not known, and indeed there is some uncertainty about whether he is the same or different from still another possible William Winston. Suffice to say that early records are insufficient to prove beyond all doubt the relationship between all of the early Winstons in Virginia, and thus the positive identity of the Winston whom Barbara Overton married. Those wishing to delve more deeply into these ambiguities should refer to the excellent discussion in the books mentioned above. The most recent work by Alfred Winston states that in all probability the above William married first Sarah (possibly) Jennings, and married second Martha Goulman, and married thirdly to Barbara Overton, the unquestioned ancestor of the line from which Judith D Winston and the Templetons descended. William and Barbara had six children, before William died in about 1726. Barbara survived him another forty years, dying on 30 Oct 1766.

The first of William and Barbara's children was John Winston born 9 June 1724 who married Alice Bickerton, daughter of Major John Bickerton and his wife Mary Todd Bickerton. This marriage is significant genealogically because a great deal has been proven about Mary Todd's ancestry, especially that two of her great grandparents were Anna Lovelace Gorsuch and Col. William Bernard, two American immigrants proven to be of Royal descent, and heavily studied and researched as a result, of whom we discuss more later in this chapter. John and Alice Winston had eleven children. John was a plantation owner in Saint Paul's Parish, Hanover County, VA through his entire life, being both a vestryman and warden of his church. He was also a Captain in the Louisa Co militia, and some call him by the rank of Capt., which confuses him with his son John, a Capt. in the Revolution. John Winston died in Hanover County in 1772 at his home called "Ceresco."

John and Alice Winston's sixth child was also John Winston, born 14 Oct 1757. This John Winston is usually referred to as Captain John Winston to distinguish him from other John Winstons of the period. He served as a Captain in the Revolutionary War for four years, 1777 through 1780, as commander of the 6th Company or the 14th Virginia Continental Line, and received a land grant of 4000 acres as a result of this service. Capt. John Winston lived in Louisa county, VA, and after the Revolution held the rank of Major in the Louisa Co militia, for which some also refer to him as Maj. John Winston. John Winston married in Louisa Co. to Mary Johnson on 4 Dec 1780 at her home called

"Roundabout Castle," built by her father Sheriff Thomas Johnson, called "Sheriff" to distinguish him from other Thomas Johnsons of the period. Mary Johnson's ancestry is noteworthy for several reasons. First of all, one of her great great grandfathers was Capt. Anthony Savage, an immigrant to America known to have documented Royal ancestry. Also Capt. Anthony Savage immigrated in the mid-17th Century, so he was a very early Colonial immigrant. In addition, many other of Mary Johnson's ancestors also came to VA in the mid-17th Century, and she is descended (twice) from the prominent family of Nicholas Meriwether Sr., as well as the family of William Thornton, which claims many generations of prior English ancestry. Quite a lot has already been written elsewhere about both these families.

Capt. John and Mary Winston had eight children whose names and birth dates are given here, because similarity of names has given rise to some confusion in the past: Thomas Johnson born in 1781, John Bickerton born in 1783, William O. born in 1785 and died age nine in 1794, Bickerton born in 1788, Nicholas Johnson born in 1789, Maria Theresa born in 1793, Martha "Patsy" Callis born in 1798, and Barbara Overton born in 1799. Capt. John Winston died intestate shortly before 13 Dec 1800, and his wife Mary died between 4 June 1822 and 10 Nov 1823.

Capt. John and Mary Winston's second child was John Bickerton Winston born on 1 May 1783 in Louisa Co, VA, who should not be confused with his five year younger brother Bickerton Winston. John Bickerton Winston married Judith T Dudley, of whom more below, and had eight children, the youngest of whom was Dr. John Dudley Winston.

Dr. John Dudley Winston was born 24 Oct 1805 and married Ann "Nancy" Jane Caldwell, part of whose French Huguenot ancestry can be traced back to the 11th Century, of which more later in this chapter. Dr. John and Nancy Winston resided in Nashville, TN, where they had six children, the second of which was Judith Dudley Winston born on 9 Jan 1842, who was mentioned at the very start of this chapter. Thus we close this short summary of this branch of the distinguished Winston family, the detailed history of which is available in other works.

Ancestry of Judith T. Dudley Who Married John Bickerton Winston

The Dudley family was another early and distinguished southern family, and some have even thought it was of royal descent, because there was a Gov. Dudley of Massachusetts who is known to have been of royal descent. However, no connection has ever been shown between this Gov. Dudley, and any of the numerous southern Dudleys. Judith Dudley Winston's grandmother was Judith T Dudley who married John Bickerton Winston as mentioned above. Many have stated that she was descended from Edward Dudley, an early immigrant to VA, who is thought by some to be the ancestor of all the southern Dudleys. Unfortunately, concerning the ancestry of Judith T Dudley, though there are several genealogies on this Dudley family available, they are based one upon another, while none of them appears based upon provable references. This line has often been given as Edward Dudley[(1)] William[(2)] James[(3)] William[(4)] Robert[(5)]. Although this lineage is given in several books, among them Dean Dudley's 1886 work, Mackenzie 1966[12] and Mason 1987,[97] attempts to verify this line in records has so far proven entirely unsuccessful.

For example, to comment briefly on just the first two generations, several have stated that Edward was father of William born in 1621. However, no proof of this can be found in records, and some proof to contrary is found. "Abstracts of VA Land Patents" by Nugent[126] p. 56 - Patent book No. 1 p 422 states Thomas Hampton, clerk, received three hundred acres in upper County of Norfolk - 19 May 1637 - Transportation of six persons: John Bagworth, Edward Dudley, John Bass, Thomas Hampton, Jno. Brown, Richard Egleston. This establishes that one Edward Dudley was in VA prior to 1637, and that no wife or children of this Edward Dudley were included as head-rights by 1637. There is no proof that the Edward in VA prior to 1637 is the same Edward found in York Co in 1651. York Co VA records between 1633 through 1672 shows Richard Dudley in 1646, Ambrose Dudley between 1646-1648, and Edward in 1651. No relationship between the above three men is documented in York Co through 1672.

Edward Dudley of York Co witnessed a deed of Benjamin Powell on 15 July 1651 and signed with a mark, whereas Edward Dudley of Lancaster Co wrote his name when he witnessed the will of Thomas Sax 18 Apr 1654. See Deeds & Will Abstracts of Lancaster Co VA 1654-1661 by Ruth & Sam Sparacio, p. 6. Therefore these two Edwards do not appear to be same man. Widow Elizabeth Dudley petitioned court in Lancaster Co for support of herself and three minor children on 2 July 1658. Edward and William are only two Dudley's found in early Lancaster Co. If there was a relationship between these two, it seems likely it would have been mentioned in relation to this support. That Elizabeth was wife of Edward is proven by records prior to 1658. This court petition proves Elizabeth Dudley was not mother of William and no relation to him (Lancaster Co Order Book 1656-1661, p. 54). The 1654/5 Lancaster Tax List has Edward Dudley one poll. Men at the time were taxed at age sixteen. The one poll would be Edward, thus any male children were under age sixteen at that time. In 1658 Elizabeth is found with her three children, whom earlier records indicate were Robert, Richard, and Elizabeth. So the Edward who died in Lancaster Co before 1658 and could write his name, husband of an Elizabeth was not father of any known William. His wife Elizabeth, who was mother of three children under age sixteen in 1658 was too young to be mother of William born about 1621. Edward Dudley transported before 1637 has not yet been proven to have descendants, nor to be the same man as either of the other two contemporary Edwards. Also the Edward of York Co who signed with a mark has not yet been shown to have any descendants. Thus, ancestors of all Edwards are moot as far as Templeton descendants are concerned. All of these Edwards may have had descendants, however proof of any must await further research. So far all we can say is that the Edward who was in Lancaster Co VA was not the father of William in Middlesex Co. VA. Several other scarce references to very early Dudleys such as Richard and Ambrose also have not yet been proven to be ancestors of Robert Dudley who died in Spotsylvania Co VA in 1766, who is the earliest provable Dudley ancestor of Judith T Dudley. Most previous Dudley family genealogies have stated that there was only one early Edward who was the one ancestor of most southern Dudleys, and especially of William, father of James, father of William, father of Robert of Spotsylvania Co. However, this is clearly in error as argued above, and none of these genealogies offers any evidence to support this, though there is strong evidence that there were at least three early Edwards, and none has so far been shown to be the father of William.

Since the early ancestry of these Dudleys seemed uncertain as reported in existing genealogies, independent research was undertaken for this book in Louisa County, VA to try to establish the ancestry of Judith T Dudley. Records found prove Judith T Dudley was the daughter of Maj. Peter Dudley of Spotsylvania County. VA who died after 5 Apr 1827.[129] Peter was a Major in the Revolutionary War, who married first Susannah Davis, mother of Judith T Dudley. It appears Peter married three more times after the death of Susannah. Peter is proven the son of Robert Dudley of Spotsylvania Co by Robert's will of 27 Dec 1766. Robert was survived by his wife, Joyce Gayle, for whom a marriage record is found in Spotsylvania Co.[129] Unfortunately no further records were found in Spotsylvania or Louisa Counties pertaining to this ancestry. Previous genealogies say that Robert was "probably" born in Middlesex Co, VA, son of William Dudley who married Judith Johnson. But though there appears to have been a William in Middlesex who had a son Robert, as yet no proof is found that the Robert born in Middlesex was the same Robert who married and died in Spotsylvania, and so on. As there are very many Dudley's in the south, many with common given names, considerable additional research would need to be done on all early Dudleys to try to straighten out which Dudley's belonged to which lines, and the early records from which to attempt this task are often sparse or lost entirely.

Royal Ancestry of Alice Bickerton Who Married John Winston

As noted above, Alice Bickerton was the daughter of Major John Bickerton who married Mary Todd. Mary Todd was the granddaughter of Thomas Todd Jr., and the great great granddaughter of Ann Lovelace born in England in 1611 who married Rev John Gorsuch. Ann Lovelace is noteworthy, because she is a member of a very select group of American immigrants, perhaps fewer than one thousand, who have proven royal descents. Since these early Americans are few in number, they have been repeatedly studied by very many people, so their royal ancestries are published in many places.[32-35, 67, 70, 94, 109] Ann Lovelace was a fifteenth generation descendant of King Edward the First of England, and through him to many other earlier royalty, some of which can be traced in the ancestry section of this book. Anne Lovelace's daughter, Ann L Gorsuch, married Capt. Thomas Todd and came to America by 1650. After the death of her husband she married twice more to other prominent Americans. After the death of her father, her mother followed her to America, where she died in Lancaster Co, VA in 1652. Three of Ann Lovelace's brothers were also prominent early Americans. Thomas and Dudley Lovelace were on the Governors council in New York, and a third brother, Francis Lovelace, was Governor of New York from 1668-1673.[67]

Surprisingly, Alice Bickerton was also descended from another member of this select group of immigrants with royal ancestry. Her great grandfather Thomas Todd Jr. had married Elizabeth Bernard, who was the daughter of Col. William Bernard, who was a thirteenth generation descendant of King Edward the Third of England. Information about many of his royal ancestors can be traced in the ancestry section of this book, as well as in the references given above for Ann Lovelace.

Royal Ancestry of Mary Johnson Who Married Captain John Winston

Those interested in ancestry are usually pleased if they can discover that they have one ancestor of royal descent. To find two is quite unusual. But to find three is even more unusual. However, such is the case with this family, as Mary Johnson who married Capt. John Winston, son of John and Alice Bickerton Winston mentioned just above, was herself a royal descendant. Mary Johnson's mother was Elizabeth Meriwether, whose father Thomas Meriwether

Ancestry of Ann Jane Caldwell Who Married Dr John Dudley Winston

Ann Jane Caldwell married Dr. John Dudley Winston, grandson of Capt. John and Mary Winston mentioned just above. Ann Jane, called "Nancy," was the daughter of William and Nancy Ann Trabue Caldwell of Adair Co, KY. Ann Jane's grandfather was Lt. John Caldwell, a Revolutionary War soldier of Virginia. Lt. John Caldwell's father, David, and grandfather John, immigrated from Ireland, arriving in Newcastle, Deleware on 10 Dec 1727. From there they went to Lunenberg Co, VA, where they both became elders in the Cub Creek Presbyterian Church. In 1749 David bought two hundred acres of land on Snow Creek, and in 1776 he bought an additional three hundred acres of land on Turnip Creek. Historians of two published genealogies of this family not researched directly for this book claim the family came to America from Ballybogan, Lifford Parish, Donegal, Ireland, where their ancestors had been for several generations after apparently fleeing Scotland. They were said to be descended from Alexander of Caldwell, near Stratton, Ayrshire, Scotland in the 1500's. Alexander's grandson, John Caldwell was born in Scotland, but died in Londonderry, Ireland in 1629. So far no more than this has been learned of their Scottish background.

Ann Jane Caldwell's Huguenot Ancestors Antoine Trabuc & Barthelemy Dupuy

Ann Jane Caldwell's mother was Nancy Ann Trabue, the great graddaughter of Huguenot immigrants to Virginia. Many who immigrated to Colonial America did so to escape a wide range of persecution in Europe. In elementary school many of us were taught about the romantic aspect of the Puritans at Plymouth and the first Thanksgiving. However, we were not taught that thousands of people were sent here as prisoners of war against their will, or as convicts, or to escape wars at home, or to escape political or religious persecution, which threatened their very lives. Many of those who came to America in the first hundred years after Plymouth were already exiles from their own mother countries, when they set sail for America. Surprisingly this was true of many higher class English people as well, who were persucuted for their "Royalists" politics during the Protestant Cromwellian period.

One little-known group of immigrants was the Huguenots, who were French Protestants. During medieval times continental Europe was almost uniformly Roman Catholic. However, after Martin Luther in 1517, Christianity began to divide into two major groups, the Catholics and the Protestants. This division of the Christian Church in Europe came to be know as the Reformation, or reform movement, and it rapidly spread throughout Europe. This new form of Christianity was greeted with varying degrees of tolerance in different places, depending usually on the degree of disaffection among the populace with the Roman Catholic church and its many corrupt officials and practices. In France the royal families remained staunchly Catholic, and many of their political detractors became Protestants, calling themselves Huguenots. The origin of the French word is obscure, but some say it was derived from the Greek "aignos," the German derivation of which was "eidgnossen," meaning confederates bound together by an oath. The political and religious struggle grew to such proportions in France that virtual civil war broke out, and many "massacres" and atrocities were committed, the most infamous of which was the "Massacre of St. Bartholomew's Day" in 1572, in which all the leading Huguenots of Paris were slain, and Protestants throughout France were murdered by the thousands. Nearly another thirty years passed before some of the French Protestants in the cities of Niemes, Montauban, and New Rochelle achieved partial religious freedom as a result of the Edict of Nantes. However, pressure and harassment from the Catholic government and clergy prevented full enjoyment of the freedoms conferred by the edict. Continued insistence by the Protestants caused the government of Louis XIV to institute repressive measures in 1681, which included the quartering of soldiers in the homes of many Protestants with tacit permission to maltreat and harass them into converting back to Catholicism. These measures were only partially successful in forcing the involuntary conversion of thousands of Protestants. Seeking to further repress the Reform movement, King Louis XIV revoked the Edict of Nantes in 1685, after which more than four hundred thousand French Protestants fled France in only a few years, losing in the process whatever property they were not able to take with them. For the next hundred years until the Edict of Toleration in 1787 the Reform movement in France was essentially halted, and the Huguenots became refugees.

The study of genealogy and family history is inextricably bound to the study of history in general, and nowhere is this more clearly seen than in the immigration of a relatively small number of French Huguenot refugees to Virginia in 1700. The religious struggle throughout Europe in the 17th Century was just one part of a complex and chaotic political, economic, and social struggle with which it was intertwined. Even medical factors such as epidemic disease played a significant role, which in our own time is hard for us to imagine. In the couple centuries before the 17th Century it is estimated that the population of Europe was reduced by perhaps one-third by the introduction of Bubonic

Plague, the so-called "Black Death," and as late as the 17th Century disease still played an important role in influencing the course of history. During this century Protestants gained control of the government in England, which they did not come close to doing in France. At the same time as major internal struggles were going on in England, France and other countries, relations between France and England were marked by frequent warfare, as a result of which the vanquished Catholic Kings of England, the Stuarts, fled to France for protection, from whence they were encouraged by the French to launch periodic attempts to regain political power in England. Against this backdrop of a Century of national and international strife, many displaced persons struggled for the survival of themselves and their families. In the year 1700 King William III of Orange was on the throne in England, and the English government was largely Protestant. To give some insight into the degree of complexity of this period, a short summary of William's background may be helpful. William's mother, Mary Stuart, was English, eldest daughter of the English King Charles (Stuart) I (reigned 1625-49). Mary married William II, Prince of Orange, who was "Stadhouder" (Viceroy) of the United Provinces (Holland). William would have inherited his father's titles, except that his father died of smallpox the year he was born, and Johann de Witt, the Republican leader took over leadership of Holland, declaring William "A child of state" and under its protection. William's mother also later died of smallpox. It is very hard to explain briefly the complex internal struggles in England at the time, and the role that religion played in them. However, religion was a central issue in England, as well as in France and the rest of Europe, and many people lost their lives because of their religion. The following very brief chronology may help explain the extent to which all of this bore on the immigration of a small number of Huguenots to America in 1700.

1649 King Charles I (Stuart), Catholic, beheaded by Oliver Cromwell & Parliament. Charles II escapes to France. Cromwell, a Protestant (Puritan), de facto leader of England.

1651 Charles II tries to return from exile in France, defeated at Worcester. Escapes back to France.

1653 Cromwell made "Lord Protector" of England. Remains in power until death five years later.

1658 Cromwell dies

1659 Temporary power vacuum in English rule

1660 Charles II returns from exile in France after agreeing to "liberty of conscience" at Breda. Agrees to freedom of Religion, and agrees to government by Parliament. Charles II made King. Smallpox kills Charles' brother Henry, Duke of Gloucester.

1662 King Charles II marries in two separate marriage ceremonies to Catholic Princess Catherine de Braganza of Portugal. First a private Catholic ceremony. Second a public ceremony by the Bishop of London. Catherine agrees to bring up children Protestant.

1665 King Charles II and court flee London for Oxford to escape plague.

1677 Dutch Prince William of Orange, nephew of King Charles II marries his first cousin Mary Stuart, daughter of his other Uncle James. William is twenty-seven, Mary is only fifteen, and four inches taller than he is. Everyone hopes this marriage will strengthen an English-Dutch alliance against France. Mary is depressed at wedding because her sister is stricken with smallpox.

1685 King Charles II dies four days after stroke, becoming Catholic on his death bed. His brother becomes King James II of England. He is Catholic, despite both England and Scotland being predominantly Protestant.

1686 Prince William of Orange in Holland at The Hague. He is married to Mary who is now heir to English throne, since her father is King 1688 Many want William to depose James II because of his unpopular Catholicism. James II claims his wife Mary of Modena has born him a son and heir, but many skeptical since they have been unable to produce one throughout the previous fifteen years of their marriage. William claims birth is a hoax, and agrees with Protestant representatives to a manifesto for England to be a Protestant nation. William then invades England, but James II avoids a fight and flees to France.

1689 Commons agrees to allow Mary and William to reign jointly, and they are crowned. William becomes King William III of England. For first time in English history the monarchs swear they will govern according to the laws of Parliament, and maintain the Protestant religion.

1690 Exiled King James II attempts to return to England, but is defeated by William at the Battle of the Boyne in Ireland. James II escapes back to France a second time.

1692 James II attempts to return a second time, this time with major help from France. However he is defeated again, this time at sea off La Hogue before reaching England. James II survives and returns to France.

1694 Queen Mary dies at young age of thirty-two of smallpox. King William III "devastated" by her death.

1700 King William III does not marry again, but in stead names his sister-in-law Anne Stuart his heir. In the same year, Anne's only surviving child, William, dies at age eleven from either smallpox or scarlet fever.

1701 Exiled King James II dies of stroke in France.

1702 King William III dies at age fiftey-one, two weeks after falling from his horse, when it allegedly put its foot in a mole hole. His political opponents make up songs praising the mole. History later judges his thirteen year reign as relatively successful, considering the difficult times, though since he was not an Englishman, he never received the honor he deserved. Anne Stuart becomes Queen. She is married to Prince George of Denmark. She is overweight and in ill health. She suffers from gout, and troublesome after effects of smallpox and eighteen pregnancies which produced twelve miscarriages, one still birth, and five children who died in infancy, only one reaching the age of eleven. At her coronation she can only walk a few steps unaided, with the help of a cane. Yet she reigns twelve years, only a year less than William III, and her reign is not a disaster for England due to her success in choosing reliable deputies.

1714 Ann dies. She is succeeded by her second cousin, George Louis who becomes King George I of England. He is a Protestant from Hanover in Germany, speaks little English, is fifty-four years of age, and a great grandson of James I of England (reigned 1603-25). One of his two most trusted advisers is Jean de Robethon, his secretary, whom he brings with him from Hanover, and who is a French Huguenot refugee. He reigns thirteen years until his death in 1727.

Thus, in 1700 the English government is largely Protestant, and the climate is favorable for giving support to certain Huguenot refugees. England offers the use of four ships and free passage to carry Huguenot refugees to America, to the state of Virginia, where King William III grants them ten thousand acres of land stretching for five miles along the South side of the James River, and centering around an abandoned settlement of the Monacan Indians. This place was about fifteen miles up the James River from what is now Richmond, and became known as Manakin Town, or sometimes the one word Manikintown. The surrounding area is named King William Parish out of gratitude to their benefactor. The refugees are futher aided by being granted a seven year tax holiday by the Virginia House of Burgeses.

Beginning in the spring of 1700, the four ships set out at intervals of several months, each carrying approximately two hundred passengers. Manakin Town therefore started out with a French Huguenot population of six to eight hundred persons, being led by the Marquis de la Muce. What is unusual about this group of Colonial immigrants to America was that they came as a group and remained a community for several generations. Many were from upper class backgrounds, were educated, were accustomed to keeping records, and were dedicated to preserving their family heritage even in trying circumstances, which in some cases extended back seven hundred years. As a result we today can have a relatively clear picture of their circumstances before, during, and after the immigration. Julie Trabue Yates quotes in her 1983 book from the journal of a descendant, Daniel Trabue, said to have been written in the 1820s in KY, when Daniel was in his sixties:

> "It was a Desireable tract of Rich and furtail land. They went Emediately to hard work, building houses and clereing and tilling the earth. . . .
> Some of these people fetched some little mony with them but the most of them was poor people. Their industery and hard work soon got them to live very well. The nearest mill they had was at Col. Bird's, who lived at the falls of James River which was fifteen miles. So some of them made use of hand mills. I think they brought some hand mills with them from Ingland. Their was a great many wild Deer in the woods but as these French men was not accustomed to hunting, they did not attempt it or but very little, but soon Raised cattle and hogs a plenty. . . .
> This Col Bird was a great man in those Days and laid off these Frenchman's land and furnished Corn, etc., and Regesterd all their names. And some of the French names appeard so strange to Col. Bird he altered some of them, and their land titles or grants was according to the way Col. Bird spelt them. My Grand Father's name was Anthony Straboo but Col. Bird set in Down Anthony Trabue and so we write our names to this Day. My Grandfather brought a certificate with him wrote on parchment from France that was spelt Straboo as well as I can recolect." [103]

Incredibly, the parchement "certificate" referred to by Daniel Trabue above survives in excellent condition to this day and is translated below. The two best documented ancestral lines of the Trabue family in America are those of Antoine Trabuc and Barthelemy DuPuy. Among the Templeton ancestors, the name Trabue is carried down for four generations until Nancy Ann Trabue marries William Caldwell in 1808, and their daughter Ann Jane marries into the Winston family. Daniel Trabue's account that the Trabue name had originally been Straboo was repeated by many after him, though modern genealogists are quite convinced he was wrong, and there seems ample evidence that it was Trabuc, which would have been pronounced almost the same as Trabue is pronounced in English. Julie Trabue Yates and other researchers have found many secondary references to the name Trabuc, and some primary ones as well. However, exhaustive research on this name has probably not yet been done. For example, one such reference reportedly appears in "Histoire de la Ville Montauban" by Abbe' le Bret on page 143: "At the time of the siege of the city (Montauban) by Louis XIII (1624), two Captains Trabuc commanded companies under the general command of the Marquis de la Force."

Antoine Trabuc was born in 1667 in the region of the city of Montauban, on the Tarn River in the Province of Guyenne, a few miles north of Toulouse in Southern France. Although Montauban, as well as the city of Le Puy do appear on modern maps, their antiquity, as well as their relative importance in early medieval times cannot be seen without referring to medieval maps, and some places, which still do exist cannot be found on modern maps at all without reference to historical atlases.

Antoine left France sometime before 19 July 1687, when he is found, two years after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, in Berne, Switzerland. Some of Antoine's movements within Europe in the thirteen years between 1687 and 1700 have been learned by analysis of endorsements to a passport-like, parchment, travel document and letter of good character given to Antoine in Lausanne, Switzerland and first dated 15 Sep 1687. It is signed and probably written by "Vernhess, Former minister of the Church at Montauban," and probably also an exile, and co-signed by "J. Combe, Minister at Lausanne." This document proves, among other things, that Antoine was next in The Hague, Holland in 1688, where it is thought he spent several years at least, probably marrying there in 1699, before traveling to England and thence to Virginia.

Antoine married Magdalene Verrueil, probably in Holland in 1699, though no record of the marriage has yet been found. For a long time Antoine's wife was thought to be the daughter of Jacob Flournoy. However, more recent research has shown that Jacob Flournoy married Magdalene Prodomme Verrueil, widow of Moise Verrueil in VA in 1703. Moise Verrueil and his wife and five children made the voyage to Virginia aboard the "Peter and Anthony," the same ship on which Jacob Flournoy and his second wife and his four surviving children came. But Moise Verrueil died in VA in 1701, not long after arriving, and Jacob Flournoy's second wife died the same year. A year later Magdalene married Jacob Flournoy. She was his third wife. Magdalene was born in the Hague, Holland, although her father had been born in Berne Switzerland, and her grandfather had been a minister in Lausanne, Switzerland. Her husband Moise was a French merchant at Rouen, France.

Researchers within the past thirty years have actually discovered two birth records from about the same time in Montauban for boys with surname Trabuc. One has a father Antoine Trabuc, a brewer, who names his son Andre. The other is a tanner named Andre Trabuc, who names his son Anthony. The birth record for the Anthony Trabuc is 1657, which is thought to be ten years before the birth of the Anthony who was immigrant to VA. Nevertheless, there are several coincidences about these records which have tantalized researchers. The most telling is that on the immigrant Antoine's travel document his trade is give as "saddler," which seems related to the father Andre Trabuc whose trade was give as "master tanner." Researchers have speculated that the two fathers might have been brothers, each naming a child after the other. However, such speculation awaits further confirmation. [103]

Antoine and Magdalene had five children all born in Henrico Co, VA and the last born of these was John James (Jean-Jaques) Trabue born 1722, who married Olymph DuPuy in 1744. [83]

DuPuy is said to be one of the oldest names in France, and indeed extensive documentation does seem to exist for the several main branches of this family, which claim descent from Raphael DuPuy, Grand Chamberlain of the Empire, who is said to have accompanied The German Emperor Conrad le Salique in 1033 to take possession of the Royalties of Arles and de Bourgogne and to have been made gouverneur of these new estates. This and other information about Raphael was reported in Le Grande Dictionnaire Historique du Moreri, Vol 8, published at Paris 1759, p. 632, and found in the Library of Congress. This source goes on to explain that Raphael's tomb was opened at Pereins in 1610 by order of Monsieur le Compte de la Roch, gouverneur of Romaines in Dauphine, and that they found the body well preserved, with a lead helmet with the inscription "Raphael de Podio, General de la cavalerie Romaine and Grand Chambellan de l'Empire Romain." Podio is a Latin word for mountain, as Puy is in French. Not far from Pereins is the important medieval city of Le Puy, which had a well-known Cathedral prior to 1200, and which today has a moderately well-preserved castle atop a very tall and spectacularly precipitous rocky pinnacle which rises very dramatically from the surrounding flat countryside. Le Puy is still on modern maps. However, Pereins might require a specialized large-scale French map. "Dictionnaire Geographique & Administratif De La France, Vol 5, Paris 1899" describes Peyrins in the province of Drome as follows: "Leaning against a hill of 242 m., above the Savasse; Canton de Romans (6K), departement of Valence (24-22K N.N.E.). Has a Post Office, a Parish administered by a Priest, three Public Schools, a Convent of the Sisters of Sainte-Martha, a Notary, an Office for collecting indirect taxes, also an office of charity. The farmers produce asparagus, cucumbers, and grapes. The soil is stony. The culture of the Mulberry is carried on . . . in the Church there is the tomb (1297) of a DuPuy-Montbrun. There is a Chateau in ruins, - also a Chateau of Chabrieres of the 17th Century."

The descendants of Raphael were always described as Chevalier, Signieur de Pereins etc., ie Knight, Lord of Pereins. Raphael's son Hugues I was Lord of Pereins, Apifer, and Rochefort. By the sixth generation, Alleman DuPuy III was Lord of Pereins, Apifer, Rochefort, Montbrun, Rhelianette, Baux, Solignac, Bruis, Bordeaux, Ansenix, and Conisriea. From one generation to the next the fortunes of the Lords DuPuy would vary with the times, as they appeared to gain or lose control of different fifes through various means such as politics, marriage, reward for success in war or Crusades, changes in empire, and so on. In the five hundred years between the 11th Century and the 16th, the map of France underwent many complex changes, but it seems the hereditary seat of DuPuy power always remained in the region around Northern or Upper Languedoc, where indeed the immigrant Barthelemi DuPuy said he was born in 1653. On modern maps this appears somewhat to the north of where Languedoc is marked, but in the Middle Ages the Languedoc region was larger.

Much has been written about the first several generations of DuPuys, because they were historically prominent. Raphael's son Hugues apparently had four sons, one of whom he left at home to look out for family interests, while he and his other three sons went off on a Crusade to Palestine, departing in 1096. Hugues was said to be a general under the leader of the Crusade. Godefroy de Bouillon. Hugues apparently fought successfully in many battles and received as reward sovereignty or stewardship of the city of Acre in Palestine. He is also said to have founded the Abbey of Aiguebelle, order of St. Bernard, diocese of "St. Paul-trois-Chateaux." Apparently his two sons Rodolphe and Romain died in battle in Palestine. However, in 1118, his son Raymond succeeded Gerard, the founder of the Order of the Knights of St John of Jerusalem, later known as The Knights Templar or the Knights of Malta, and became its second Grand Master, holding this post for forty-two years until his death in 1160. Much is written about his exploits in the Holy Land.

From Alleman I, Lord of Pereins and etc. above, the DuPuys of Virginia trace their ancestry down fifteen generations to Barthelemy DuPuy the immigrant, who was born between 1653 and 1660 in the same Upper Languedoc region of France. However, he inherited an estate in Northern France in Sedan, which is a little west of Luxembourg and just northeast of the Ardennes. In 1671 Barthelemy entered the service of the Guards of King Louis the Fourteenth as Lt., and was soon promoted to Captain of the King's Royal Household Guards. He was apparently trusted and held in favor despite being known to be a Protestant. However, being at court and close to the king may have enabled him to anticipate the immanent trouble ahead for the Protestants. Barthelemy spent only eleven years in the guards. Towards the end of his military service or just after it, Barthelemy married the Countess Susanne Le Villain about 1682-85. He left the military service in 1682, and "retired" in his middle thirties with his wife to his Chateau at Saintogue, where they lived until about 1685, when the King revoked the Edict of Nantes. Shortly thereafter, Barthelemy escaped to Germany, leaving France at the same time as Antoine Trabuc and most of the other Huguenot immigrants to Virginia. Barthelemy is said to have spent the next fourteen years in Germany before traveling to England to join the Huguenot expedition to Virginia. Barthelemy and Susanne had four children who accompanied their parents to Virginia in 1700. Capt. Barthelemy DuPuy died in VA before May 1743, and his wife Susanne died there before Mar 1737. [104]

One of the four children of Barthelemy and Susanne was John James (Jean-Jacques) DuPuy who married another Suzanne La Villain, probably his cousin, who was the daughter of John Peter (Jean-Pierre) Le Villain Sr. also an immigrant, who was a close kinsman (possibly brother) of Barthelemy DuPuy's wife Countess La Villain. [83]

The descendants of the Huguenot community in Virginia prospered, and they have many descendants today. In the process they left behind an unusually well-documented account of their history, both in America after 1700, and before. Doubtless the awareness of many of them of centuries old traditions of family distinction gave them a heightened sense of the vicissitudes of history, and enabled them to "ride out" the political and other reversals of the 17th Century without losing track of their own history.

17a Several have stated that Edward was father of William b. 1621. No proof of this can be found in records, and some proof to contrary is found. Cavaliers and Pioneers- Abstracts of VA Land Patents & Grants 1623-1666 by Nell Marion Nugent p. 56 - Patent book No. 1 p 422: Thomas Hampton , clerk, 300 acres upper County of Norfolk - 19 May 1637 - Transportation of 6 persons: John Bagworth, Edward Dudley, John Bass, Thomas Hampton, Jno. Brown, Richard Egleston. This establishes that one Edward Dudley was in VA prior to 1637,

& that no wife or children of this Edward Dudley were included as headrights by 1637. There is no proof that the Edward in VA prior to 1637 is the same Edward found in York Co in 1651. York Co records between 1633 through 1672 shows Richard Dudley in 1646, Ambrose Dudley bet. 1646-1648, & Edward 1651. No relationship between above 3 is documented in York Co through 1672.

Edward Dudley of York Co witnessed deed of Benjamin Powell 15 Jul 1651 and signed with a mark; whereas Edward Dudley of Lancaster Co wrote his name when he witnessed the will of Thomas Sax 18 Apr 1654. see Deeds & Will Abstracts of Lancaster Co VA 1654-1661 by Ruth & Sam Sparacio, p. 6. Thus these 2 Edwards do not appear to be same man. Widow Elizabeth Dudley petitions court in Lancaster Co for support of herself & 3 minor children on 2 Jul 1658. Edward and William only 2 Dudley's in early Lancaster Co. If there was a relationship between these 2, it seems likely it would have been mentioned in relation to this support. That Eliz was wife of Edward is proven by records prior to 1658. This court petition proves Eliz was not mother of William and no relation. (Lancaster Co Order Book 1656-1661, p. 54) The 1654/5 Lancaster Tax List has Edward Dudley 1 poll. Males at the time were taxed at age 16. The 1 poll would be Edward, thus any male children were under 16 at that time. In 1658 Elizabeth is found with her 3 children, whom earlier records indicate were Robert, Richard, & Eliz. So the Edward who died in Lancaster Co <1658 and could write his name, husband of an Eliz, was not father of any known William. His wife Eliz, who was mother of 3 children under 16 in 1658 was too young to be mother of William b. ca 1621. Edward Dudley transported <1637 has not yet been proven to have descendants, nor to be the same as either of the other 2 contemporary Edwards. Also the Edward of York Co who signed with a mark has not yet been shown to have any descendants. Thus ancestors of all Edwards are moot as far as Templeton descendants are concerned. All of these Edwards may have had descendants, however proof of any must await further research. So far all we can say is that the Edward who was in Lancaster Co VA was not the father of William in Middlesex Co VA. Several other scarce references to very early Dudleys such as Richard & Ambrose also have not yet been proven to be ancestors of Robert Dudley who died in Spotrsylvania Co VA in 1766, who is the eareliest provable Dudley ancestor of Dr John M Templeton Jr. Most previous Dudley family genealogies have stated that there was only one early Edward who was the one ancestor of most Southern Dudleys, and especially of William father of James father of William father of Robert of Spotsylvania Co. However, none of these genealogies offers any evidence to support this, and there is strong evidence that there were at least 3 early Edwards, and none has so far been shown to be the father of William.

The earliest comprehensive secondary source on Handly, though don't know of another place where it can be obtained. Many later Handly researchers appear to have used this. Though lacking footnotes, bibliography, index, etc. it does quote many original documents, which itself suggests that such records probably still exist, and where they can likely be found. It does give William Handly 8 children, rather than just the 4 which later researchers have been able to prove. The version on the microfilm was apparently a retyping of another earlier record, but we are not told anything about the location of the original, or its possibly being of a date different from the one on the film. We are also told nothing about the author.

129 Abercrombie, Janice L. Two Specific Searchs of Louisa Co VA Records in 1992 & 1995 of Judith T, Peter, & Robert Dudley, & of John(s) Winston., PO Box 373, Mineral, VA 23111, 1992
Search was limited and by no means exhaustive. Nevertheless more than 50 records were found. Only the few most relevant records are cited in the notes to the genealogy. Janice was first contacted and employed in 1992 by Mrs. M. B. Pilcher, who wanted to prove the Judith T Winston b. Jul 1782 wife of John Bickerton Winston was the dtr of Peter Dudley. This proof was found in a moderately long record of the initiation of a lawsuit against the estate of Peter Dudley found in Louisia Co record book DB QQ p. 297 & 298 dated 21 May 1859. Subsequently John Bickerton's marriage to Judith Dudley was reported in Ref # 82 p. 824 also published in 1992, but probably not available until 1993. The availability of a new Winston Genealogy would probably not at first have been known except to prpofessional genealogists, and in any case it does not give Judith's parents, which the above cited record does.

178 Wright, F. Edward Lancaster County Church Records of the 18th Century - Vol. 3. Westminster. MD: Family Line Publications. 1994.
One family of Templetons: Joseph. Ester. Jo., Jannet. Elizabeth. Mary all of Donegal Presb. Church after 1787. Also an Agnes m. Stewart 1771. Also Wm. son of Robert bapt. 28 Jul 1785. does not say where. other than Lancaster Co. By the date. this is likely Robert found in tax list 1770 for W. Hanover in the Donegal region. Earlier 2 volumes by this author do not have Templetons in index. nor do they cover any Presbyterian churches.

179 Groff, Gary T Hawbaker & Clyde L A New Index; Lancaster County Pennsylvania Before the Federal Census, Vol 3, 1750 Tax Records. PO Box 207.Hershey. PA 17033. 1982.
Only one Templeton in book. Robert in Donegal. Same who had son Wm. in 1787?

180 Jacobs, Lucille Frizzell Duck River Valley In Tennessee and Its Pioneers. ca 1970.
Has a lot of genealogical information on Jacobs family in and around Coffee Co. and a lot of early background on local history of region where Obadiah Templeton lived. Lucille's son. Bob Jacobs. who lives in Beech Grove. TN is the senoior living Jacobs family historian. The book is available through the Franklin Co Historical Society and the Coffee Co Historical Society. Exact date of publication not known. as I have only received extracts.

181 Metzger, Donna Humphrey That Humphrey Family and Others. 687-800 Hazel Way, Susanville. CA 96130, 1991. See Ref # 184 as well.

Excellent genealogy on the Humphrey descendants of Reverend John Marks.

182 Wallace, Richard E, Cameron R W, & Carmen, J F The Howells of New Jersey, Virginia, Ohio, and Points West. MD: Heritage Books. 1994.

Excellent genealogy on the Howell descendants of Reverend John Marks.

183 Black, Russell C (Jr) Iredell Co., NC Deed Abstracts, 4 Vols., Books E Through M, 1803 - 1827. 1485 Turnersburg Highway. Statesville, NC 28677: Self, 1996.

Vol IV. p 97. Book M p1042. 10 Aug 1827. Obadiah Templeton to Benton Beall. for $300.57, sells a negro boy age 13 named Amos. This record narrows down rather closely the time when Obadiah and his family must have immigrated west to Bedford Co. TN. later Coffee Co, TN.

184 Colombatto, Doris Hoover Reverend John Marks 1716 - 1788 His Descendant & Related Families. 30112 Briarton St., Farmington Hills, MI 48331. 293 pages. 1997. This intersting book arrived just as this book went to the printer so it could not be evaluated in detail. Though it appears to have only roughly one sixth the total number of Reverend John Marks descendants and related people as contained in the Genealogy in Chapter 13 in this book. it contains several lines not contained in Chapter 13. It also contains very many wonderful photographs. and very many photos of original Marks documents, especially bible records, birth, marriage. and death records, news clippings, and so forth.
